New Peace Plan.
Around the Igloo.
Wise Will Rogers.
Don't Blame Providence.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

PAUL-BONCOUR, French minister of war, has a new plan to keep Europe peaceable. He would have a "European army," with a "European general staff." This army and staff would become active whenever the peace of Continental Europe might be threatened.

An interesting suggestion, but all would depend on who might be boss of the general staff of that "European army." The League of Nations, as Lloyd George has said, is "fading away" because it is simply the instrument of two big European powers, with other members of the League a mere chorus.

The real plan for Europe would be a "United States of Europe," such a union of states as we have here. But that will not come in another thousand years. Races, languages, religions and ancient feuds make it impossible.

ST. JOHNS, Newfoundland, reports that prosperity has come back to Northern Labrador. The Rev. B. Lenz, Moravian missionary, brings the news. Fish have been running heavily, also other necessary things, and every family is well supplied for the winter. Mr. Mason heads the news "Prosperity Just Around the Igloo." They have igloos in Northern Labrador.

WILL ROGERS said yesterday in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and various other Hearst newspapers:

"This country is a thousand times bigger than any two men in it, or any two parties in it. These big politicians are so serious about themselves and their parties.

"This country has gotten where it is in spite of politics, not by the aid of it. That we have carried as much political bunk as we have and survived shows we are a super-nation."

Timely words for Americans, "best financial minds" included. All would worry less if they could realize that the 123,000,000 people of the United States actually have something to do with the prosperity, stability and growth of the United States.

INVESTED FUNDS of the Christian and Congregational churches, totaling $33,000,000, have fallen only 15 per cent below book value, according to Mr. Boult, church treasurer.

The Christian and Congregational churches are to be congratulated. Few financial institutions can make such a showing, and it is reasonable to suppose that Providence helped those that made the investments.

HOWEVER, IT is well for other religious organizations less fortunate to remember what Brigham Young said when he was selling stock in a gigantic boarding house at Salt Lake.

He told the Mormon "saints" that the boarding house and its stock MUST be a success, because it was built for the Lord. On the other hand, he said:

"If it should fail, you must not blame the Lord, for that will be bad management."

Ten thousand dollars' worth of gold, almost pure, was taken from one small pocket. This interests everybody more than four years old. The human mind responds to the magic word "gold."

Youth wants it, to spend; old age wants it, to save. Uncle Sam thinks he needs it, to save him from perdition, and the greenback bogey man.

A REALLY great gold discovery might bring prosperity around the corner, and in sight. It was the California gold rush of 1849 that did more than anything else to get rid of one depressed condition.

Steam drove away the depression after the battle of Waterloo. Gold did it in the forties. Electric light and power did it in the latter part of the last century. Automobiles did it in the beginning of this century, after the depression of 1907.

Then the Great War, and the outpouring of billions upset everything. Something will bring back prosperity now, but nobody knows what it is. Possibly HARD WORK will do it.

SOMEBODY IS taking the election seriously. Registration in the United States amounts to 46,965,230, an increase of four and a half millions over the 1928 figures.

If the depression could convince Americans, permanently, that it is worth while to take an interest in their country, form opinions and vote accordingly, it would not be a wasted depression.

A MAN ARRESTED in the garden of Ramsay MacDonald, Britain's Labor prime minister, is suspected of planning an attack on MacDonald's life. MacDonald would not have believed that this could happen when he was called to take charge of the British empire, as the representative of working men.

He has learned, as all will learn, that prosperity is not a matter of class government.

He has learned also that, while a man of humble origin, like Cromwell or Bradlaugh, may be the most powerful man in the House of Commons, the fact that a man comes from humble beginnings does not necessarily prove his superiority.

OUST CAR CARDS HITTING HOOVER

Three of five Democratic campaign advertisements assailing President Hoover were being removed from Pittsburgh street cars today, ostensibly because of protests from car riders.

Frank R. Phillips, president of the Philadelphia Company and its subsidiary, the Pittsburgh Railways Company, forwarded the local office of Barron G. Collier, Inc., street car advertising agents, complaints Phillips said he had received.

As a result word came from the New York office of the Collier company to remove the posters complained against, contract for which had been placed by the Democratic National Committee.

Of the two cards permitted to remain, one said:

"Let's get somewhere — Vote for Roosevelt."

The other, illustrated, urged:

Mills' Chauffeur Ends Life With Gun

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The body of Frederick White, second chauffeur in the employ of Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the Treasury, was found early today in the basement of the Mills garage on West Fifty-second street. There was a bullet hole in his head and a pistol lay beside the body of the 55-year-old man.

The medical examiner's office listed the death as suicide. White had been drinking heavily, police were told, and brooding over the death three years ago of his wife.

GOV. ROOSEVELT HOLDING WEST

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—They are fighting in the Far West and fighting hard, the Republicans to overthrow the early Democratic advantage and the Democrats to maintain that advantage and to make the Roosevelt victory all the more complete.

Wyoming has reached the point where it is anybody's state. With 1,596 postcard ballots from that state recorded in the nationwide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States, there is a difference of only 10 between Hoover and Roosevelt. It is in Roosevelt's favor. For the last two weeks, Hoover has effectively

Allison Park Hunter Killed by Brother

Arthur Newman, 20, of Allison Park, died this afternoon in Allegheny General Hospital, the first hunting fatality of the season in Allegheny County.

With his brother, Edward, 18, and his father, he was hunting near his home today. The younger brother raised his gun and fired at a bird, the coroner's report said, the charge striking Arthur in the head. He died four hours later.

President Off Today On Trip Across Country

By RAYMOND I. BORST
International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 3.—Determined to continue his attack on the "bankrupt Republican leadership" right up to election eve, Franklin D. Roosevelt left by motor today for the final windup of the presidential campaign in New York City.

Despite the vigorous eleventh-hour drive of the Republicans, Gov. Roosevelt declared he was confident an overwhelming majority of the voters have made up their minds to "turn out" the Republican administration at Washington and that nothing will change them during the closing days of the campaign.

VISIT TO JERSEY

After lunching with his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, at Hyde Park, the Governor was to continue on to New York, reaching there about 6 o'clock. He will motor through Jersey City and Newark early in the evening, and then return to New York to address a gathering of "Roosevelt Republicans" in the Metropolitan Opera House at 10 o'clock. Owen D. Young, young industrial leader, will speak at the same time.

Gov. Roosevelt made it clear he was looking forward with "much pleasure" to speaking from the same platform with former Gov. Al Smith in Brooklyn tomorrow night, and in New York Saturday night. He will make his final appeal to the voters in Poughkeepsie Monday night.

Hoover Starts On Trip Across Country

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Turning to the campaign trail for the last time in his drive for re-election, President Hoover leaves today on a swing through the West designed to take him to his home in California election day.

Chicago Cabaret Owner Murdered

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—James J. Kenny, part owner of a South Side cabaret, today was Chicago's latest "one-way ride" victim.

The body was found in a South Side alley ash heap. The police said the slaying had taken place elsewhere and the body brought to the spot. Later they found bloodstains in the alleged speakeasy of which Kenny was part owner.

Ruth's Plane Crashes, Ridicule Plot Charge

As the plane, freighted with a large supply of gasoline, shot down a 3,000-foot runway at Floyd Bennett Field, it skidded off at 60 miles an hour, went into a ground loop and buried its left wing in the ground.

Quick as a flash, before the craft struck, Miss Nichols cut her switch, to prevent her gasoline from catching fire and burning the plane and herself.

A. B. Cornell, an employe in the Speakers' Bureau of Republican Eastern Headquarters, expressed his opinion in a letter this afternoon that someone had "tampered" with the plane, but Republican officials said they took no stock in the charge, which they said Cornell made entirely on his own responsibility.

Cornell, who higher Republican officials said was a "minor employe," made his charge in a letter to A. Gordon Nicholson, of the Republican State Committee of California in San Francisco. He wrote:

"Thorough investigation is under way, but the affair savors to me of the unclean. In my opinion the plane was tampered with to prevent the flightt."

When James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, was informed of Cornell's charge, he made this statement:

"I predicted several days ago that there would be all sorts of rumors and accusations for the rest of the campaign. This is a sample of what I meant."

BAND HOLDS 4 CAPTIVE; ROBS BANK

Family of Cashier Trussed All Night, Vault Looted

MARIENVILLE, Pa., Nov. 3.—Six bank bandits sped out of this remote Forest County village today after executing one of the most spectacular and daring robberies ever conceived.

They drove quietly into the village last night and pushed their way into the apartment of Fred R. Johnston, cashier of the Gold Standard Bank, which is located over the bank.

They tied up and gagged not only Johnston and his wife and daughter, Eleanor, 18, but also Fred Pickens, a young man visiting with Miss Johnston.

VAULT OPENED

At 8 o'clock this morning they took Johnston to his bank, forced him to open the vault, then drove off with their loot.

Today bank attaches after checking funds placed the booty at $7,500.

They took all the currency and gold they could lay their hands on and then reset the time lock so that the vault could not be opened until two hours later.

After they had bound the four

TREATY DOOMS INSULL'S HOPE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—The last obstacle remaining in the path of extradition proceedings against Samuel Insull, Sr., former Chicago utilities magnate, to compel him to return to this country and face trial on charges of larceny and embezzlement, has been removed, the State Department said today.

It was announced the extradition treaty negotiated between the United States and Greece more than a year ago and signed last May, became effective November 1 when formal exchanges of the articles of ratification took place.

Meantime, two representatives of the Illinois state's attorney's office, Charles A. Bellows and Andrew Vlachos, who had been here two weeks arranging for a presidential warrant for Insull's arrest in Greece, left for Greece early today without the documents because of the delay in obtaining the necessary papers from Chicago and the Illinois Governor's office.

State Worker Fired For Campaigning

HARRISBURG, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today dismissed William F. Weiss, a state employe in charge of the Wilkes-Barre federal employment office, because, the Governor says, campaign literature was distributed with unemployment work relief orders in government envelopes from that office.

Arrested at Wife's Request, Hangs Self

A few hours after he had been arrested by Swissvale police on complaint of his wife, John Chasser, 63, of 7517 Calumet street, Swissvale, was found hanged in his cell, according to a report to the county morgue. Chasser had used his belt as a noose, police said.

Man Leaps to Death From Mooring Mast

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—An unidentified man about 50 years old committed suicide today by jumping from the top of the mooring mast on the one hundred and third floor of the Empire State Building. His body landed on the eighty-seventh floor roof.

More Bally-Hoover

HOPELESSLY DEFEATED at the polls if the voters are actuated by a fair appraisal of his record, President Hoover, in a belated and high-pressured effort to re-sell himself to the people, now seeks to create illusions.

By word paintings of economic romances and possibilities, the President in his major New York address sought to divert the minds of the people from present-day harsh realities.

The President's statement concerning agriculture readily lends itself to statistical testing.

"Employment, agriculture, business—all of these show the steady, if slow, healing of our enormous wound," Mr. Hoover said.

Doesn't the President realize that, in so far as agriculture is concerned, the price gains of the summer have been very largely lost since September?

Doesn't the chief executive know that corn and wheat prices have fallen recently to new low levels?

ON THE VERY DAY when he spoke at Madison Square Garden, the Department of Agriculture at Washington announced that the general level of farm prices dropped three points during the month ended October 15.

From 59 per cent of the pre-war average in mid-September, the index price of 27 agricultural commodities fell to 56 per cent on October 15. A year ago the index was at 68 per cent of pre-war.

The department ascribed the fall in the index to the fact that there had been reductions in the prices paid to farmers for all commodities except wool, eggs and dairy products. Fruits and vegetables, like grains, were reported as having fallen to the LOWEST LEVELS FOR THE TWENTY-TWO-YEAR PERIOD COVERED BY THE DEPARTMENT'S STATISTICS.

In the light of such data, how has the Republican candidate the temerity to indicate that agriculture is definitely recovering?

THE BROADER ASSERTION in the President's address that a Democratic victory would threaten the American system is of course in the realm of fancy, and is not susceptible to mathematical analysis.

Nevertheless, the fatuity of the assertion is indicated by the comment in the current monthly letter of the nonpartisan National City Bank of New York, one of the two largest American banks, which says:

"Partisan feeling has been on the increase; and in the campaign speeches the history of the depression and the record of each party have been raked over in a manner sometimes disturbing, and tending to obscure the important fact that BOTH PARTIES HAVE TAKEN THE CONSERVATIVE SIDE OF THE MAJOR ISSUES."

Where does that leave the cry of destructive radicalism which President Hoover has undertaken to raise?

The City Bank, referring to the importance of public finance, adds:

"There is no basis for prejudgment or anxiety. It is rather to be considered that the most notable aspect of this campaign is the indorsement by both candidates and party platforms of principles of economy and sound money. They are alike in recognizing the importance of balancing the budget, and there is no agitation of the money question among the leaders of chief influence within either party."

THUS, FROM A nonpartisan standpoint, the City Bank sweeps away the illusions which have been lugged in to frighten the electorate.

It is not only safe for the country to choose Roosevelt, who has stuck to a high-minded discussion of the issues, but it appears that election of a Democratic administration would set in motion forces which would promote sound recovery in business, agriculture and employment.

LOTTERIES FOR PUPILS BARED

Patterson in Church Says East End Has 245 Speakeasies

East End has 245 speakeasies in four wards, numbers lottery men are offering school children "two numbers for a cent," at least 150 vice resorts flourish along the Allegheny River downtown, and a horse race "bookie" shop does business above a downtown store, Judge Frank P. Patterson charged last night.

Speaking in the Sixth Presbyterian Church, Squirrel Hill, he urged members of his audience to get acquainted with their ward chairman and alderman and constables, and "march in the parade of civic virtue."

He charged that Oakland police gave a man instructions to enter a club in Oakland, which he described, without mentioning its name, as follows:

"I know it has a handsome bar, very good liquor and good eats. Upstairs it has a gambling layout. It has 'craps' and a device known as 'bird cage,' in which men can bet $10 to $106 on how the dice will fall."

WOMAN SAVED FROM FLAMES

A retired school teacher was in a serious condition in West Penn Hospital today, victim of a fire that swept through the upper floor of the three-story brick home of Mrs. Mary Wensel, of 4818 Penn avenue, another retired teacher, last midnight.

The clothing of Mrs. Bella Irwin, 70, was ablaze when firemen carried her down ladders from her third-floor bedroom.

Mrs. Irwin, a companion of Mrs. Wensel since the death last May of the latter's sister, Miss Kate Moore, a retired teacher, was aroused by smoke about an hour before the blaze was discovered by a neighbor.

The blaze raged for almost an hour before it was extinguished. The damage was estimated at $2,500.

Mrs. Irwin was burned on the hands and face.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—Mt. Lebanon Township today filed a formal complaint with the Public Service Commission against the South Pittsburgh Water Company, alleging the respondent's rates under a proposed new schedule will be "excessive, exorbitant and unfair."

BOWERS PREDICTS LANDSLIDE FOR ROOSEVELT TUESDAY

'28 KEYNOTER FLAYS G. O. P. 'COERCION'

Depression Laid to Policy of Coolidge And Hoover

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Claude B. Bowers, Democratic "keynoter" in the 1928 presidential campaign, author and political commentator, predicted that the vote this election will be "a slaughter" of Republicanism, in a speech delivered over the National Broadcasting Company network.

Declaring that the election will be a "referendum on whether the people shall own the government," Bowers said:

"The result will not be a normal majority for Roosevelt. It will be a slaughter."

ASSAILS 'COERCION'

Bowers assailed the practice of Republican employers intimidating their employes. He said:

"In the desperation of their despair the friends of a discredited administration are resorting to methods that narrowly skirt the edge of crime under the corrupt practice act, in attempts to blackjack laboring men into voting against their convictions and interests."

After ridiculing President Hoover's "Demagogic promises" of four years ago, and contrasting them with "similar" promises of this campaign, Bowers said that Speaker (Jack) Garner properly described Hoover in speaking of another opponent as "a man with the biggest hood, the loudest horn and the smallest engine we ever had seen."

WORTHLESS PLEDGES

"But there is more tragedy than comedy in these broken promises. They demonstrate the utter worthlessness of the Hoover administration pledges. The Hoover promises of 1928 measure the value of the Hoover promises of 1932—and they are not even quoted on the market."

He said that the Republicans "cannot alibi their share of responsibility for the panic that has wrought the ruin of us all," adding:

"That was not an act of God. It did not come from across the sea; it was man-made and it was made inevitable by the hands-off do-nothing policies of the Coolidge and the Hoover administrations."

3 STATES BAR PENNA. TRUCKS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The battle of the license tags extended to three fronts today as New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland moved in swift retaliation against the new Pennsylvania law requiring registration of "foreign" motor trucks carrying persons or property for hire.

While these states set up barriers against Pennsylvania-licensed trucks, from Harrisburg came a threat of a counter offensive by which this state may extend its registration requirements to all classes of vehicle from which the other three states are demanding fees.

In the meantime, hundreds of trucks were held up on both sides of points along the New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland borders while drivers awaited orders or funds from their owners for the purchase of tags and operators' licenses.

Cox Scores Hoover As Britain's Friend

Characterizing Hoover as "Herbert the First, the best President England ever had," Father James R. Cox addressed a crowd at the Roosevelt Independent headquarters, Grant street and Fourth avenue, at noon today.

Father Cox's attack on the administration, which, he said, was aiming toward dictatorship of the monopolies and serfdom for the common man, was greeted with cheers.

Railroad Workman Breaks Leg in Fall

BANK BANDITS TIE UP FAMILY

victims with bedsheets, adhesive tape and wire they sat down in the Johnston reception room and stood guard all night.

There was little conversation. Every now and then the gunmen, who were well dressed and in their thirties, would remove the mouth gags and allow the Johnstons and young Pickens a few moments breathing spell. None was otherwise molested.

SLEEP IN CLOTHES

Things apparently might have been worse. Johnson, asked whether the intruders had been considerate, answered:

"Oh, yes. They picked us up and put us to bed with our clothes on and kept watch over us all night. But we didn't sleep any. You know you just don't sleep under circumstances like that."

At 6:30 a. m. a brother of Johnston inquired for him at his home. The bandits ordered Eleanor to inform him, at the front door, that the bank cashier was ill abed. She did.

At 8 o'clock one of the invaders took Johnston into the bank. The others stood guard in the street and the apartment.

With their loot they hopped into their three cars and sped away, first slashing the bank's telephone wires.

The cars had been parked in Marienville's streets separately and the license plates removed. There was little danger of notice being taken of the lack of plates, Marienville being without a police force.

SOUNDS ALARM

After they had sped out of the village, young Pickens, son of the editor of the local paper, managed to loose himself. He screamed out the window. Neighbors arrived.

State police watched all nearby highways today.

T. J. Reyner, president of the bank; R. H. Pickens, assistant cashier, and directors made the checkup to determine the amount of the robbery.

Five years ago a similar bank holdup occurred at the town of Knox. The cashier, George R. Berlin, was taken to the bank and forced to turn over $8,000. A New Castle gang was convicted for the Knox crime.

TRADE BETTER, SAYS IRVIN

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—William A. Irvin, president of the United States Steel Corporation, says business has definitely improved and the improvement is to be seen generally. He added:

"There's no doubt but that business in general is very much better, and I don't mean sentiment alone is better—I mean actualy business activity.

"I find this to be true wherever I go. For instance, in our own industry, you remember that steel production was down around 10 per cent capacity not long ago. Now it is moving toward 20 per cent."

Irvin came to Cleveland for the annual inspection of subsidiary plants of the Steel Corporation.

YOUNG PRAISES ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Owen D. Young today had characterized Franklin D. Roosevelt as a "man of sound intelligence, fine intuition, deep sympathy, adequate understanding and real independence."

The chairman of the General Electric Company, himself mentioned as a possible candidate for the presidency in the pre-convention speculation, presented his view in a letter forwarded to the Taxpares' Union, of Washington.

In a letter to an employe of the General Electric Company, also made public by the Democratic National Committee, Young wrote:

"I do not think you should ask any officer of the General Electric Company how you should vote or accept their advice if they were so unwise as to volunteer it, which, I am thankful to say, they have never done. What we need in this country, and in this election particularly, are votes reflecting the views of the voters free from the coercion of fear or favor."

GOV. ROOSEVELT HOLDS WEST IN HARD FIGHT

cut into Roosevelt's Wyoming lead to where it has now almost reached the vanishing point.

Montana is another Far Western state becoming precariously close. With 4,348 ballots tabulated Roosevelt holds the state by a majority of only 136. He has had the short-end of the returns three of the last four weeks.

Colorado is just as uncertain. Hoover has a majority of 173 in that state, with 7,095 ballots counted. In the last four weeks, Hoover has had the best end of the returns three times and Roosevelt one.

Idaho this week split its vote exactly even, but last week and the week before Roosevelt had a good edge on the returns. He still has a majority of 268 out of 2,550 ballots, which gives him a comfortable margin of safety.

UTAH FOR ROOSEVELT

In the last two weeks Utah has given Hoover small leads, though he is far behind in the total poll count from the Mormon state, Roosevelt having a 526 majority out of 3,186.

A week ago it looked as if Hoover had taken a spurt to overcome Roosevelt's substantial Oregon lead, but this week Roosevelt came back with an approximately 3 to 2 return to raise his majority to 564 out of 4,806.

In Washington state, Hoover this week held Roosevelt to a one majority out of 107 new votes, but the state is safely on the Roosevelt side with a 2,191 majority out of 9,071 ballots.

Arizona today divided its 46 new votes exactly even. That state, however, still shows a 677 Roosevelt majority with 1,995 ballots.

G. O. P. DRIVE INTENSIVE

Despite Republican claims that California will go for Hoover, there has been no sign of a trend in that direction up to this late day in the poll returns. Roosevelt holds the state by a majority of 9,047, with 32,651 ballots recorded. He has not failed a single week to score a comfortable California lead.

New Mexico and Nevada, likewise, are staying firmly on the Roosevelt side.

There is no question that the Republicans are making an intensive drive throughout the Far West, but to all appearances it has come too late to do any good, except possibly in Montana and Wyoming, in addition to Colorado, which for some time has leaned to Hoover.

Reed Likens Vote Forcers to Traitors

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(Universal.)—Lawrence Richey, secretary to President Hoover, threatened to "beat up" John Marrinan, a former secretary to the President, because he declared for election of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Marrinan disclosed here.

At the White House, Richey said:

"I have nothing to say for publication."

Marrinan, who is an official of the Senate stock market investigation committee, last night said:

"Richey called me on the telephone Sunday night and said he would punch my nose and break me in two for my statement urging election of Gov. Roosevelt.

"I told him to go ahead, but I haven't seen him yet. Richey made a lot of other threats and his language was so vile it would not be printable."

quiet of the White House for final preparations. The trip will include five major campaign addresses and a score of shorter talks from the rear platform of his special train.

The President will speak at Springfield, Ill., tomorrow afternoon, St. Louis tomorrow night, Madison, Wis., Saturday morning, and St. Paul Saturday night. He also will make a final radio appeal over a nation-wide broadcasting network election eve.

LAST ADDRESS

Although final plans had not been made today, this last address my be made from some far western city on the way to the coast. There is a possibility that it might be made from the moving train or perhaps through a tapped telephone trunk.

Mr. Hoover disclosed his purpose of "coming home to vote" in a speech broadcast last night on the Pacific Coast appealing for support from the voters of California, Oregon and Washington, and telling them that under a democratic regime their "products will rot on the farms and in our forests."

Before his speech, White House officials made public a telegram by the President terming statements that he had changed his position on prohibition since his speech of acceptance "misrepresentations" and asserting that "my position is unaltered."

REALTY OWNERS UPHOLD JOB OF ALDERDICE

Payroll Graft Hearing Waits Appearance Of Houston

Council's invitation to John D. Houston, wholesale grocer, to appear before it to substantiate his charges that 35 per cent of the city payroll is graft, remains open, but the controversy reached a temporary halt today pending Council's meeting Monday at which time reports on charges made in Houston's letter to Council are expected to be received from several department heads.

J. R. Brady, executive secretary of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, and J. W. Bamford, secretary of the Building Owners and Managers' Association, drew the wrath of Councilman [illegible] J. McArdle when they came to the defense of Budget Controller Robert J. Alderdice yesterday. Both men declared they believed the office of Budget Controller was one of great benefit to the city and should not be abolished.

Both said they were of the opinion that the budget controller had the power to regulate the expenditures of various departments and check upon their appropriations.

McArdle said:

"No savings ever will be made by an individual such as the budget controller. He can never supply this legislative body with the authority to effect such savings because he is not vested with the authority to do so. Only by the co-operation of Council and the administrative branches of the city government can such savings be made, irrespective of the budget controller."

Houston today declared that he was still undecided as to whether he would attend the hearing Monday.

ZOO ANIMALS SLAUGHTERED

NASHUA, N. H., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The wholesale slaughter of a large group of animals of a privately-owned zoo at Bedford took place there today as a result of their purchase by a Hudson zoo owner.

The animals killed included two tigers, a cinnamon bear, three lions, two buffaloes, five foxes, a black wolf, a wild boar, seven monkeys, two baboons and four black bears. An elephant was killed yesterday.

They were part of a purchase of animals and birds made by John T. Benson, who operates a large animal farm at Hudson. Benson said he decided to keep the smaller animals and birds in the lot, but did not want to include the larger animals in his Hudson holdings.

The elephant was slain, Benson said, by four National Guardsmen after it had attempted to attack a keeper. The other animals were killed, he said, by a big game hunter connected with his establishment, who fired but one bullet from a high-powered rifle into each to bring death. Benson said every precaution was taken to make the killings as humane as possible.

BAKER ASSAILS 'HOOVER LOANS'

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, appealed to the electorate last night to contrast achievements of the Wilson administration with those of President Hoover's as he asked for the election next week of the Democratic national ticket.

Addressing a Democratic rally, he said:

"We need a change. We need an about face. Franklin Roosevelt and John Garner have their faces to the future. That is why I advise my friends to support them."

Baker accused Presidents Hoover and Coolidge with having encouraged foreign loans and with having raised tariff barriers that brought retaliatory tariffs, both of which, he said, had been contributing factors to the depression in this country.

Crown Gems Form Bulk Of McCormick Estate

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The famous jewelry of the late Edith Rockefeller McCormick, notably necklaces and pendants that once were part of the Rusian crown jewels, formed the principal part of personal property worth $1,032,348 in the inventory of her estate.

The inventory was made public today by the Chicago Title and Trust Company.

The value of the individual gems was not estimated, but the platinum pendant once worn by the late empress of Chicago society, contained 1,657 diamonds, and nine large emeralds, one weighing 119 karats.

Another item was a pearl necklace containing 23 pearls, one cushion diamond and two round cut diamonds. There were two flexible bars of diamonds each holding 100 round and 12 square cut diamonds. A platinum breastplate contained 1,801 diamonds, and a tiara with 673 diamonds.

There were 1,948 diamonds in the famous jewel diadem, and in another platinum and gold necklace were 771 diamonds and five emeralds.

The real property of Mrs. McCormick was listed as the 34-room mansion at 1000 Lake Shore drive, her Villa Turicum estate at Lake Forest and 52,320 shares in the Edith Rockefeller McCormick trust, of which she was co-trustee with Edwin Krenn and Edward A. Dato, partners in a real estate development company she backed.

Noted Actress to Rest In Self-Planned Grave

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 3.—(INS.)—Under a stone canopy spported by four pillars in Elmwood Cemetery here, Mrs. C. C. Craig, known to theatergoers of 40 years ago as Genevieve Lowell, will make her "last curtain call" tomorrow when she is lowered into a grave for which she has been prepared for four years.

The former star featred in "Black Crook" and "The Count of Monte Carlo," and who played Gretchen in support of Joseph Jefferson's "Rip Van Winkle," died last night after an extended illness during which she daily had her hair dressed in anticipation of her "farewell appearance." She was 85.

Advised four years ago by physicians that death was near, Mrs. Craig had the elaborate stone canopy erected over the spot where she desired to be buried. Set in the canopy is a bronze replica of her photograph as "Mercedes," in "The Count of Monte Carlo," one of her favorite roles.

All details of her funeral, even to pallbearers and honorary pallbearers, and the costume she will wear when buried, were made weeks in advance of death by Mrs. Craig.

GLASSFORD DESCRIBES PANIC AT BONUS 'DEATH MARCH'

POLICE BOARD CAPTAIN URGED BULLETS

Vets Walking Over Lawns Too Much For Officials

By BRIG. GEN. PELHAM D. GLASSFORD

Former Chief of Police of the District of Columbia.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Washington Herald and Universal Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—"Welcome, boys, to the Capitol—your Capitol — we are glad to see you here. Your exemplary conduct and splendid spirit of patriotism do credit to your comrades who gave their lives in the great war. You are entitled to the bonus and we are going to see that you get it."

Such were the oft-repeated words of Congressmen who joined the veteran orators in addressing thousands of the B. E. F, who assembled almost daily on the broad Capitol steps.

Patman, of Texas; Rankin, of Mississippi; Keller, of Illinois, and others gave friendly encouragement to the veterans in the exercise of their rights of petition, free speech and assembly. The men were orderly and patriotic. They intended no trouble. Nevertheless, a heavy police reserve was maintained at the insistence of the administration. This reserve was kept out of sight in the crypt of the Capitol Building.

Capitol Protection

Normally, the metropolitan police had no jurisdiction over the Capitol grounds. The grounds and the Capitol itself are guarded by a separate police body under control of the Capitol Police Board, composed of the sergeant-at-arms of the Senate, David Barry; the sergeant-at-arms of the House, Kenneth Romney, and the Capitol architect, David Lynn.

Capt. S. J. Gnash, of the Capitol police, I had dealt with in December when the hunger marchers invaded the city and had absolutely no confidence in his judgment. At that time, as an emergency measure, the metropolitan police had taken over the protection of the Capitol grounds. When the B. E. F. came, this arrangement was renewed, to some extent by my usurping the power, a necessary measure in my judgment, to prevent untold trouble.

Until Roy Robertson and his contingent from California appeared and started the day and night picket of the Capitol, which became known as the "death march," the veterans had been allowed to congregate much as they pleased. They had the right to do so in the course of presenting their demands to Congress and interviewing members of the House and Senate. The Capitol Police Board raised no particular objection.

Board in Panic

But the Robertson idea threw the board into a panic. They suddenly demanded that the regulations be enforced. Those regulations are largely park rules designed to protect the lawns, shrubs and trees from being damaged. The sight of the California veterans walking over the lawns irritated the board. The inauguration of the "death march" infuriated them, and when they came into possession of some threatening Communist circulars they saw the whole proceedings as a tremendous Red plot and became terrified. Capt. Gnash advocated driving the Robertson "ruffians" from the Capitol grounds, using bullets if necessary.

The fact that Robertson was unalterably opposed to radicalism was demonstrated by the withdrawal of his contingent from the Capitol grounds when some Communists were admitted to present a petition. He would not permit his men to remain while the Communists were there

Robertson has a broken neck. He wears a steel brace behind his head and a strap supports his chin and another holds his forehead. He is a tragic and picturesque figure and his leadership had glamor. He insisted upon independent action and refused to join Waters' command.

Robertson's dramatic sense of action appealed to many of the B E F. A number of Waters' dissatisfied followers flocked to his standard. It was my task to curb this growth to regulate and control the demonstrations, the activities of his group. Since

WILL COMFORT, AUTHOR, DIES

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Will Levington Comfort, 53, novelist and short story writer, is dead here.

Comfort, former baseball player, newspaperman and war correspondent, was born in Kalamazoo, Mich., January 17, 1878. He is survived by his widow. Heart disease caused his death yesterday.

Among the better known of his novels were "Rutledge Rides Alone," "Fate Knocks at the Door," "Somewhere South of Sonora" and "The Public Square."

Dr. Curtis Brigham, his physician, said Comfort had been ill at his home a short time, but took a turn for the worse and was ordered to the hospital.

Comfort, years ago, was employed on the old Pittsburgh Dispatch and during the Russo-Japanese war in 1904 was war correspondent for the Dispatch syndicate.

1,400,000 Autos Undergo Inspection

HARRISBURG, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The state has announced that 1,438,992 of the 1,673,109 registered motor vehicles in Pennsylvania on September 30 had been inspected in the second semi-annual official inspection period which ended September 30.

A Brutal Beating It Was, But It Was Painless

Two police scout cars sped to St. Martin and Monastery streets last night in response to a call from a half dozen residents that a man was being brutally beaten by youths.

As the policeman approached, the youths ceased punching the defenseless "victim," hurled him directly into the path of one of the scout cars and fled. Then the patrolmen discovered the "victim" was only a straw-stuffed form of a man. The dummy was taken to the South Side Police Station.

HUNTER ALIBIS IN DRY AUCTION

Hunters who fail to bag their pheasants or small game may hurry to the auction of the prohibition raiders, slated for 10 o'clock tomorrow in the Morrowfield Garage, Maburn road and Alderson street—and get an alibi.

For among many things captured during 18 raids, the dry agents will sell under the hammer one stuffed owl and two stuffed pheasants.

Bruce Barton Fights Woman Writer's Suit

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—Bruce Barton, author and advertising man, made a complete denial today of charges in a $250,000 slander suit brought by Mrs. Frances King, a writer. She formerly was employed in Barton's office.

Barton was arrested yesterday on a civil order signed by Supreme Court Justice Norton in Brooklyn. He was released in $1,000 cash bail. Mrs. King charged Barton had prevented her from getting employment in several instances by "slandering" her reputation.

HUNGER HIKERS TURN BEGGARS

LONDON, Nov. 3. — (AP.) — Chastened by their experiences with the police, unemployed "hunger marchers" who last week stormed the very doors of Parliament, were reduced today to rattling tin cups for pennies in the streets.

Their leader, W. A. L. Hannington, is still in jail. Some of their companions on the weary march on the city had gone home. In the House of Commons the home secretary announced that the government was preparing measures to prevent the recurrence of such disorders as occurred last week.

The leaderless stragglers, knowing not what else to do, shuffled up and down the sidewalks in the neighborhood of the big halls where the County Council has provided sleeping quarters, begging money for their food. The public seems to be contributing generously.

BRIDGE VICTORY BIG THRILL TO VANDERBILT

Donor of Trophy Wins Championship Cup For First Time

By J. C. OESTREICHER

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Only the skilled work of an engraver remained today to make Harold S. Vanderbilt the happiest man in the world.

The millionaire sportsman, who first brought Contract Bridge to the United States, achieved an ambition of many years' standing last night when, as a member of the team headed by P. Hal Sims, he won the Vanderbilt cup, most coveted trophy in tournament bridge.

Vanderbilt donated the trophy many years ago and, although he tried every year to win it, success eluded him until the Sims team last night put to rout the strong foursome headed by David Burnstine in the final lap of the final round of the tournament.

FOES CRUSHED

The Sims-Vanderbilt combine, with Willard Karn and Waldemar von Zedwitz as teammates, blasted the Burnstine aggregation out of the running by a margin of 5,845 points, turning what had been a close struggle into a final rout.

Sims and Karn, who were members of the winning team last year, and von Zedwitz, who played with Ely Culbertson when the latter won the trophy in 1930, are the first bridge players ever to win the right to have their names inscribed a second time on the big silver cup.

Burnstein, aided by Howard Schenken, Charles S. Lochridge and Richard Frey, put up a stiff battle but as the tournament drew to a close, both pairs of the Sims-Vanderbilt team embarked upon a campaign of spirited bidding and play which proved irresistible.

The Sims team was aided in its flight to victory by a number of brilliant coups, among which was the following successful small slam in hearts, which required a daring stroke for its execution:

KARN OPENS BIDDING

Both sides were vulnerable. Sims and Burnstine passed and Karn opened with a club. Schenken passed and Sims jumped to two diamonds. Burnstein again passed, and Karn bid two hearts. South passed and Sims went to six hearts. Schenken led the five of diamonds.

After drawing trumps, Karn was faced with the problem of establishing diamonds without the loss of a trick, knowing he must lose the act of clubs. After the first diamond lead, he decided after long consideration that North had not false-carded when the queen dropped, and returned to his own hand, finessing the 10 of diamonds and making the contract.

Lochridge, playing the same hand at six hearts at the other table, played for the diamonds to break, hoping to establish the suit by ruffing once. His plan failed to materialize, however, and he went down for a loss of 100 points, while Karn made 1,430 by fulfilling his slam contract.

INGRID LEAVES, ROMANCE DIMS

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—A sudden and unexpected hitch developed today in the program which it was confidently expected would result in the engagement of Princess Ingrid of Sweden to Prince George, youngest son of the King and Queen of England.

Princess Ingrid left London for Brussels to visit her sister, the wife of Prince Leopold of Belgium. Her departure was followed by official announcement here that she would return to Stockholm shortly and that her plans did not call for another trip to London in the near future.

Princess Ingrid's father, the crown prince, who is at Saltzburg, is due to visit London shortly. When Princess Ingrid left Stockholm recently, it was generally understood she would remain in England until her father's birthday, and the Swedish public believed that a betrothal announcement would be made on that day, November 11.

Suit Asks $25,000 For Co-Ed's Death

INDIANA, Pa., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Dean M. J. Walsh, of Indiana State Teachers' College, is defendant in a $25,000 damage suit as a result of a motor accident in which Miss Julia Roessing, of Cheswick, was fatally injured.

Suit was filed yesterday by her parents, who allege the machine was driven negligently by James Remley, of New Castle, a student at the college, when it struck a headwall near Blairsville, October 30, 1931. Miss Roessing was a student at Allegheny College.

BOY, 14, HALTED ON $1 TOUR OF WORLD

Travels 1,000 Miles, Ends Happily in Father's Arms

CLEVELAND, Nov. 3.—(AP.) — The adventuresome world tour of 14-year-old Ross N. McDiarmid came to a happy conclusion today in the arms of his father, John S. McDiarmid, Minister of Mines and Natural Resources, of Manitoba, Canada.

Young McDiarmid, who ran away from his home in Winnipeg 12 days ago to "tour the states" and sail the seas with capital of one dollar, may have had some anxious moments while he awaited the arrival of his father, but it turned out to be a great reunion.

FATHER, SON PALS

The elder McDiarmid, as he fondled the boy and brushed his hair so he would look his best for newspaper photographers, said:

"We're just a couple of pals. He is my young brother."

Ross was brought here from Willoughby, 25 miles east of here, where he was found by two policemen yesterday after he had been widely sought. The boy's father arrived this morning from New York.

The elder McDiarmid made it plain there would be no recriminations and apparently his chief concern was that his son get a much-needed haircut and clean clothes.

There will be no questioning. The father said:

HAPPY GREETING

Ross felt pretty good that his father greeted him with such fine understanding. He said:

"Gee, I'm glad you're my father."

One of the first orders of business was a telephone call to Mrs. McDiarmid in Winnipeg, and that was when Ross lost a bit of his youthful confidence. He shed a few tears as he heard his mother's voice.

His father said:

"Your mother had a lot of confidence in me. When I started out to look for you she gave me an extra suit, a shirt and some other clothing. Take that dirty sweater off."

The father and son will leave on the next convenient train for Winnipeg, a prosaic but satisfactory ending for Ross' 1,000-mile trip on $1.

BUS ADVOCATE HITS INCLINE

Another hearing will be held on the application of the Liberty Bus Line to compete with the Pittsburgh Railway Company in carrying passengers between Mt. Washington and the downtown district.

Al Zontine, of 625 Boggs avenue, a musician, testified before the Public Service Commission yesterday that he is forced to "thumb" rides home because of poor street car and incline service.

J. M. Statler, of 400 Bailey street, and Miss Elizabeth Ammons testified that they are forced to ride the incline car with garbage wagons. Miss Ammons said:

According to the plans of August Villani and Adelmo Rossi, asking an independent bus line permit, two buses would operate between Grandview avenue and the Pennsylvania Station at a 15-cent fare or 10 tickets for $1.25.

STRAUS ASSAILS STRADDLES BY HOOVER

Senator Nathan Straus, Jr., of New York, son of the noted philanthropist, praised Gov. Roosevelt's humanitarian record as an administrator at a meeting in Taylor Allderdice High School last night. Straus was introduced by Attorney James L. O'Toole, Jr.

Straus condemned the Eighteenth Amendment, and charged the Republican platform and President Hoover straddled on this issue of the present campaign, and on numerous other issues. The Republican party, he said, has made the country safe for hypocrisy. He said:

"The Republican platform takes over 500 words to explain what it proposes to do about prohibition. The plank proclaims that the federal government should safeguard our citizens everywhere from the return of the saloon.

"Does anybody except a Republican platform maker believe that the saloon or its abuses have ever been abolished? Now they call them speakeasies. The saloon will never be abolished until the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed, as we pledge, and we gain sensible regulation of the legitimate business of selling wine, beer and spirituous liquor.

"Under the Hoover administration the budget is unbalanced. The state of New York under Gov. Roosevelt has balanced its budget, despite $25,000,000 spent in the last year for direct relief. The credit of the state of New York, as evidenced by the rate of interest on its bonds, is the highest of any state in the Union. This is complete answer to statements that Gov. Roosevelt would not conduct the business of the United States on a sound basis.

"Gov. Roosevelt has made a plea for the five-day week. That will be a great step toward progress, and it is coming. We shall have more employment, and a stimulus to the entire machinery of production."

Attorney Henry Ellenbogen, Democratic candidate for Congress in the Thirty-third District, spoke from the same platform and attacked the power trust. He recited the revelations of the Senate Utility Investigating Committee at Harrisburg.

He pledged himself to legislation for regulation of the power industry, including its flotation of securities.

President Hoover, he said, is known as the friend of the power trust, while Gov. Roosevelt is a fighter for fair regulation for the benefit of the rate payer.

Grid Tilt to Keep Roosevelt's Son 'In the Dark'

GROTON, Mass., Nov. 3.—(INS.)—If politics conflicts with football—take football—that's what Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., son of the Democratic presidential nominee—had decided today.

The national election next week falls on the eve of the annual Groton-St. Mark's gridiron battle. Early to bed the evening before the game was the order of the Groton eleven. No exception to the rule—not even for the tackle—son of New York's Governor. He will learn how "dad made out" from his brother John, also a Groton school undergraduate, Wednesday morning.

Found at Last! Prosperity Hides In Arctic

ST. JOHNS, Newfoundland, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Eskimos in Northern Labrador have turned the corner and found prosperity, the Rev. B. Lenz, a Moravian missionary stationed at Makkovik, said today.

U. S. RADIO UNIT REORGANIZED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Reorganization of the field force, with a predicted estimated saving of $75,000 a year, has been announced by the Radio Commission.

The reorganization was ordered under the economy act and the President's executive order providing for the transfer to the Radio Commission of the Radio Division of the Department of Commerce.

Important Notice

In order to enjoy to the full the crisp crunchy crusts, the delicious flavor of Donahoe's Hard Rolls, they should be eaten the same day they are bought.

If not eaten until the following day they lose their crisp crunchy freshness and deteriorate into an ordinary roll.

When not eaten until the following day, some of the original crispness can be restored by heating the rolls in a hot oven for a few minutes before serving.

A damp rainy day also tends to take the crispness out of the rolls, even when fresh—so on damp days, if the crispness is gone, reheat the rolls in your oven.

We urgently recommend that these hard rolls be eaten the day they are bought.

HUNTING DEATH TOLL 8 ON THIRD DAY

HARRISBURG, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Fatalities had mounted to eight and the list of wounded was still growing today as Pennsylvania hunters entered their third day in quest of small game.

Crisp, cold November weather—ideal for hunting—contrasted with the rain-swept early hours of the opening day. Unemployed men, gunning for food, joined those who were out for sport alone.

The fatalities included:

Paul Kolesnikoff, 14, Idetown, died in Kingston Hospital several hours after he was wounded by a stray bullet while strolling through a woods near his home.

YOUTH IS VICTIM

Charles E. Snyder, 70, Easton, who suffered a heart attack as he hunted in Moore Township, Northampton County.

William Allen, Northampton, found lying helpless in a field near Kresgeville, Monroe County, 17 hours after he shot himself in the heel. He was taken home after treatment at a Palmerton Hospital.

Injuries reported were:

Frank Yocum, Elysburg, wounded in both legs as a companion fired at a rabbit in Northumberland County.

Stanley Gurgel, 21, Centralia, slightly wounded in the right leg while hunting near Mt. Carmel.

Harry Guither, Hepburnia, and Wesley Robbins, Olanta, both shot in the legs while hunting near Clearfield.

Walter Sipko, 18, Old Forge, accidentally shot himself.

Hiram Stains, 71, of Richard Furnace, wounded in face and neck with bird-shot fired by son, Jesse, 27, may lose an eye. He walked nearly a mile and a half to his home, although wounded.

HAMMER BLOWS KILL WIDOW

Mrs. Mary Donoghue, 54, of 730 Ohio avenue, Glassport, was dead today from the hammer blows inflicted by her husband, Michael, 52, who killed himself following an argument in their home October 9, according to the Coroner's report.

After beating his wife with the hammer, Donoghue went to the cellar and ended his life by slashing his throat with a razor.

SMITH REPEATS HOOVER 'DRY' CHARGE

By CHARLES BAYER
Universal Service.

TROY, N. Y., Nov. 3.—Flailing away with both fists, Alfred E. Smith last night put in several more telling licks for the Democratic national and state tickets, deriding President Hoover and Col. William J. Donovan, Republican nominee for Governor.

He accused Hoover of attempting, in his Madison Square Garden speech, to scare the American people, and declared that this cannot be done. He assailed the Republican tariff and Hoover's effort in New York City to defend it.

Smith, quoting Hoover, agreed that the mastery of government cannot be extended over the people and commented that "that is exactly what is wrong with the American people."

RENEWS DRY CHARGE

Speaking before a highly enthusiastic crowd of 2,000 in the Music Hall, Smith again accused Hoover of being "the dry leader of the United States."

He sallied with the crowd and was happy in the good-humored raillery from the gallery, laughing when a man upstairs yelled:

"We had chicken yesterday and all we got today is the feathers."

There was no questioning his earnestness about urging election of Roosevelt and Garner. He repeated and reiterated that cause, and he went to considerable trouble to advance Lieut.-Gov. Lehman for Governor and United States Senator Wagner for re-election.

FLAYS DONOVAN

But his greatest fervor and his greatest joy and in consequence, the greatest enthusiasm of the sympathetic audience was when he smote Col. Donovan.

He flayed Donovan as having, in 1921, obtained the approval of the drys and demanded to know whether that bond still maintained. He held it did, since the drys recently professed accord with Donovan and more especially because Donovan has upheld Hoover, who, Smith insisted, is the nation's leading prohibitionist.

G. O. P. RALLY IN M'KEESPORT

More than 3,000 attended a Republican mass meeting last night at the John H. Harris Theater, Walnut street, McKeesport.

The principal speakers were Mrs. Catherine Taliaferro, whose son is a candidate for Congress in New York City, and William H. Coleman, county chairman.

Short addresses were also made by W. D. Mansfield, County Commissioner and chairman of the meeting; Mayor George Lysle, Congressman Clyde Kelly and James K. Ruby, candidate for the State Legislature.

Mrs. Taliaferro spoke on "The General Principles of the Republican Party."

Coleman told the audience President Hoover saved Germany from financial ruin by issuing the moratorium when he did. Coleman complimented Alfred E. Smith for saying in one of his speeches that a depression cannot be blamed on one political party.

Fort Says Democrats Lack Economic Plan

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said here last night the Democrats have not made "a single contribution to economic thought" and have heaped "nothing but criticism and abuse of the administration."

Democrats themselves have traced the depression to the stock market crash and Franklin D. Roosevelt, as Governor of New York, should have curbed speculation, he added.

Roosevelt to Vote At Hyde Park Home

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Gov. Roosevelt will cast his vote November 8 at Hyde Park, his country home, it was said at the executive mansion today.

The Governor and Mrs. Roosevelt have always voted at the small village near Poughkeepsie and they registered there again this year.

Elected on Smith Ticket, Dies at 59

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Former Lieut. Gov. Harry C. Walker, 59, who went into office in 1919 with Gov. Alfred E. Smith, died at his home last night.

At the time of his death he was chairman of the Central New York Park Commission. He was also grand master of the grand encampment, Knights Templar.

Bank Contradicts Hoover's Dire Prophecy

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—President Hoover's prediction of "dire disaster to the American system" should the Democrats be restored to power was not confirmed by one of the country's largest banks, the National City.

Its monthly bulletin carried the following:

"There is no basis for prejudgment or anxiety.

"Candidates and party platforms both indorse principles of sound money.

"They are alike in recognizing the importance of balancing the budget.

REPEAL MEANS JOBS--CURLEY

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Mayor James H. Curley, of Boston, says repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment "would put a milion men to work overnight."

Speaking at a Democratic rally last night, he asserted that President Hoover blocked repeal, which he said would divert a billion dollars annually from bootlegging and racketeering to legitimate purposes.

Declaring the nation's principal problem is adversity, Mayor Curley said:

"Americans, divided into two classes, rich and poor, under the Republican administration have failed to solve this problem."

Lawrence Rupp, of Allentown, candidate for United States senator, discussed what he said was "a very decided shift of Republicans to the Democratic column." He said Democrats "had helped build up the nation, but the Republicans claimed all the credit."

Rupp asserted that in the past 10 years $4,000,000,000 had been refunded to various corporations and that many of the same concerns contributed to the Republican campaign.

MILLS AROUSES DEMOCRATS

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—Democratic leaders planned today a fighting answer to the fiery arraignment of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and the Democratic party hurled at a meeting in Brooklyn last night by Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills.

Roosevelt supporters were especially aroused over Mills' charge the Democrats could never effect repeal of prohibition because the drys of the South would remain dominant in the party.

LAUDS HOOVER AS 'FIGHTER'

DAYTON, O., Nov. 3.—(INS.)—President Hoover, in the late hours of the campaign, has been revealed "as a real fighting Quaker, thoroughly aroused, smashing down his opponents' positions one by one with irresistible logic," Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson today had told a big Republican rally here. Stimson declared:

"For three years his opponents have been telling you he was a cautious, slow and timid man, that he was not a leader and least of all a fighter.

"We who have been close to him know better."

Film Actor Taken East to Face Wife

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—In custody of New Haven (Conn.) authorities, James Hall, film actor, whose estranged wife, Mrs. Irene Hall, asserted he left her destitute, although he was making $1,000 a week, started last night to face a criminal charge of non-support.

Hall was arrested here October 12. He said he had sent Mrs. Hall several hundred dollars each month since his employment in motion pictures.

District Zionists Install President

Dr. M. B. Lichtenstein was installed as president of Pittsburgh District Zionists last night in the Young Men's and Women's Hebrew Association.

Other officers installed were: William I. Sivitz, Dr. A. H. Rosenberg and I. A. Swiss, vice presidents; Jacob Seder, recording secretary; A. Rogal, financial secretary, and Harry Caplan, treasurer. The meeting was addressed briefly by Nathan Straus, Jr., of New York.

Pitcairn Family Split Over Union League Row

PHILADELPHIA, No. 3.—(AP.)—The wealthy and socially prominent house of Pitcairn was divided against itself today over the presidential campaign.

And as a result, Harold, builder of autogiros, may be called upon to vote for or against his brother Raymond's detention as a member of Philadelphia's select Union League, a Republican club.

Harold is for Hoover; his attorney brother has bolted to the Roosevelt camp because of the Democratic party's wet platform.

Noting Raymond's bolt from the Republican camp, E. Lawrence Fell, president of the Union League, notified young Pitcairn he was expected to resign "to make a vacancy for one of several hundred Republican candidates waiting to be elected to membership."

Attorney Pitcairn flatly refused to resign and demanded a poll of the league members as to his ouster.

Harold will be among those asked to vote on the question. He was out of town today and could not be reached.

Paul Block Greeted On 55th Birthday

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(Universal.)—Scores of birthday greetings poured in upon Paul Block, publisher, yesterday, but the one most cherished was a giant telegram from the Boys' Baseball League, of Toledo, O.

It contained 1,500 words of congratulations. Grant Murray and Joe Keat arrived from Toledo to help two uniformed messenger boys deliver the greetings to Mr. Block, who was 55.

Pinchot to Delay Judge Appointment

Appointment of a successor to Judge Joseph M. Swearingen will be deferred by Gov. Pinchot until after the election, according to advices from Harrisburg. Gov. Pinchot accepted Judge Swearingen's request for retirement yesterday. The term of the jurist, attached to Common Pleas Court of Allegheny County, would have expired in 1938. He will draw his annual salary of $14,000 until that time.

Mrs. Owen Deplores Congress Ridicule

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, Florida congresswoman, told the Women's City Club here yesterday that ridicule of Congress, like the mother-in-law jest, is largely a habit—and unjustified.

West View to Hold Rally for Hoover

West View Republicans will hold a "Vote for Hoover" rally tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in West View Junior High School, with Charles C. McGovern, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners; Congressman Harry A. Estep and Edmund F. Erk, and State Senator Herman Brandt included on the speakers' list. James H. Dunn will preside.

Moschzisker Breaks Silence to Aid Hoover

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3—(AP.)—Robert von Moschzisker, former chief justice of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, broke a political silence of 30 years yesterday to plead for the re-election of President Hoover.

Addressing the last of a series of political luncheon meetings of the Yale Club, he denounced Democratic platform pledges as "insincere and impossible."

Dormont Democrats Hold Mass Meeting

Several hundred residents of Dormont last night attended a mass meeting at Hillsdale School, Hillsdale avenue, and heard speakers urge the election of Roosevelt and Garner. The meeting was under auspices of the Dormont Roosevelt-Garner campaign committee. A street parade preceded the meeting.

Do you know how?

. . . to achieve a bread stuffing when there's no opening in the roast for a stuffing? Have you ever scalloped sweet potatoes and apples? McCanns dietician tells you how on a little leaflet that goes with each pork roast sold at McCanns this weekend.

You can't see the flavor but how you can taste it

JURIST RULES JANITORS OFF VOTE BOARDS

Judge Frank P. Patterson has nothing against school janitors, but he has found a clause in the law that forbids all public employes to serve on election boards.

In Homestead and North Braddock, where the voting places are in the school houses, the janitors were chosen judges of election last year.

But Judge Patterson ruled late yesterday that Michael Yasovsky, janitor, elected judge of election for the Second District of the First Ward, North Braddock, was not qualified. The judge announced a hearing Monday for applicants for the position. Thomas J. Kane, janitor, elected judge of the Second District of the Third Ward, Homestead, was declared ineligible for the same reason, and Fred Miller was appointed.

TUNNEL CIRCLE TO BE SHORTER

Plans to reduce the size of the Liberty Tubes traffic circle and to install an electric signal system to handle traffic have been approved by the County Commissioners and the work authorized.

The scheme to reconstruct the approach to the tubes was submitted by Director of Highways Frank J. Chester. Work will start within a few days.

A platform will be installed for a traffic director during rush hours.

Painting the walls of the tubes has been such an improvement that the commissioners authorized C. J. Queenan, superintendent of tunnels, to paint the ceilings and curbs at an approximate cost of $600.

GIVE YOUR STOMACH ONE HOUR'S HELP

That "lump" you feel an hour or so after eating, is a symptom of slow stomach. This very common condition can be remedied.

Instead of taking soda, or anything else you must take the rest of your life, try some diapepsin. Each tablet saves half an hour's digestion time. If your stomach is one hour slow in emptying, just take two tablets of diapepsin and all that gas, sourness, and distress after meals will be gone.

One box of Pape's Diapepsin will test your stomach and correct your digestion time. Then eat anything you like, and it will digest like crackers and milk! Keep on with diapepsin a few days, until the stomach is doing its work without need of help. When it slows down, take diapepsin again; it's good for the digestive system and can't hurt you.

Pape's Diapepsin may end all your "stomach trouble" and is certainly worth trying!

Pape's DIAPEPSIN Compound

Prompt Care for a Cold Avoids Weeks of Illness

Dr. Copeland

Many letters come to me asking how to prevent the common cold, "Grippe," "influenza" and catarrhal fever" are some of the names given this condition.

When the attack is mild it is referred to as a cold, but if it is more severe it is called grippe. When the infection occurs among a great number of persons, assuming the nature of an epidemic, the disturbance is usually regarded as influenza.

It is difficult to distinguish between the different forms of infection. Indeed, many authorities believe they are identical. Anyhow, my readers are anxious to dodge the evil effects of the ailment, whatever its name or nature.

The common cold is an acute infectious disease, of which the exact cause has not been discovered. It is most frequently met in the winter and spring.

Everyone is familiar with the symptoms of this disorder. The sufferer complains of a "cold in the head," headache, chills and pains all over the body. An annoying cough may follow, with considerable pain and soreness in the chest.

How can we prevent this troublesome and disabling ailment? Chilling of any portion of the body and excessive fatigue lower the resistance to infection, hence great care should be taken to avoid exposure and overexertion, particularly during winter months. Since the disease spreads rapidly by contact, it is best to keep as much as possible out of crowded and poorly ventilated places. Guard against cold and dampness. Make sure that you receive sufficient sleep and rest.

If you have a cold, give it the proper attention. Do not subject yourself and others to any unnecessary dangers. Stay at home if you do not feel well. If fever, chills and body pains persist, stay in bed, heeding the warning signs of Mother Nature.

Just a day or two in bed may save you many weeks of unnecessary and possibly dangerous illness. Warmth, proper medicine and simple but nourishing foods will hasten recovery.

Let me give you a few rather specific directions. If you feel cold coming on, go home at once an get into a tub of water as hot as you can stand. Stay in it half an hour, drinking during that time a lot of hot water or hot lemonade.

Rub off briskly with a coarse towel, then go to bed at once, between blankets. If things proceed as we wish, you will perspire very freely. At the end of an hour or two, rub off with alcohol or cool water; then go back to bed at once, between blankets.

The next morning you should feel fine. If you don't, you need a doctor. You should place yourself then in the care of your physician, and he will give you the necessary medicine and advice.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of giving prompt attention and proper care to a cold. Neglect may lead to a more serious ailment.

AGED BATTLER HELD AS CROOK

William Hall, aged pickpocket arrested during the Halloween celebration in Dormont, today was identified by City Detective William O'Bryan as an old-time crook here who battled numerous officers. According to O'Bryan, Hall during the world series in 1909 was arrested after a battle by Detective John F. Lally on a Fifth avenue street car while en route to the game.

He also battled with former Supt. of Detectives Thomas A. McQuaide when the latter was detailed to Indianapolis during a convention, O'Bryan said. An old circular in the Detective Bureau says Hall is wanted in Wilkes-Barre for the theft of a horse in 1914.

Many Puzzled, But One Enthusiast Says It's Easy

Who said Sun-Telegraph Cipher No. 3 was a tough one? Well, a lot of folks.

But John D. Crawford, of 4148 Perrysville avenue, is like the man who defied the alligator and denied the allegation—he called the Cipher Editor shortly after he bought yesterday's Sun-Telegraph and said:

"Aw, that one's easy. You gave it away with that clue that 'JUCB' means 'last.'

"Why, I worked that in eight minutes. Give us some tough ones, will you?"

The Cipher Editor promised a tough one for the sharks but enough fans had a struggle with No. 3 to justify giving you clues today.

What you need more than anything else in working the puzzle is a letter frequency table. By stuyding Cipher No. 3, you can readily see that certain letters have been used in place of others.

Therefore, if you know how often the letters of the alphabet appear in average use, and study Cipher No. 3 hard enough, you should be able to decipher it with ease.

For cipher fans who are still stymied on this puzzle, the Sun-Telegraph today reprints Cipher No. 3 and a letter frequency table compiled by cipher authorities. Juggle them around and let the Cipher Editor know how quickly you solved this problem.

Keep the frequency table, for you'll probably need it in working other ciphers.

And tomorrow we'll give you the answer and pass on to the next lesson—and Cipher No. 4 will be a good test for you.

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare, and costs very little, but it positively has no equal for quick, lasting relief.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and children love its taste.

This simple mixture soothes and heals the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

TREAT A COLD IN THE FIRST STAGE
—and You Nip It in the Bud!

A cold ordinarily progresses through three stages: The Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, 1 to 3 days; the Mucous Secretion Stage. Relief in the first stage is far easier than in the later stages. In fact, it is taking chances to let a cold run beyond 24 hours.

As soon as you catch a cold the wise thing to do is to take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. This famous tablet stops a cold quickly because it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels. It kills the cold germs and fever in the system. It relieves the headache and grippy feeling. It tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. That is the treatment a cold requires!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is effective, but harmless. Contains no narcotics and produces no bad after-effects. For years it has been the reliance of thousands in all cases of colds and grippe. Every drug store in America sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Handy, pocket-size box, cellophane-wrapped. Get it today. Resent a substitute.

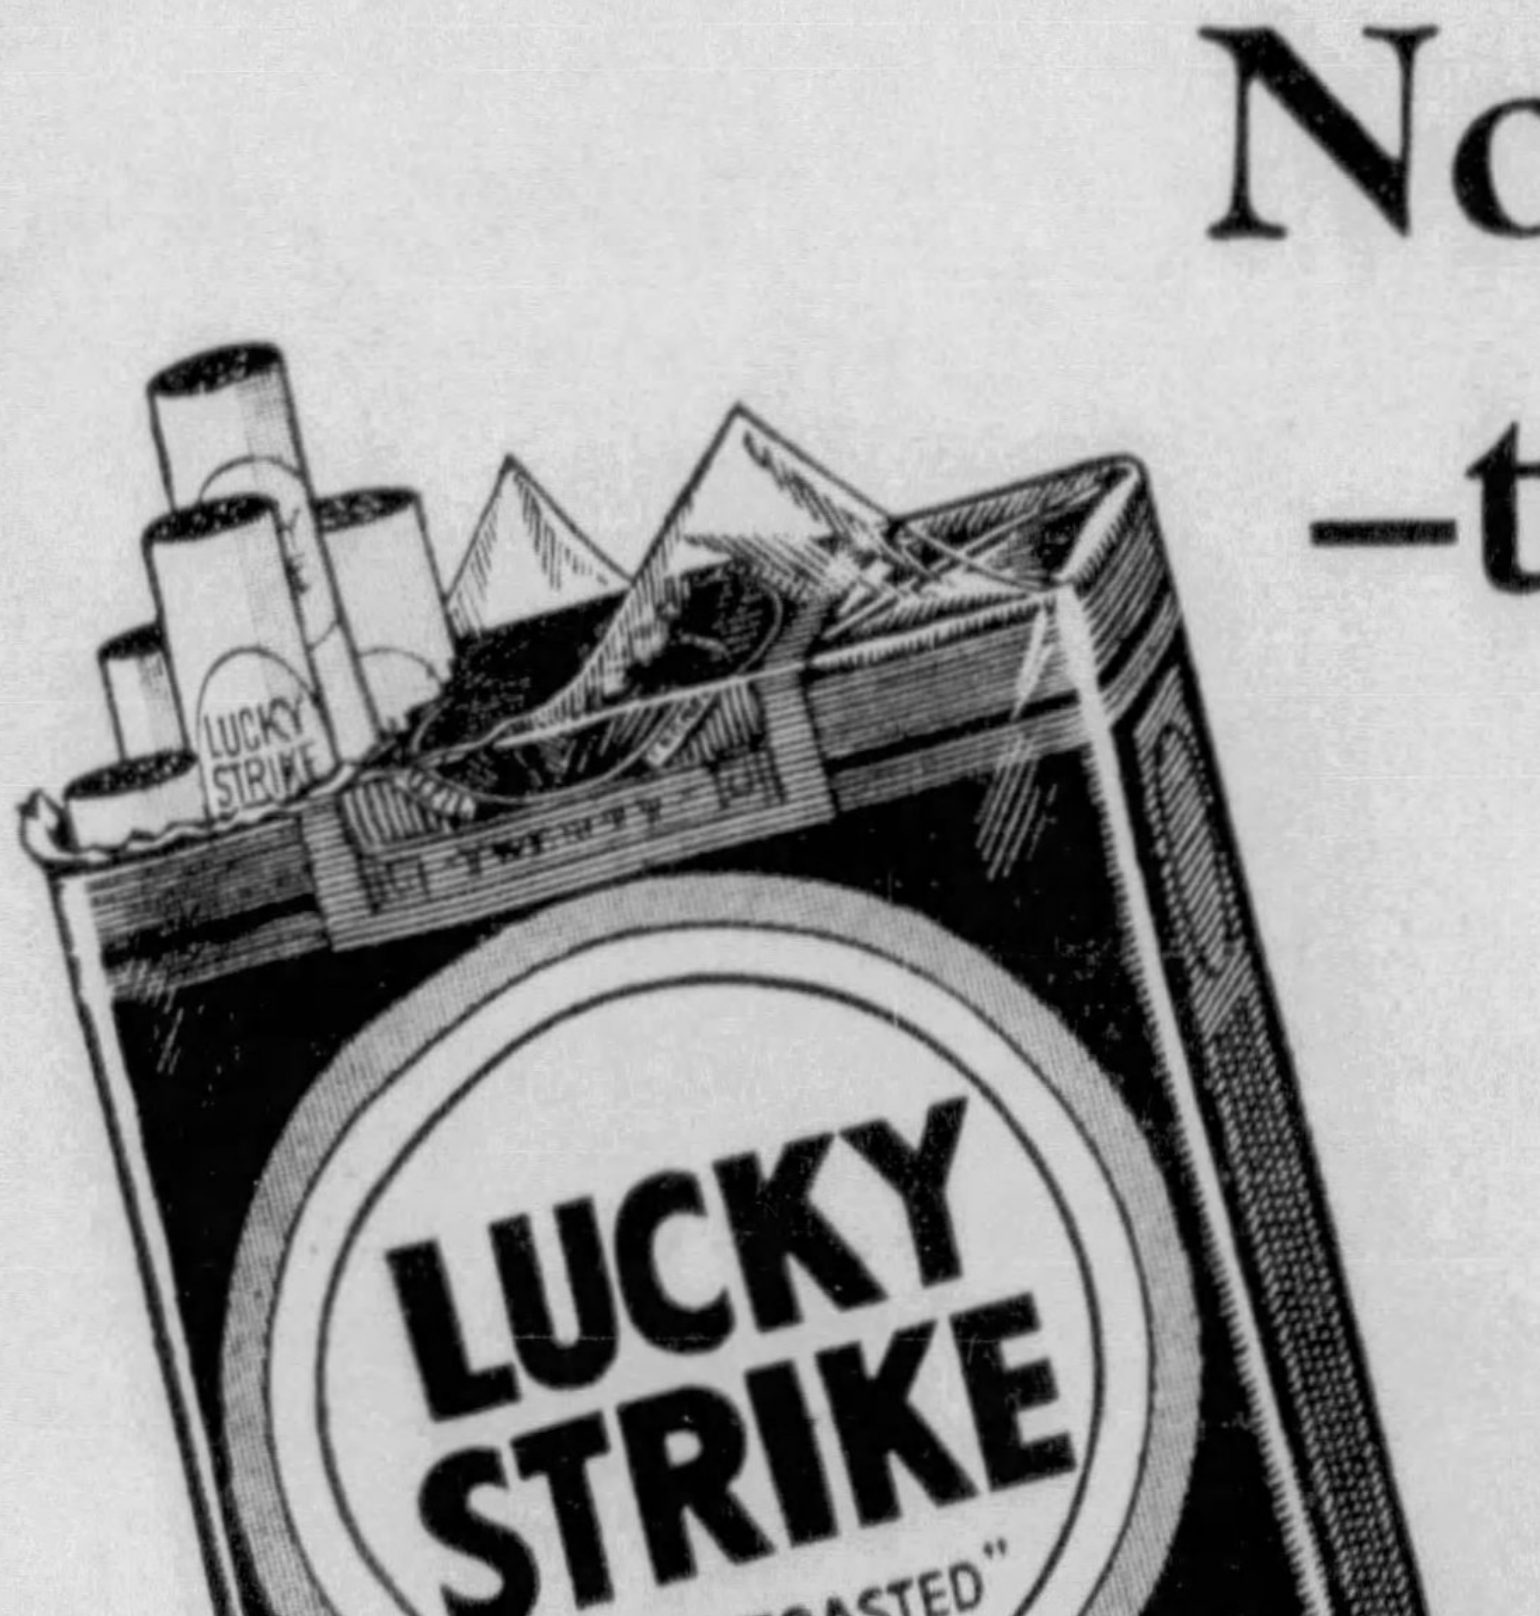
"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by Herbert Roese, celebrated painter . . . inspired by the bitter hardships endured by America's first settlers in their conflict with raw, wild nature (1620). "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild



Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

GLASSFORD DESCRIBES 'RED' SCARE IN WASHINGTON

they were more belligerent than the B. E. F. in general I varied somewhat my usual method of handling them.

Curtis for Ouster

A series of conferences began between Vice President Curtis, the Capitol Police Board and myself. While members of the House were encouraging the men to stay, the Vice President wanted them driven away. He demanded forcible action, but insisted force should not be used. Sergeant-at-Arms Barry, a charming old gentleman personally, was fuming and demanding that soldiers be called because, from his point of view, the police under my command were either unwilling or powerless to drive the veterans from the vicinity of the Capitol.

Concurrent with these difficulties at the Capitol were difficulties with the District of Columbia Commissioners. More veterans had arrived at some of the camps and were without shelter. I had called upon my friend, Gen. Stephan, commanding the National Guard of the District of Columbus, and obtained 16 tents for the men.

Commissioner Luther Reichelderfer called me to his office and demanded to know why I had done this, and Commissioner Crosby informed me they wished no more tents supplied the veterans. When I asked him if he wanted the veterans who were coming in to live out in the open he inferred that was the desire of the authorities. He also informed me, angrily, that I was violating my oath of office in not enforcing to the letter the various city ordinances.

Warns Officials

I told the commissioners they failed to understand the situation and should realize that unless action was taken by Congress on the bonus bill and relief measures, there was the probability that thousands more veterans, thousands of unemployed and thousands of Communists and radicals would descend upon Washington. I explained just what influence I had with the veterans and what the result might be throughout the country if force or coercive measures were used. Finally, I again urged them to visit the camps, talk with the men and get a first hand knowledge of the problem. This they again declined to do, following out their policy of ignoring the realities of the emergency. Nothing was settled.

On July 14 a special conference was called by the Capitol Police Board. Mr. Barry was more upset than ever and read one of the circulars distributed by the Communists. He evidently took seriously, bombastic phrases used by the radicals and again talked of having troops called out. I tried to calm him and his associates, explaining that the Communists were a mere handful of men, separate and distinct from the B. E. F. and from the Robertson picketers outside. Nothing was decided and I left the conference to evict, on orders from the commissioners, some newly arrived veterans who had taken possession of some empty houses on New York avenue.

Meets MacArthur

That done, I returned to my office in time to receive a call from Commissioner Crosby, who wanted to know if I had made a request for troops. I assured him I had not and he ordered me to meet him immediately at the office of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff of the United States Army.

I arrived there at 5 p. m. and found Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, Gen. Perry L. Miles and several other officers present. Gen. MacArthur explained in detail the legal procedure necessary in calling out federal troops and reviewed the veteran situation. He was highly complimentary in his statement of the manner in which this emergency had been handled. He stated that the Army would not be used unless ordered by the President.

Admiral Henry V. Butler then arrived with the startling information that 60 Marines were on their way to the Capitol, under orders to assist the metropolitan police in clearing the Capitol grounds. I had received no orders to clear the grounds and certainly had made no request for the Marines.

At my request Admiral Butler, by telephone, ordered the Marine detachment to be returned to their barracks and held in reserve. Admiral Butler and Gen. Miles accompanied me to the Capitol to ascertain the situation.

Marines Ordered Out

We went into conference with the Capitol Police Board and were joined shortly by Vice President Curtis. Admiral Butler explained that he had ordered the Marines to the Capitol at the request of Mr. Curtis, transmitted by one of the admiral's liaison officers.

Vice President Curtis asserted he would no longer suspend any of the regulations covering the Capitol grounds and declared he wanted them enforced. He made it clear, however, that he did not want force used or violence invited, stating his belief that the veterans could be induced to leave the grounds without forcible measures.

Although I protested that the action which Mr. Curtis proposed might solidify the entire group of veterans in Washington and greatly aggravate the situation, Mr. Custis remained firm in his demand and angrily left the conference. Shortly after I informed a group of newspaper men that the Capitol grounds were to be cleared as soon as I could complete the necessary police arrangements.

While engaged with the reporters, Senator Hiram Bingham came up and took me to his office. He disagreed with the Vice President's policy and called him and President Hoover on the telephone. After some time he effected a compromise by which only the plaza immediately in front of the Capitol would be cleared. This I proceeded to do.

The fact that the Marines had been called spread through the city and a large and excited crowd was assembled. Fortunately it was good tempered and the clearing of the area decided upon was effected quickly and easily, the "death march" veterans yielding ready obedience to my orders.

Takes Responsibility

Later in the evening an assistant to one of the members of the Capitol Police Board undertook to interpret to me some of the Capitol regulations. I told him to please inform the board that hereafter I would take no orders from any one with refereince to the police of the Capitol grounds excepting the Vice President or Speaker of the House. I had had enough of divided authority, of vacillating policies and officials who lost their heads in an emergency. Thereafter I assumed sole responsibility and retained control of the situation until Congress adjourned and the "death march" terminated in good order.

The last day of Congress was hectic. The "death marchers" were overshadowed by the arrival at the Capitol grounds of the entire B. E. F. Commander Waters had ordered his men to keep away from the Capitol during the dramatic demonstration conducted by Roy Robertson, his rival for notoriety.

Thousands of veterans surged around on the far side of the plaza and were joined by thousands of spectators, always more difficult to control than the veterans themselves.

The situation was critical, but not one policeman used his club or lost his temper. Waters and a few others were arrested. His followers were stopped, but when the police started to push them back they sat on the ground and howled for Waters' release.

The only thing left to do was to keep the demonstrators under good-natured control until they wore themselves out. I did not regard the situation as serious, because I knew it to be merely a dramatic effort on the part of Waters to restore the prestige and notoriety which had been shorn from him by the more energetic Robertson.

White House Fears

On the other hand, the administration was in a panic. It was feared that the demonstration would be transferred to the White House the moment Congress adjourned, but this I was able to circumvent except for the small radical group under John T. Pace.

In the White House grounds a detail of my motorcycle officers were waiting to escort the President to the Capitol, a ceremony traditional to his high office at the adjournment of Congress.

Suddenly some 30 Communists arrived to start a picket. A few were arrested and the others dispersed. A crowd of spectators had gathered.

One of my police inspectors received a message from a secret service man inside the White House fence. He came to me and said:

"The President sends word that if the crowd is not dispersed in a very few minutes he will call out the troops."

This time the troops were to be called out to dispenrse a crowd of idly curious citizens.

Toward midnight Congress adjourned. The President remained at the White House and my motorcycle officers were dismissed.

The impression left with the public and with the veterans was that Mr. Hoover was afraid to make the trip to the Capitol.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Retort Discourteous

Had you not thus unkindly
Severed our lives in twain,
How could I madly, blindly
Distill a song from pain?

Had you not caused this sorrow
That aches and will not heal,
How could each cold tomorrow
Bring forth my lyric squeal?

And oh, how could my singing
Have had so sad a theme,
Had you not come a-ringing
The knell of our bright dream?

Ah, well, I'll not be keeping
You, love, in ignorant bliss;
I'd have done my metric weeping
Pretty much like this!

—D'Annunzio Cohen.

In Other Words

Benny Rubin, one of the better comedians, is toying with words and names in sentences. He offers these: "Fazenda Moon Comes Over the Mountain" . . . "Jol-son More Chance" . . . "Keep the Home Fires Bernie" . . . "Jessel Little Love a Little Kiss" . . . "Cantor Hear Me Calling Caroline?" . . . "Way Down Upon the Swanson River" . . . "Tibbett Toe Thru the Tulips" . . . "Menjou and I Were Young, Maggie" . . . "Gleason to the Mocking Bird" . . . "I'm Dempsey With Tears In My Eyes," and "It's Three McLaglen the Morning."

Imagine!

In the World-Telly's Situations Wanted Men columns the other day, was this:

Izzy Elinsonism

The return of the saloon may not bring better times, but still it would be fun to feel a brass rail through those thin soles.

Contentment

Izzy Duncan, 62, writes from the Berks County Almshouse, Reading, Pa.:

"Dear Mr. Winchell—I see by your column that all the letters you receive are from poor, unfortunate souls. I just want to say that people are using the so-called depression for an excuse to grumble and growl. I think today offers one greater and better advantage than any period in the history of our country.

"Food is plentiful, work is scarce, the weather is swell, the movies are worse, and the crooning can be changed to a swell political speech by the turning of a dial. Where else in this world can one find such perfect bliss? One retires at the hour one pleases, wakens and arises the same, eats the best, lolls around in the sun, and reads if one cares.

"You ask, but where does the money come from for all this? The county pays for it, you dub! I'm living in this poorhouse. Hurrah for present times. To Hell with the Depression. On with the Dance. O-Kay America!"

As If We Didn't Know

At this tardy date Len Traube discovers that "The Cat and the Fiddle" show is a meowiscal.

Controversy

"Dear Winchell," wires Fred Berrens, "anent your paragraph about Miss Petkere's six-note song. It certainly is unusual I recall only two ditties that had it Bye, Bye Blues and When Buddha Smiles at Me stop as far as Barris is concerned I have one hundred dollars for your pet charity if Barris or any other human being can produce a published popular number confined to a three note range as Barris claims to have stop I play 300 songs weekly over CBS and I know something about songs and I don't want to appear smart alecky, either."

How Em-Barrissing!

Oop!

Recently President Hoover, on his way to speak before a Cleveland crowd, paused in Akron. He gave a 10-minute talk there from the rear platform of his special train.

Among other things, Mr. Hoover said:

"I was the instigator of the five-day working plan!"

"Aw, we're way ahead of you!" barked C. Horne, a towner; "we're on a three-day week plan now!"

A Form of Criticism

Joe Cunningham, who will guarantee the Friars' dinner to Jack Benny against flopping on November 18, passes this along.

Joe Laurie, Jr., was saying:

"I'm to open at Loew's State, so I guess I'd better rehearse my act—I might not remember it."

To which Jane Chapin stifled:

Pitt Win in Hearst News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The spectacle of the "Fighting Irish" football team from Notre Dame going down to defeat before Pitt is pictured in the current issue of the Hearst Metrotone News, showing in the Penn, Fulton and other theaters. Pictures show forward passes of the Ramblers repeatedly stopped and the touchdowns of Sebastian and Dailey as Pittsburgh wins, 12-0.

President Hoover's invasion of New York City also is shown. There are scenes of the great crowd about Madison Square Garden and of the efforts of the harried policemen to keep them back after the Garden had been filled to overflowing. Hightlights of the Republican standard bearer's speech follow.

A confession of crime and the folly of it is brought to the screen as Arthur Barry makes his confession in Newark police headquarters, where he is being held before being returned to prison from which he escaped to complete his 25-year sentence.

Research on Picture Unearths Odd Fact

Doing research for "The Sign of The Cross," Waldemar Young discovered that there were no fiddles with bows until the Sixteenth Century. Nero's famous instrument actually was a square box with strings across it. One twanged it with the fingers and called it a fidicula. So, to put it accurately, Nero fidiculad while Rome burned.

Joan May Get New Type Role

By HARRISON CARROLL
(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3. After many pleas, Joan Crawford will get a role that does not require her to be the modern girl.

Her next picture, I have it on good authority, will be an original war story by William Faulkner, author of the sensational "Sanctuary," and calls for Joan to play an English girl engaged in overseas work.

Unlike Mr. Faulkner's recent novels, the theme and treatment are romantic. For several weeks now, the author has been working with Howard Hawks on the idea. They have nearly completed the screen play, and the picture will start, under Hawks' direction, in about two weeks.

Joan Crawford

All of which should be good news to Joan. She has repeatedly asked Irving Thalberg for a chance to do a different type of role—that was one reason why she wanted to play Sadie Thompson. Now she is to get the opportunity, and under the watchful eye of her own studio.

There will be three important masculine roles in the film—Joan's brother, her English lover and her American sweetheart. So far, none has been definitely filled.

TOWN GOSSIP

The Marx Brothers, by the way, have changed the locale of their new comedy from a mythical kingdom to a republic. "It costs $300 a day to get a good king," explains Groucho, "but we can get a president for $175." The actual reason is the problem of foreign censorship. Many European countries eliminate all humorous references to royalty.

With or without motion pictures of a hurricane, Josef von Sternberg has returned to Hollywood. I met him on the Paramount lot, but he refused to talk about his mission to the West Indies. During the trip, he spent 80 hours in the air.

Maureen O'Sullivan

George O'Brien is rightfully upset over the story that his double was injured during the filming of a scene at Sonora. Actually, it was a man doubling for Maureen O'Sullivan and George himself was injured at the same time. He can show a half-mile of bandages to prove it. In George's case, it is no publicity story that he does all his own stunts.

TELLING IT BRIEFLY

Latest star to take up golf is Jean Harlow. She hasn't made an appearance on a course as yet, but is working hard on practice lessons . . . James Dunn is 10 pounds thinner after two weeks at that health club patronized by so many of the stars . . . Bob Montgomery has become such a keen amateur photographer that he carried three cameras to Honolulu . . . After stagging to many of the late spots recently, Frank Fay had Barbara Stanwyck to the Frolics . . . Buster Keaton in a canvas jacket, was dancing at the La Boheme. His unexpected antics on the floor, kept his partners in a state of nervous anticipation.

I am assured by Sam Rork that Clara Bow not only will make ing her to New York for the preing hert o New York for the premiere of "Call Her Savage." Everyone at Fox says this is a fine picture and that Clara does her best work to date.

You hear many conflicting rumors about the redhead's plans, but in all probability Sam has the real lowdown. He has known Clara for a long time, and she trusts him. Undoubtedly, she has an idea now that she doesn't want to work any more, but rest and persuasion may change her mind. Sam thinks a trip to Europe would help a lot.

Real Cyrano De Bergerac Had a Mighty Nose But No Sweetie

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Clayton Hamilton, who probably knows more about the history of drama than any other man in America since Brander Matthews died, has been going about Pittsburgh telling of Walter Hampden and "Cyrano de Bergerac," coming to the Nixon Theater next week.

This play by Edmond Rostand seems to have become one of those perennials of the theater which go on year after year like Tennyson's "Brook." Older plays of this sort were "Monte Cristo," which the father of Eugene O'Neill played more than 5,000 times, and "Rip Van Winkle," which Joe Jefferson must have played 3,000 times.

Mr. Seibel

But "Cyrano" does not seem to be a drama that will be associated with one single actor. Hamilton has been giving memories of three great actors he has seen in the role, Coquelin, Richard Mansfield and Walter Hampden.

While telling about Rostand's hero, Hamilton has had little to say about the real Cyrano, who was a dramatist himself. Before Rostand took him up, he was already the hero of Gautier's romance, "Captain Fracasse," one of the best things written by the author of "Mademoiselle de Maupin." About the only thing in Rostand's drama which is based upon fact is Cyrano's nose. There is also no doubt that he was a poet, from whom both Moliere and Voltaire got some ideas. But he was not even a real Gascon being born at Paris, and never had a love affair.

CYRANO'S LONG NOSE

An engraving made during Cyrano's life shows that he really was richly endowed with a nose which would have made him a fine prohibition sleuth in our day. But the nose was by no means "a peak, a cape, a peninsula," as Rostand describes it, nor did it have the fantastic proportions Coquelin and Mansfield gave it.

It was bony and beak-like, with a broad bridge, but not at all ludicrous. Cyrano could have smoked without raising an alarm of chimney fire; no one would have thought he carried his hat-hook on his face, or that it was the Red Sea when it bled.

PROUD OF NOSE

Cyrano himself seems to have been proud of his nose. He wrote a burlesque "History of the Moon States," in which he tells that none but large-nosed men lived there. The pug-nosed ones are killed immediately after birth. The reason he gives for this is that

> "Three thousand years have taught that a large nose is a sign of wit, affability, generosity and broad-mindedness; while a small nose indicates the opposite quality.

Cyrano was also a duelist, always looking for an excuse to fight. One of his biographers says he fought 1,000 duels. As he entered upon his career at 18 and died at the age of 36, he must have fought at least a duel a week in order to keep up the average.

HE JOINED THE CADETS

Though not a Gascon by birth, he did join the famous Gascon Cadets under their captain, Carbon du Castel-Jaloux. In a short time he earned for himself the title "Demon of Bravery." But a year after joining the cadets he was disabled for a time by a musket ball; two years later a sword gash in the throat put him on the retired list. Then he devoted himself to poetry and the gentle art of making enemies.

This he understood as well as Whistler in a later day. To several prominent personages he wrote:

> "If a cane could be sent on paper you would read this letter with your back."

He used to say of himself that he wrote with steel, in an age when they used quill pens.

So after all the Cyrano of the drama is not entirely an imaginary character. The real Cyrano was a child of his age. It was the age when Cardinal Richelieu and then Cardinal Mazarin ruled France and troubled Europe. It was the age when the "Three Musketeers" of Dumas were typical figures of chivalry. The play Rostand wrote belongs to the same class of romantic adventure stories written by Dumas. That's why it has a perennial appeal, especially in an age when romance has been nearly killed by psychoanalysis and the stock market.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By MARK HELLINGER

Old Bill

LIFE WAS just a sweet dream to Old Bill. Just an unending chain of sunny days and quiet nights. He never worked. Not Old Bill. Work, he felt, was meant for horses and women. The last bit of honest labor he did occurred on a summer day 26 years ago. On that day he lifted a plain gold band and placed it on a woman's finger. Then he wanted to sit down and rest . . .

Old Bill went through life like that. Kiddies came in the normal course of events. Six was the final total. Three were boys. Three were girls. Bill loved them to distraction. But he would't work to feed them.

So his wife had to do it. For years she bent over a tub full of clothes to earn a dollar here and there. At nights, she minded the neighbors' kids and herded them in the kitchen with her own.

Bill's main occupation was in walking up to Zeigmeyer's store around the corner. There he would sit most of the day, discussing politics, the Russian revolution, and the hussy who roomed at Frank Brown's house.

As he talked, he would dip his hammy fist into the prune box now and then. Sometimes, the hammy fist went into the cracker box. And sometimes the hammy fist went into the pickle jar. Thus he saved himself the trouble of going home to eat.

Zeigmeyer didn't mind. He knew that Old Bill was a worthless old codger. But Ziegmeyer liked to argue politics. And without Old Bill he would have felt lost.

"Now you take Mussolini," Old Bill would drawl. "There's a guy what done something. I don't mean he ain't got his faults, understand. 'Cause he has. But when he orders things done, they git done and no bones about it.

"Lookit the way them Eyetalians is building up their airyplanes. They got more airyplanes than the hull world put together. And let me tell you something, Zeigmeyer, they ain't aimin' to take no back sass from nobody."

Zeigmeyer would slice a pound of liverwurst before making a reply. Then, wiping his hands on his greasy apron, he would refute everything that Old Bill had said.

Back and forth. Back and forth. The arugent would last all day, with few interruptions. Now and then a customer would join in. Usually the customer got the worst of it though. Because Zeigmeyer and Old Bill would join forces against anyone who tried to but in.

Late at night, when only a feeble light burned in the back of Zeigmeyer's store, Old Bill would wander home, his hands in his pockets, and his head full of things he forgot to say to Zeigmeyer.

Old Bill's wife never waited up for him. She had given up the idea of pleading with him to get a job long ago. Within recent years she gave up washing because the three oldest children were working. The others were too young yet.

Thus Old Bill went through life. In the summer he sat outside of Zeigmeyer's store. In the winter he hunched his bony knees close to the pot-bellied stove. Year in and year out he led a placid existence.

But recently the children had avoided him. Old Bill needed dimes and quarters now and then for tobacco. And he had found it convenient to borrow from them. They didn't like the idea at all.

So Old Bil had to beg and borrow hs tobacco from Zeigmeyer. It worked for a week or two, but his old friend had shut down on him after that.

Thus, ne came home early one night. He had no tobacco and no money. He saw a light in the parlor. He stepped inside. Gertrude's boy friend was sitting on the parlor sofa. Gertrude was still upstairs dressing.

Old Bill greeted the young man with outstretched hand.

"Well, well, well," he said. "Looka who's here. Just the man I'm looking for." He dropped down on the sofa beside the visitor. "Lissen," he said, "I wanta make a business proposition with you.

"I'm a little short of money, see? And I'm gonna get a check in the mail tomorrow or the next day. And I was wonderin' if you would let me have a dollar 'til I get the check. I'll pay you back, a course. Could ya do it?"

"Sure," he said. "That's easy."

Old Bill got into a lot of trouble over that. Gertrude, when she heard it, had cried and gone to her mother with the story. Later, another visitor to the house had confessed that Old Bill had touched him for small sums, too.

So the children put the matter up to their mother. She'd either have to put him out, or they'd leave. The woman was very much distressd. She had no ardent love for Old Bill. He had long since killed that with his laziness. But there was a certain affection in her heart for the man with whom she had spent the best years of her life.

Finally, she agreed with her children. Old Bill would have to go. The boys agreed that they would each contribute a sum each week to the support of their father. He would not want for anything. They would see to that. But he would have to leave the house.

The old man was very much surprised when he walked into the parlor the next day and saw an old brown cardboard valise all packed with his clothes. He could not understand it at first.

His wife explained the situation. Old Bill listened in silence. His oldest son stood near the door and listened. Old Bill turned to him.

"Is that the way you feel about it, son?" he asked.

The boy nodded and turned his head away. Old Bill grabbed the bag.

"It's all right with me," he drawled. "If my own family don't want me, why, okay. No use getting upset about it. But, son, will you lend me $2? I got a special reason for asking for it."

The boy reached into his pocket and withdrew $2. He handed them to his father. Then an anxious look came into the boy's eyes.

"What do you want with the dough, dad?" he asked. "You don't have to tell me. I just wanted to know."

Old Bill smiled grimly. He turned as he walked out.

"Just watch tomorrow's paper," he said. "You'll see" . . .

That night the family became frantic. What did Bill want the two dollars for? What did he mean by "watch tomorrow's paper?" Did he want it for poison? Would he commit suicide? Would he do himself harm?

The children accused each other of putting Old Bill out. It wasn't right to do that. After all he was their father. Who started the thing anyway? Suppose he died? His blood would be on their hands. Everybody would know that Old Bill had been thrown out of his own house.

When the newspaper was left at the door the next morning, there was a mad scramble for it. Each member of the family took a sheet of it and scanned it quickly. There were no items about Old Bill. They looked again. Still they couldn't find anything. Then they saw it! Away down in the corner of the last page.

"Old Bill," it said, "will no longer be responsible for any debts contracted by his wife."

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The old belief that "art" cannot be made to order is disproved doubly in "Cyrano De Bergerac," Edmond Rostand's lyric heroic comedy in which Walter Hampden will be seen in the Nixon next week. The first order was given by Constantin Coquelin, the great French comedian upon which the mantle of Moliere had descended. He felt that he could do everything any great actor had ever done, so he called in Rostand and commissioned him to write a play that would combine farce, burlesque, high comedy, melodrama and tragedy, based on a theme of self-sacrifice, in which he could show his ability as a swordsman, love-maker and reader of grand poetic lines, as well as portrayer of the entire gamut of human emotions. "Cyrano" was the result of Rostand's work of more than a year on that "order." The second was given when Mr. Hampden, dissatisfied with existing English translations, set Brian Hooker to the task of making a suitable one for him.

Alden Chase will play the role originated by Paul McGrath when "The Good Fairy," last season's starring vehicle for Helen Hayes, is presented by the Edwin Vail Players in the Pitt next week. Betty Hanna, the new leading woman, will portray the part of the little movie usherette who has such a good heart that she upsets the lives of several persons most amusingly. Sam Flint will be seen as the honest old bachelor lawyer.

Vocational Pupils Favor Roosevelt

Franklin D. Roosevelt was the victor in a presidential straw vote by the pupils of Findley Township Vocation School, with 174 votes to President Hoover's 133. Norman Thomas received five.

Extra protection against winter COLDS

Pepsodent Antiseptic makes $1 equal $3 in fighting colds

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. Hence it goes 3 times as far. And whether you buy the 25c, 50c, or $1 size, you still get 3 times as much for your money.

FEWER colds this year—quicker relief from those you catch—and money saved besides. That's the promise Pepsodent Antiseptic makes you. Millions by experience can tell you it's true. Pepsodent Antiseptic is different from other leading mouth antiseptics.

$1 does the work of $3

Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs—it goes 3 times as far—gives you 3 times as much for your money and gives you extra protection against sore throat colds. In fighting stubborn colds, remember there really are only two leading kinds of mouth washes on the market. In one group is the mouth wash that must be used full strength to be effective. In the other group is Pepsodent Antiseptic, utterly safe when used full strength, yet powerful enough to be diluted with two parts of water and still kill germs in less than 10 seconds!

Don't fool yourself

It is bad enough to pay the extra cost of using antiseptics that must be used full strength . . . it's worse to dilute them and fail to kill the germs . . . so choose the antiseptic that kills the germs even when it is diluted. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—and be safe.

IMPURE BREATH
(Halitosis)

The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds prove its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember, Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, even when diluted with water it still kills germs.

Some of the 50 different uses for this modern antiseptic

Throat Irritations
Voice Hoarseness
Bad Breath
Cold Sores
Canker Sores
Mouth Irritations
After Extractions
After Shaving

Glassford, Butler, Gibbons Broadcast B. E. F. Story From Philadelphia

The most extensive array of notable personalities to date in the present election campaign passes through the spotlight of the ether waves tonight.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential candidate, and Owen D. Young, noted industrialist, speaking at a rally in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, under the auspices of the Republican for Roosevelt League, broadcast over nationwide networks of the National Broadcasting Company, with KDKA as the local outlet, from 10:15 to 11 p. m. Mr. Young, chairman of the board of General Electric, precedes Gov. Roosevelt to the microphone.

Mr. Young

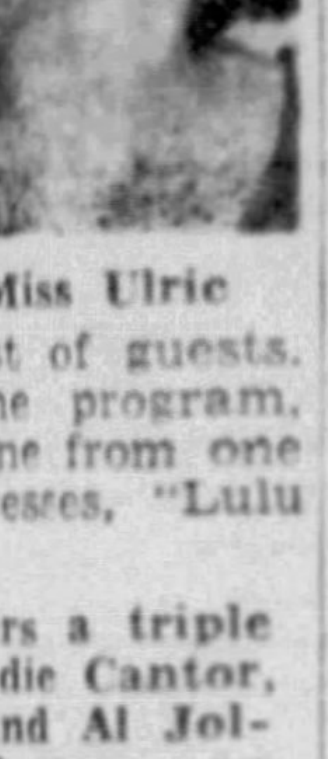
The three outstanding critics of the Hoover administration for routing the bonus army from Washington go on the air over NBC-KDKA at 9:30 tonight. They are Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, former chief of police in Washington, whose own story of the B. E. F. rout and of the forces behind it is a current daily feature of the Sun-Telegraph; Floyd Gibbons, newspaper correspondent and "headline hunter," and Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler. The broadcast, originating in the Philadelphia Opera House at a meeting of the Non-Partisan Veterans' Organization, is made possible through arrangements made by NBC and the Democratic National Committee, which sponsors the program.

Fannie Hurst, the noted novelist and short story writer, and Daniel J. Tobin, head of the Labor Department of the Democratic National Committee, speaking in behalf of Roosevelt's campaign for the presidency, are listed to broadcast over CBS-WJAS for 45 minutes beginning at 10 p. m.

* * *

Program Pointers

Lenore Ulric, Broadway actress; Phil Baker, vaudeville and musical revue comedian, and Hallie Stiles, former member of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, are co-starred as guest artists with Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees over WCAE tonight at 8 o'clock. Aleen Bronson, vaudeville comedy actress, and Sammy Herman and the Green Brothers, xylophone trio, complete the list of guests. As a highlight of the program, Miss Ulric does a scene from one of her greatest successes, "Lulu Belle."



Miss Ulric

Georgie Price offers a triple impersonation of Eddie Cantor, Maurice Chevalier and Al Jolson in dialogue and song on WJAS at 7:45.

The legend of Joshua King, miser of Arrowhead Canyon, his hoarded savings and a plot to rob him of his wealth is the "Death Valley Days" dramatization on KDKA at 9.

Howard Thurston, internationally-known magician, makes his bow in a two-a-week series of broadcasts over NBC-KDKA with a dramatic presentation, "The Death Ray Mystery," tonight at 8:45. Thurston is supported by an all-star cast.

Ward Wilson, the "ghost" announcer, adopts the role of a Pullman porter on KDKA at 7:15 tonight.

Dr. Thomas D. Baker, president of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, tells "Why I Shall Vote for Hoover" under the auspices of the Hoover Club of Allegheny County at 6:30 on KDKA.

A varied program, including "Louisiana Hayride," "Isn't It Romantic?" "Ploddin' Along" and "Japanese Sandman," is heard during the second of Jack Benny's new ginger ale broadcasts with Ted Weems on CBS-WJAS at 8:15.

"Show Boat" hits—"Old Man River," "Make Believe," "Why Do I Love You?" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man"—are highlights of Jack Denny's musical quarter-hour with Evan Evans, baritone, as soloist, at 8:45 on WJAS.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Arthur Reeve Brings Mystery Stories to Home Circle

That Home Circle program keeps adding laurels . . . On Saturday, Arthur B. Reeve, famous writer of detective fiction and creator of Craig Kennedy, the scientific detective, joins the ranks of Circle stars, inaugurating a series of weekly talks on "the Ten Best Mystery Stories" . . . With the addition of Reeve, Emily Post, formerly heard Saturdays, is scheduled on Monday and Albert Payson Terhune, originally a Monday speaker, moves to Wednesday, filling the period previously occupied by Bruce Barton, who has concluded his series of talks. John Erskine continues to be heard Thursdays and Hendrick Van Loon on Fridays, with Heywood Broun scheduled five times weekly.

Mr. Reeve

Geraldine Farrar, the noted operatic soprano, who has been taking an interest in Lanny Ross' work for the last few years, was his studio guest for the "Show Boat" program last week.

Investigation, following Myrt and Marge's first anniversary program last night, reveals that more than 125 characters have passed across the studio stage in the productions . . . and that at least 50 have appeared in episodes over a period of more than a week . . . that about 35 parts captured public fancy sufficiently to draw fan mail for the portrayers . . . that three have been "killed off" (but proved to be amazingly healthy ghosts and immediately secured roles in other radio productions) . . . and that Huston, the gangster, is still doing a stretch in Atlanta . . .

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasant results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

PAIN DEADENED CHEST COLDS LOOSENED WITHOUT DRUGS

Get quick relief from neuralgia pain, sciatica pain, neuritis pain, rheumatic pain, lame back, stiff neck, headache, strains and chest colds by rubbing plenty of Baume Bengue (pronounced Ben-Gay) on the spot. It doesn't blister or stain. Rub it in till it sinks down and soothes the pain or breaks up the chest cold. Take no drugs, for any drug that is powerful enough to "deaden" pain or loosen a chest cold may not be good for you.

But beware of imitations. Ask your druggist for Baume Bengue by name (called "Ben-Gay" in English). There are many analgesic baumes, mostly cheap imitations of Ben-Gay made out of synthetic drugs. That is why they are cheap. That is also why they are ineffective. Insist on Ben-Gay and you will get real results.

Democrats Warn of Possible Vote Error

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Mr. Shields

Pennsylvania Democratic leaders at last openly have arrived at the danger which confronts Gov. Roosevelt in Pennsylvania because of the presence on the ballot of a "Roosevelt" ticket which does not bear the name of the Democratic candidate for President.

Heretofore Democratic leaders, who themselves pre-empted the ticket, have affected to believe there was little danger mistaken voters would put a cross in the square after the "Roosevelt" ticket in the first column, and think they had thus registered a preference for the New York Governor. Even with a warning against that practice, there probably will be thousands of votes so cast, only to be wasted, and if the election should be extremely close in Pennsylvania that margin might be the difference between victory and defeat in the state for the Democratic presidential candidate.

Now the party leaders have had posters printed, listing the 11 party names in the first column. They are in order the Republican, Democratic, Socialist, Prohibition, Industrialist, Communist, Independent, Jobless, Liberal, Labor and Roosevelt.

* * *

Posters Point Out How To Vote for Roosevelt

The Independent, Liberal, Labor and Roosevelt have no presidential or vice presidential candidates, no names in the column labeled "presidential electors," and under which appear the names of the men contending for control of the administration.

The poster of the Democrats points this out, asking voters who wish to vote for Roosevelt under no conditions to put a mark after the name in the first or party column. They do not explain how a Republican who wishes to vote for the Democratic candidate for the presidency, but the remainder of the Republican ticket, may do so, it being thought that voters are sufficiently informed to do that if they wish.

* * *

This pre-emption of the Roosevelt party has not turned out well for Democratic managers. It has been seized on by many Republican candidates for lesser offices, all of whom would profit from the misplaced mark as the Democratic national candidates were penalized. Republican legislative candidates have been particularly successful in gaining this potential advantage. It may make a difference in some contests for the House and Senate of the state.

In poster form the explanation is clear, but it is not so easily clarified by orators, another prospect of confusion which the Democrats apparently did not foresee. If a Democratic speaker urges his auditors not to vote the "Roosevelt" ticket, but to vote for Roosevelt in the Democratic column, or by putting a mark in the square that bears the names of both Roosevelt and Garner as Democratic ticket, there are those who will be unable to understand, and who may perplexedly conceive that they are being asked by Democrats not to vote for Roosevelt.

Nothing, of course, could be farther from the intent of the Democratic managers. Hence the posters, reproductions of the ballot, which are to be widely distributed in an effort to prevent any diffusion of Roosevelt strength.

* * *

Letters being received in this office exhibit a continuing confusion about the electoral college, how its members are chosen, and what function they perform. There are two phases to the explanation, state and national.

Taking the nation first, there are 531 electoral votes, apportioned among the states, one for each Senator and member of Congress. The majority is 266, and it is this majority in the nation, rather than the popular vote, which decides who shall be President. In effect, each state votes separately for President, instead of joining in a national referendum.

The presidential candidate of each party picks his electors, and if the party on which they are named carries their state, to them is delegated the duty of voting for the candidate nominating them, which they do at a later date in their state capitals, thereafter certifying the result to Washington. It has occurred that where one party has secured a majority of the electors of a state, the rival party has gained one or two, because it has been possible to vote individually for electors as well as presidential candidates.

Electors' Names Here Negligible This Year

But so far as Pennsylvania is concerned, the names of these electors are negligible this year. Through amendment to the election laws, their names do not appear on the ballot, but only the names of the actual candidates for office. Thus, if Mr. Hoover gains the majority of the popular vote in Pennsylvania every elector nominated by him will vote for Hoover for President at the Harrisburg meeting, and the Roosevelt-chosen electors would vote for the Democratic candidate should he receive the majority.

In fact, Pennsylvania won't even know there are presidential electors, so far as the voting is concerned. You just vote your choices for President and Vice President.

Incidentally, Pennsylvania has 36 votes in the electoral college, one for each of its two Senators, and one for each of 34 congressmen. That's the second highest in the country, New York leading.

UPSHAW SEES DEFEAT OF HOOVER

Prohibition Candidate Here for Two Speeches

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was conceded Tuesday's election by the National Prohibition party's candidate, former Congressman William D. Upshaw, of Georgia, as he parried a direct question on the outcome of his own race upon arrival at the Fort Pitt Hotel today.

Declaring the Prohibition party would poll the greatest number of votes in its history, Upshaw commented on the outcome of the election by referring to the President's wet platform:

"Mr. Hoover threw away the only sure thing he had. That was the faith and support of the churchgoing masses of America."

TWO ADDRESSES

The former congressman who was a Democrat "until my party went drunk," gives two addresses here tonight. Following a talk at 8 o'clock in the North Side Carnegie Music Hall, the dry standard bearer will make a second speech in Allison High School, Wilkinsburg. Dr. E. J. Fithian, Grove City, dry candidate for United States Senator, and G. D. Harger, state chairman, also will be heard.

Upshaw spoke at Washington, Pa., last night. While en route here today by motor with the Rev. C. L. McKee, the car's gasoline tank showed its prohibition leaning by going dry and delaying Upshaw's arrival.

Senator David A. Reed's reported promise of beer in six months brought Upshaw's retort:

"That statement of Senator Reed's showed he is over-active to steal from the Democrats all the wet thunder possible."

FLING AT REED

Reed's further reported statement that Hoover would sign the bill brought the charge:

"If President Hoover should sign a 4 per cent beer bill, he will no more outrage the faith of the drys who elected him than he did when he allowed the Republican party platform to abandon the Eighteenth Amendment, and in his acceptance speech advocate a new amendment that would put liquor into the Constitution."

Defining the major parties' platforms, he said:

"The Democratic platform is one of bold badness. The Republican platform is an attempt at decent dampness. It's a weasel worded elongation. I've come to the conclusion that no party can be troubled to effectively handle the prohibition question which depends on the liquor vote for its election. We must have a party 100 per cent dry."

C. of C. to Frame Quality Campaign

Members of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce will meet at noon tomorrow to plan for Pittsburgh's participation in a "National Quality Movement."

The plan, in which radio, newspaper and other agencies will take part, provides for simultaneous luncheons of business groups over the country November 15. A radio hook-up will tie in the various groups, allowing each to participate.

The object is to promote quality merchandise.

VETERANS PLAN ARMISTICE MARCH

Pitt, Tech Corps Will Join Service Units In Nov. 11 Parade

Plans for Pittsburgh's Armistice Day parade were made at a meeting of 50 representatives of the Federation of War Veterans' societies in the Court House last night. County Controller Robert G. Woodside, chairman of the parade committee, presided.

A resolution was passed indorsing the proposal of the United States Army to establish winter citizens' training camps to care for unemployed young men of military age.

The parade will be held the morning of November 11, organizing in the vicinity of the Fifth Avenue High School, and following the route adopted in other years, crossing the Sixth Street Bridge and passing a reviewing stand on Ridge avenue.

It will be strictly a military parade, of veteran organizations and active service units of the Army and National Guard.

The full regimental organization of the 107th and 176th Field Artillery Regiments in addition to the R. O. T. C. of the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech schools will march in the Fifth Division. American Legion posts, Veterans of Foreign Wars posts, divisional, regimental and allied veteran societies will make up the other four divisions of the parade.

Word was received from Gen. Pelham D. Glassford that owing to his connection with the Washington celebration he would be unable to be present in Pittsburgh.

Col. E. P. Lawler, former commander of the 146th Infantry, 37th Division, and present assistant quartermaster general of Ohio; J. W. Maus, department commander of the United Spanish War Veterans; Maj. Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, of the 80th Division, and Brig. Gen. E. C. Shannon, of the 111th Infantry, 28th Division, have accepted invitations to be here.

Conservatory, Zoo Contracts Awarded

Public Works Director E. G. Lang today awarded a contract for piping in the Schenley Park Conservatory to the United District Heating, Inc., at its bid of $5,880. The Croninweth Electric Company was given the contract for replacing wires in the Highland Park Zoo at its bid of $2,411.

"I SUGGESTED TO THE SULTAN THAT THE BISON BE FENCED OFF UNTIL HE GOT HIS LAND LEGS AFTER THE LONG TRIP— "NO—HISTORY TELLS ME YOUR AMERICAN SLADANG A VERY STRONG ANIMAL"—THE NEXT MORNING THE AMERICAN BISON IMPORTED TO ASIA WAS DEPLETED BY FIFTY PER CENT

CHAPTER XIX.

Our last stop was Hong Kong where we unloaded the pair of bison on the Knowldoon Docks. Thousands of coolies work on these tremendous docks. Day and night they load and unload freight, some of them using the big cumbersome Chinese wheelbarrows, others working with carrying poles, and many of them bearing enormous loads on their shoulders. It is one of the world's most picturesque sights.

As the next boat for Singapore (my next stop) was not due until four days later, it was necessary to rig up a camp right on the dock where Lal could live with the animals and watch them.

I stopped at the Hong Kong Hotel and spent my time looking up old friends. A couple of days after our arrival in Hong Kong I decided to run over and see how Lal was making out on the dock. My visit was purely perfunctory for the boy was so trustworthy that I was sure he was giving the animals the proper care.

I found that Lal had rigged up quite an establishment. He had gathered up some old sailcloth and gunny sacks and dunnage boards and had built a tent-wall around the crates. I found him standing at the improvised entrance delivering a ballyhoo on the subject of his charges and collecting pennies—those big Chinese coppers as large as our quarters—from coolies who had made up their minds they would have to see these wonderful American animals that brought such good luck to the beholder.

A FLOATING MENAGERIE

Lal was not the least bit sheepish when I caught him. He said he felt sure I wouldn't mind—and he was right. He was taking good care of the animals and that was all that mattered. The boy did quite a business during his four days on the dock, playing to two or three hundred Chinamen.

The boat that took us to Singapore was an American freighter that made three stops in the Philippines—at Cebu, Iloilo and Zamboanga—to load copra, lumber and other cargo for Pacific Coast ports.

Invariably when I put in at Philippine ports on my way from Singapore or Calcutta to America with animals I have requests from American schoolteachers to permit them to bring children on board to view my specimens. Needless to say, I always comply; and when I have the time I make the rounds from cage to cage with the teachers and children and tell them all about the different animals.

Once when I pulled into these three ports on the S. S. Bearport with the largest collection of animals ever assembled on one vessel—a collection comprising enough specimens to equip a fair-sized zoo—the schools were closed so that the children could view this great floating menagerie. I acted as a combination guide and lecturer and answered hundreds of questions that the children fired at me.

CHILDREN INQUISITIVE

Always there were questions about the American buffalo. The text books used in these Philippine schools do not neglect the period in United States history when great herds of these animals roamed the western plains, and the children are tireless in their efforts to find out all about these species that so completely captivate them. One child looking at a huge Asiatic elephant, asked me, "Is the American buffalo as big as that?" Another wanted to know whether the bison could beat the Philippine domestic water buffalo, known as the carabao, in a fight. Inevitably other children sought information as to the number of buffalo that Buffalo Bill had killed. I answered their questions as best I could, the reply that made the deepest impression being my declaration that a full-grown American buffalo could dispose of the formidable carabao without much difficulty.

Now that I was returning to these Philippine ports where we had two and three-day stopovers, I decided to get in touch with the school authorities and give the teachers a chance to bring their children around for a look at my pair of bison.

Although there was much interest, the children, I regret to report, were uniformly disappointed. My specimens were only a little over half-grown and not filled out and they stood only about five feet at the shoulders. One of the children said: "When I saw you two years ago, Mr. Buck, you said an American buffalo could beat a carabao in a fight. Why, my father has a carabao that could whip these two together!"

When I arrived at Singapore the Sultan of Johore was away (Johore and Singapore are only about 14 miles apart). So I decided to leave one buffalo at my compound near Singapore and go on with the other to Rangoon where, in addition to depositing the shaggy visitor from America, I had important business involving four elephants I planned to land for zoos and circuses.

OFFICIAL DELIGHTED

I wired Friedlander that I was on my way to Rangoon with his bison and he met me at the boat with a motor lorry and a gang of zoo coolies. The zoo official was delighted with his acquisition and agreed right there on the dock to give me a fine elephant in exchange for it.

I supervised the uncrating of the bison and its installation in

WILL ROGERS SAYS

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Will Rogers

Don't you all kinder wish that the President of our country wouldn't have to run around all over the land getting upon a soap box to shout his merits like a backwoods congressman running for re-election? That's why a President's term should be for six years, no re-election, and be retired for life on half salary. Then he would serve with dignity right up to the finish, and wouldn't have to take part in this mess of promises, accusations and ballyhoo.

We thought when the radio was perfected and everybody could hear a speech, that it wouldn't be necessary to drag a President around over the country like a circus. But no, the state leaders must satisfy their vanity by having him appear "in person" in their state. But after all there is very little dignity, very little sportsmanship, or very little anything in politics, only "get the job and hold it." Yours, WILL.

QUIZ ASPIRANTS ON COAL POLICE

Candidates for the State Senate and House of Representatives are being asked to state their position on abolition of coal and iron police and kindred questions in a questionnaire sent out by the Pennsylvania Civil Liberties Committee.

The other questions are abolition of "yellow dog" contracts, described as preventing laboring men from joining a union, and elimination of privately-paid deputy sheriffs.

OUTSIDE FIRM CUTS PRICE ON CITY WORK

Costs for Collection Of Rubbish Slasned In New Offers

The American Reduction Company, present holders of the contract for garbage collection in the city proper, today was underbid by an out-of-town concern, it became known as bids were opened in the Council Chamber for garbage and rubbish collection in 1933.

John Miele, of Maplewood, N. J., bid $5.95 a ton for garbage collection in the city, excepting the North Side, against the American Reduction Company's bid of $6.58. The local concern's bid was the same as last year. Miele did not submit a rubbish collection bid.

WOULD BURY REFUSE

Meile's concern proposes to utilize a sufficient fleet of modern trucks which will meet the approval of Health Department, according to St. Clair Cooper, acting head of the Public Health Department.

Into a proposed station, centrally located, the garbage collected in the Downtown [illegible] would be dumped [illegible] into bins or larger trucks. From there it would be hauled 12 miles to a proposed disposal site on the Munroeville road, Patton Township, according to Cooper.

The disposal site, which was formerly a strip coal mine, has deep trenches for the burial of the refuse and adequate earth to cover it, Cooper said he was informed.

Meile, in his letter accompanying the bid, stated he had been in the garbage collection business for 10 years, and has sufficient capital to fulfil the Pittsburgh contract.

CUT RUBBISH BID

The American Reduction Company's bid for rubbish collection was $6.80, the figure being $1.02 lower than last year's bid.

For collection of garbage in the North Side, the Allegheny Garbage Company, present collector, bid $5.25 a ton. Last year's bid was $7.95. For rubbish collection in the same territory the firm's bid was $5.45 a ton, $1.57 lower than the bid of last year.

The contracts will be for one year only. The City Health Department is expected immediately to begin preparing specifications to let contracts in 1934 for three, five or 10-year terms.

The 1933 estimates are based on tonnage. The sum of $1,675,500 was appropriated for this year's contract but there has been a decrease in the refuse removed and it is estimated $171,000 will remain of this.

The garbage cost in Pittsburgh is second highest in the country and several organizations have recommended that the contracts be awarded for longer terms.

Political Fracas Suggests Some Believe-It-or-Nots

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Mr. Hoover made 10 speeches in one day and nobody scored.

Ogden Mills spoke three hours without mentioning the subject.

Washington dropped a bottle overboard in 1920. Twelve years later it came ashore on a plank.

The farm board bought an entire wheat crop and never made a biscuit.

Mr. Hoover lambasted Mr. Roosevelt on the air for two hours. Mr. Roosevelt followed right after and shellacked Mr. Hoover for another two hours, from ten to midnight. The next speaker on the air was a tenor, who sang, "The Night was Made for Love."

A man taking a railroad journey with his family was cheated by card sharks. His wife ran off with the handsome brakeman. The train ran off a trestle, he was badly hurt and the baby swallowed the tickets. While on his way to the hospital the ambulance ran into a billboard, on which was the Republican campaign slogan, "It Might Have Been Worse."

Sleuths Return Truant Patient to Hospital

Several hours after he had slipped out of Passavant Hospital last night, Albert Phillips, 26, of 2216 William Penn highway, Wilkinsburg, walked into the office of his physician in Wilkinsburg, according to city detectives, who returned him to the hospital.

Phillips, who underwent a tonsil operation, left the hospital in pajamas and bathrobe and then telephoned his physician that he was coming to see him, detectives said.

When he arrived he was turned over to detectives, waiting to return him to the hospital.

COUNSEL SHOWS $890,000 USED IN DEBTS

The complaint against the rates of the South Pittsburgh Water Company, filed by attorneys for Mt. Lebanon Township with the Public Service Commission, at Harrisburg, has brought no comment from officials of the water company.

Attorney Joseph A. Beck, counsel for the company, declined to discuss the rate question, but did produce records of the company to show that a bond issue amounting to $1,850,000 was sold by the South Pittsburgh Water Company to the American Water Works and Electric Company in 1930 at 88.

PAID $890,000 DEBT

Out of the $1,640,000 realized in this sale, the sum of $890,000, the records showed, was used to pay debts of the South Pittsburgh Water Company to the American Water Works and Electric Company, and the remainder, $750,000, was placed to the credit of the South Pittsburgh Water Company to provide for future plant betterments.

At the end of 1930, the credit thus available was $604,000, the records showed.

Large amounts of money have been spent in recent years in betterments to plant and equipment, the figures indicated. The amount expended for betterments in 1929 was $588,000; in 1930, $683,000, and in 1931, $496,000, according to the company's report.

DISCOUNT VARIATIONS

A peculiar feature has been noted in the company's new rate in the fact that the cash discount for prompt payment decreases as the size of the meter increases, and disappears in anything larger than one and one-half-inch meter. This condition however, would apply only to a minority of industrial users.

The water company rate schedule also differs from many other public utility rates in that it has a second step higher than the first. The first step, after a specified allowance of water on a minimum charge, is 33 cents per thousand for the first 10,500 gallons per quarter, and the rate then jumps to 40 cents per thousand for the next 288,000 gallons per quarter.

EDLIS PRAISES ROOSEVELT

Adolph Edlis, chairman of the Roosevelt Independent Committee of Allegheny County, and for more than 50 years a Republican, told an audience at Duquesne yesterday that in this campaign he was for the Democratic presidential candidate. He said:

"I have without any hesitancy come to the conclusion that a decent American must foreswear his partisanship and must sustain the honest and clean leadership of Franklin D. Roosevelt and vote for him. We have a chance to vote for a man whose humanity cannot be questioned.

"After an unbroken period of 12 years of opportunity the leaders of the Republican party responsible for its policy have miserably failed to keep faith.

"They have plundered our national resources, they have undermined our economic security, they have blotched the tarifl, they have made a joke of the farm relief, they have literally emptied the treasury—and have in every instance sustained the vested interest with its wide ramification against the interest of the people."

Social Workers Hear Bureau Chief

A discussion of the ways in which Bureau of Social Research findings may be of assistance to community executives and social workers was given by Dr. Frederick F. Stephan, of the bureau, at a noon meeting of the Pittsburgh social work executives in Kaufmann's dining room today.

REED AND BECK HERE FOR G. O. P.

Senator David A. Reed, Congressman James M. Beck, of Philadelphia, and Hanford MacNider, former Assistant Secretary of War, will be the chief speakers at a Republican rally tonight in Syria Mosque, sponsored by the Republican County Committee.

Business men are being urged to attend the meeting by the same groups which sponsored last Friday's luncheon at the William Penn Hotel, where employers were told how to attempt to prevail upon their employes to vote for President Hoover. Letters have been sent to practically all who attended the luncheon.

This will be the final big rally of the campaign, and County Chairman William H. Coleman is endeavoring to fill the auditorium. At the first campaign rally held in the Mosque the place was about half filled.

Coleman will be chairman, though Councilman William J. Soost, Republican city chairman, will preside at the opening.

Socialists will hold a rally at Wexford Grove tonight at 8 o'clock. Robert Heckert, legislative candidate, will be the principal speaker.

ART :: Tech Alumni Show

By PENELOPE REDD

The Alumni exhibition of the College of Fine Arts of Carnegie Institute of Technology is presented to the public in the galleries of the Department of Fine Arts at the Carnegie Institute, Forbes and Dithridge streets, commencing today and continuing on view through the next six weeks.

Miss Redd

The entrance gallery declares in no uncertain terms that the Alumni is contemporary. This assertion is corroborated throughout the other two galleries in which oil paintings are hung, where an academic minority is present but not voting.

The exhibition flows along in normal style showing only the materially unprofitable affair of oil painting, until the visitor enters the fourth gallery. In this gallery, imagination is excited by the possibilities of the group who followed Donald Dohner to Westinghouse to ally themselves with his experiments in functional design.

This matter of earning bread and butter through a basic training in design can really be an adventurous affair. The world of industry is prepared to accept a liason with design because it has actually proved commercially successful. Therefore, one must view the vacuum sweeper, the air conditioner, the drink mixer, and other objects in whose design Ralph Kruck had a hand, not as the results of a mesalliance with art, but as the ancestors of future refinements in the mechanism of living.

NIGHT CLUB THEME

Sidney Warner has specially completed for the show, the first mechanically produced mural in micarta with dyed aluminum inlaid in a Walter Winchell sort of patter-pattern on a night club frivol.

Robert Lepper's "Polished Lady" is a digression in metals for the display of ladies' neckwear. The other departures in the fourth gallery are along known paths. There are pottery ash trays designed as conversation pieces in the contemporary idiom of hunter, golfer, and other popular sports by Wesley A. Mills. Sculpture, jewelry, studies for today's interiors, eccleistical decorations, and models of stage settings all well on the side of modernity are shown.

Returning to the paintings, four of the younger graduates, Riggs, Thompson, Kennedy and Olmes have devoutly pursued post-graduate study under European moderns. Twiggs, without foreign intervention, invents a chromatic Pleiades in a series of abstract compositions. James Hogan continues unimpeded along the difficult journey between the student of promise and the painter of achievement.

MOST WELL KNOWN

The three score or more persons in the show represent only those who have received their major training in the school. Of course, the large proportion of those participating is well known through local exhibitions.

One may catalogue the most familiar names, in lieu of detailed comment before the exhibition's close:

Clifford A. Bayard, Dorothy Bugher, Raymond Baxter Dowden, Esther Topp Edmonds, John C. Edwards, David Fraser, Grace Lysinger Hamilton, Bertha Gill Johnston, Lillian Kimball, Mary Waugh King, T. Ralph Lias, Mary Shaw Marohnic, Vincent Nesbert, Milan Petrovits, Wilfred A. Readio, Isabella Chittenden Rober, Samuel Rosenberg, Margaret Ruse, Mildred Floyd Schmertz, Jeannette C. Shirk, William Shulgold, Raymond Simboli, Rachel McCleland Sutton, Robert Young, Mary Adele Ziegler.

Two artists, who have already attained national reputations in their respective fields, Crooks in illustration and Wolfson in lithography, are also represented. However, it must be remembered that artists mature slowly, other than in exceptional cases.

In the exhibition of work by the alumni from Carnegie Tech, few of the graduates are yet 40 years old. This age, relatively speaking, is still youth for those who desire to be artists in this age of exhilarating change. Sincere effort and constant application are distinguishing characteristics found throughout the show which would be an interesting biennial feature so that Pittsburgh might follow the further conquests of our most promising group.

BANKER SCORNS TUNNEY CHECK

An Altoona banker, not recognizing the former heavyweight champion, gave Tunney an apologetic but firm "No" when the check was pushed through the window.

Tunney laughed:

"It's the first time in any country that that has ever happened to me."

Another bank honored the check.

Tunney was en route to Wilkes-Barre to deliver a political address.

28,900 PARENTS OF PUPILS JOBLESS

The facts about unemployment in the homes of Pittsburgh school children were shown today in the annual report of the Board of Publication which reported 80,171 wage earners, with 28,967 out of work.

This percentage — over 36 per cent of these who are the support of school children—is of May 16. It indicates, also, that unemployment had increased from October of last year approximately 7 per cent.

To meet the emergency of supplying the help needed to more than 13,800 children of the schools, the Frick Educational Commission furnished funds to feed these children. The work was also amplified to include 3,000 pupils of the parochial schools.

CUT ACCEPTED

This, and the material conditions of the city schools, were explained in the report which contains 350 pages. How the teachers willingly, and without exception, gave up 10 per cent of their salaries to make possible the balancing of the budget, the reduction of building program, and the increase of enrollment in high and trade schools and the lagging of school tax payments were highlights of the record.

The growth of high school enrollment during the past 18 years —from 1913 to 1931, was one of the phenomena of statistics.

The increase was shown to be 625 per cent, more than six times that of pre-war enrollment. More students have remained in school and finished, the increase showing 710 per cent.

Consolidation of classes in the night schools during 1930 effected a decrease of 120 teachers, while an additional teacher of speech correction was added.

RESEARCH STUDIES

Research as to why pupils drop out of high schools indicated that 5 per cent dropped out the second semester of 1931, and 14 per cent in the trade schools, with Overbrook and Peabody showing the smallest percentage, and Allegheny the highest. In trade schools, more girls left than boys. Reasons included 19 per cent because of unemployment in the family, 34 per cent through leaving the city, 13 per cent through illness and 1 per cent through marriage.

The report also showed an increase in the cost per pupil for 1931 over 1930, last year's figure being $4.88 as against $4.35 for 1930. Previous years, however, were high, 1929 being $5.11 and 1928 $5.30. These are expenses for educational materials, supplies and expenses for day schools.

WILD CARGO

By FRANK BUCK

With EDWARD ANTHONY

a shaded paddock where it could seek shelter when the sun was too blistering. The idea was to give the animal a chance to get used to the new climate by degrees.

A record of the arrival of this American buffalo is to be found in the Rangoon Gazette for March 6, 1923, which said in part:

A valuable addition to the animals at the Rangoon Zoo has arrived from America in the shape of a young American bison, about a year and a half old, and a splendid specimen of its class. The bison, the first of its species ever seen in Asia, was secured through the well-known American animal collector, Frank Buck, in exchange for an elephant. It arrived by boat via Singapore and was taken to the zoo where yesterday is was the center of attention.

A small fee to see the bison was charged by the zoo, and the animal earned its hay for a year in no time.

ANIMAL IS KILLED

My work in Rangoon over, I returned to Singapore. The Sultan was back in Johore, so I got him on the telephone and told him I had a present for him. I didn't say what it was, merely making a date to call on him the next day with it.

The Sultan was delighted when he found I had brought him an American sladang. He turned it loose in his deer park where he had a small herd of sambar, the biggest of Asiatic deer.

The Sultan's bison hadn't stood the long voyage as well as the Rangoon specimen. He was weak when we turned him loose, walking with difficulty and seeming stiff all over after his long stay in the crate.

I suggested to the Sultan that the bison be fenced off until he got his landlegs. The sambar deer is a formidable animal and I knew that the newcomer would be at a serious disadvantage if his Asiatic associates decided to be unfriendly.

"No," said the Sultan, "history tells me that your American sladang is a very strong animal. Sambar deer will not worry him."

The Sultan, who is right about animals more frequently than many trained zoologists, happened to be wrong in this case. The bison was found the next day in a corner of the park, gored to death. A servant who witnessed the battle—if it can be called that—told in a few words what had happened. The bison, worn out from his long journey, was lying down when one of the deer—a big stag with great antlers—charged at him. Before the sluggish bison could get to his feet the stag's horns had pierced his belly.

BUFFALO CAUSES ENVY

To this day the head of that unfortunate American sladang, expertly mounted, is to be found in the Sultan's famous trophy-room.

The sudden depletion by 50 per cent of the American bison population in Asia was not exactly helpful to my experiment, designed to prove that the North American buffalo could live and thrive in the tropical climate of Southern Asia.

The fates, however, insisted on balancing these things and it was not long before the bison population of Asia was increased. It came about this way:

Calcutta, which has the finest zoo in India, grew envious of the Rangoon zoo's bison. They couldn't see the idea of a smaller zoo having a specimen that they did not possess. There is competition even in the zoo world, and a big zoo is always in a state of turmoil when a more modest institution lands a rare exhibit that results in lots of publicity.

The Calcutta zoo did not rest until it had arranged to secure an American bison from the London zoo, which has a respectable herd of these fabled creatures.

As if to prove that the sambar stag's victory over my run-down bison was a fluke, the American buffalo from London quickly established himself as the boss of the pasture-lands in the Calcutta zoo. This institution has a huge moated pasturage where water buffalo, nilgai antelope, gazelles, elands and zebras are turned loose.

PROVES SUPREMACY

On a visit to the Calcutta Zoo not many years ago I personally witnessed this American from London showing his Asiatic neighbors where they got off. A fine big specimen of the American buffalo, this synthetic Londoner was making it plain who ran things in that pasturage. Some keepers appeared and proceeded to unload, great quantities of fresh green grass and green sugar cane. The other animals dropped back and let the big bison which had established its supremacy, eat its fill first!

After a while that bison from London became such a bully that he had to be placed in a special paddock of his own.

I don't like to crow about it when I happen to be correct, but I was right in my contention that the American bison would do well in a tropical climate. I had properly evaluated this animal as one of the truest of the "adaptables." The specimen I brought to Rangoon is alive and in excellent health to this day. I might add that the bully from London is also thriving at Calcutta.

2 Held For Trial For Beating Referee

Lacking $500 bail, Horace Mockett and J. Tierney, of Swissvale, were held for court last night by Justice of the Peace Martin Weitzel, of Dormont, on a charge of assaulting Referee Franklin Byers at the recent Duquesne-Swissvale High School football game.

Byers was attacked, it was testified, after he had called back a play that would have given Swissvale a touchdown and tied the score in the last quarter. A free-for-all fight among the spectators broke up the game.

WHAT'S GOOD FOR A COLD?

Recent Scientific Research Favors a Delightful Inhalant Called "Vapex"

A prominent medical research laboratory recently made public two important facts about relieving head-colds, following a series of unbiased tests.

Vapex is more likely to bring swift, safe relief than gargles, sprays, salves, and drops. Because you breathe the soothing vapor, thus reaching the breathing-passages where the seat of a cold really is . . . where an inhalant alone can penetrate naturally.

Tests prove definitely, too, that the Vapex vapor kills germs present during a head-cold. Other inhalants tested had little germ-killing power . . . proving that many substitutes called "just as good as Vapex" are really far inferior.

You'll like breathing Vapex. There's no muss or fuss. Just sprinkle a few drops on your handkerchief and at the ends of your pillow . . . breathe the refreshing vapor . . . and the distress of a cold soon disappears.

Vapex is now reduced from $1 to 75c a bottle. Be sure to ask for V-A-P-E-X at your druggist's. You can depend on it to relieve your colds . . . swiftly, safely.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

At last someone has lived up to that duty we might call a social responsibility, and given the forgotten debutante an hour in the sun.

And now that one young girl has had the formal presentation to society that's every deb's due, we hope there'll be others. There are to be several luncheons and a tea dance. And before the year's over, the debs of 1932 may have come out very gayly after all.

The Henry Vaughan Blaxters' daughter Dorothy was the debutante of yesterday. Her mother presented her to her friends at a simple, but attractive tea in the Pittsburgh Golf Club.

And it was cheering to see so many lovely gift bouquets decking the clubhouse, which has been the scene of many a grand time for the smart set.

The debutante herself was most charming and delightfully unaffected as she received with her mother before a background of cibotium ferns and colorful roses and chrysanthemums.

She wore a vivid frock of American beauty pebble crepe having a cape collar high at the throat, cut wide over the shoulders and into points in the back, extending to the high waistline. Pansy blue velvet and American beauty crepe flowers formed a corsage, and her quaint turban of American beauty red velvet had flower trimming of the red and pansy blue velvet.

Vivid Frock

Aiding Mrs. Blaxter were her sister-in-law, Mrs. Oliver S. Atterholt, Mrs. Dudley S. Liggett, Mrs. Charles L. Jones, Mrs. R. Maurice Kennedy, Mrs. J. Hanson Rose, Mrs. J. Farley Walton, Mrs. J. Merrill Wright, Mrs. W. Eugene Gary and Mrs. Allen Kerr.

* * *

Add to your list of debs for the season the name of athletic young Gretchen Rose, the J. Hanson Roses' daughter. She's going to be a Christmas bud. Her mother will present her the day before Christmas in the Fox Chapel Golf Club. Gretchen is studying at Smith College this year, you know, so her debuting will be limited to the holidays.

Fortnightly Review Hears George Seibel

"Recollections of a Book Reviewer," as given yesterday by George Seibel, literary editor of the Sun-Telegraph, before the Fortnightly Review, was a delightfully informal talk. Mr. Seibel told of his years of contacts with authors and spoke especially of Mary Roberts Rinehart and Willa Cather. Careful reading makes the successful critic, he said, and the privilege of knowing humanity in all its phases is the reward of the work. Mrs. F. W. Cook and Mrs. H. B. Long reported the state federation convention.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

Cordelia is afraid of lightning. During a severe storm, she hurled herself onto her bed, burrowed deep in the covers, and moaned, "Glory be to God. Glory be to God."

* * *

Cute Patsy Mellon, whose parents, the T. A. Mellons, had her christened Helen, is through with finishing schools, and is staying at home this winter. In the day time she can be found drawing industriously at Carnegie Tech Art School.

* * *

Another society girl at the same school is Louise Evans, who wears the best looking clothes. Louise is taking up sculpture now. She paints, too, and has a canvas hung in the all-women artists' exhibit being held in the Grant Building.

* * *

Will the Junior League ever really know who's its president now that Louise Totten has taken Marjorie Kimball's place? Marjorie has just left, you know, to make her home in Chicago.

Louise looks so exactly like her twin sister, Phyllis, that I, for one, can never tell which girl is which.

FAVORED COSTUME USES DARK BLOUSE WITH LIGHTER SUIT

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Paris likes the idea of the dark, separate blouse this year. The combination of a coat of three-quarter length, a matching skirt and a separate blouse of a darker color than either is one of the favorite costumes of the well-dressed French woman right now.

* * *

IT IS INTERESTING to note that the most important designers in the whole of Paris make much use of this type of costume—simple as it is. They make it in dozens of varieties, keeping it undecorated, usually, and leaving to the combination of colors any effort at fantasy.

* * *

LUCIEN LELONG contributes one special costume that is particularly suited to American women. It is a costume of the all-weather type, being neither distinctly cold-weather or warm-day costume and being neither definitely formal nor yet too informal.

* * *

AS THE sketch shows, the coat, of three-quarter length, takes to the new single-breasted fastening, with buttons and buttonholes extending farther below the waistline than above it. Otherwise the coat is of classic fitted line, with the [illegible] the fabric, which is bright green wool. The skirt, with its front fullness, is marked by double stitchings which indicate bias lines pointing downwards and toward the center.

* * *

Personality Worthier Than Luxury in a Home

What makes a home?

Is it a marble lobby, and a swell neighborhood, and nifty furniture?

Are you ashamed to bring friends to your house because it sports none of these fancy fixings?

There's the problem that's confronting Lois. She's pretty and peppy and longs to be popular, but she can't have friends—to hear her tell it—because the place she lives in is just a dump.

So she goes around feeling down-hearted, and convinced that she's picked on by a Cruel Fate.

"What can I do?" she moans. "I'm ashamed to ask any of the kids I know to visit me! I am so lonely, and I just don't know what to do about it!"

Is that the way you feel?

"Dear Sally—

"Something has me down. Will you please try to help me with it?

"I am 17 and go to High School. I know a lot of my classmates, and I long to be friends with them. I am full of life, too, and love to go out, but I don't go often because I feel that if I do I'll have to ask the other young folks to my house, and I can't do that, because our home is so old-fashioned and shabby.

"I know that if those young folks knew I lived in such a dump they'd never want to go with me any more, and so I just simply can't invite them there to see me. And it breaks my heart. I think it is terrible to have to feel ashamed of the place you live in. Don't you?

"Why, oh, why can't I have a nice home like other people have, and a lot of nice friends around me? I think it is too cruel!

PARENTS SATISFIED

"Sometimes I get so lonely and so low, thinking about it all, that I just can't stand it. I have tried and tried to get my folks to get a better place, but they just think I am silly. They own this place. They've lived here for years, and you just can't budge them.

"I think they really like it, even if it is all shabby and out-of-date, and I guess having a pretty, up-to-date place doesn't mean anything to them. The people they know they've known for years, and they don't seem to care at all that these people come to the awful old place to see them. They have fun enough, even there. And they just can't see how terrible it is for me.

"Please help me. I just can't stand it. "LOIS."

Help you? What I'd like to do is give you a good, sound spanking, youngster! And I don't mean maybe!

And why? Because you're just a cheap, silly little snob! And you're cramping your own style and picking your grief by being that way.

MAKE FRIENDS

You think that polish and glitter and shiny newness will get you by, if you can just grab them off. Well, you're wrong!! And no regular human is going to give 2 cents a thousand for you as long as you think that.

You say you want fun, friends. Then quit crabbing and get them!

Maybe your home isn't a palace, but if you make it a bright, happy, cheerful place, full of sunny friendliness, it'll rate plenty. If your friends are worth having they'll be glad to come there, even if the carpet is faded and the vintage of 1890. They'll be glad to come because you're there, to make them welcome and show them a gala time.

For the home won't make you, Lois. It's just the other way around. You make the home—or unmake it. And if your friends get a hint that you're ashamed of that home, they'll put you down for just the stuck-up little nit-wit that you are, and they'll run out on you.

So cut loose from your snootiness. Make yourself interesting, and invite life in. Then it will invite you.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

Madge Secretly Wires Grantland News

I never have more admired Harry Underwood's tact and resourcefulness than in his answer to Lillian's feverish demand that we fly to Whitney Hall, from which we just received the message that Marion and Carolyn could not be found.

"Of course we can fly there if you wish it, dearest," he said, "but I really believe that by the time we motor to the nearest airport and then fly to the one nearest Whitney Hall, where we shall have to take to the motor again, we should make better time in sticking to our own car. There's very little traffic at this time. We shall be able to go through rapidly. And I'll tell you everything that Mrs. Barnes said when we get in the car. Let Madge help you put on your wraps now. I must go down and get a check cashed."

"Hurry, dear," she said, her voice strong and vibrant. "Go along, and don't consider me another second. I'm over the first of it and the worst of it. You won't see me break again. I could tear myself in pieces that I have hindered you this much."

LILLIAN COURAGEOUS

"Marion would never—" Lillian began, then brought herself up abruptly and I saw that she realized, as I did, that a voluntary absence from the school, if it involved only girlish carelessness or pique, was the only solution of this disappearance for which we could pray. Any other explanation opened up abysses of conjecture too awful to consider.

"But you must take charge, Harry," Lillian said in quick alarm. "Sam Brixton will be the proverbial bull in the china shop, getting the police and the newspapers on the job at once. But we can't bother with that now. Get the telephoning over. And Madge, I wish you'd get your father on the telephone. I want to talk with him. The 'Chief' always knows what to do."

"Good idea!" Harry Underwood approved as he went out of the door. As he closed it, I spoke to Lillian briskly.

INFORMS GRANTLAND

"Would you mind telephoning to father yourself?" I asked, knowing that action was the best thing for her. "There is something I must do at once. But keep him on the line. I want to talk to him when you have finished. Mary, will you come with me to your room for a minute?"

Mary followed me as Lillian went to the telephone. With the door closed, I spoke quickly.

"Do you want to come with us, dear?"

"Oh, if I may! It doesn't seem as if I could stand it here alone, thinking about her."

"Then you shall. But you must help me send a telegram first. I can't let anyone but you know I am sending it—not now. I can tell them all when the first shock of this has passed, but I can't risk having any of them excited now."

"I'll do anything you say, Auntie Madge," she said. "Here is a telegram blank."

"Marion and Carolyn have disappeared from Whitney Hall. We have gone down there. Please wire me there where I can reach you, if necessary. May need you."

I signed my initials and addressed it to Hugh Grantland at the Philadelphia address he had sent me by the hand of Lee Chow.

THE HOSTESS IN THE TEA ROOM
THE MEMORANDUM PAD AND THE SOCIAL CALENDAR
FAY KING

By FAY KING

All walks of life seem very much alike to me.

The same fundamental rules and good qualities prevail in them all.

The hostesses in tea rooms and clerks in stores exert the same tact and charm toward their customers as the hostesses in homes do toward their guests.

One is well-dressed when she is dressed appropriately and in good taste.

A waitress in her becoming uniform is not much different from the girls one sees all dressed so much alike at some social function, for fashion itself is only a kind of current uniform.

The memorandum pad in the business office and the social calendar are alike, in that they are both a prospectus consulted and carried out with highest hopes for the best possible results.

Contract Bridge -:- -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Rash Overcall

The dangers of weak vulnerable Overcalls have frequently been discussed in these columns. The greatest sets at Contract Bridge are not those against good players when they reach contracts of game or Slam, but ordinarily occur when the player, trading perhaps upon reputation or skill, like a fool, "steps in where angels fear to tread."

Recently, in a New York Bridge club, I saw an example of the tremendous risks which may be lightly undertaken through the use of a very weak and dangerous Overcall of an opposing bid.

South—Dealer.

North:
♠ A 4
♡ 7 3 2
◇ A Q J 10 9 7 3
♣ A

West:
♡ Q J 9
◇ K 8 6 5 4
♣ K Q

East:
♠ J 8 3 2
♡ 6 5 4
♣ J 10 8 5 4 2

South:
♠ K Q 10 9
♡ A K 10 8
◇ 2
♣ 9 7 6 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ◇ (1)	Double (2)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—An entirely unsound Overcall. The trump suit is pitifully weak, and the hand itself, as a whole, does not justify any attacking measure by a vulnerable player.

2—As the cards lie, the severity of the penalty would be greatly reduced if the hand were played at clubs, but West decided that the best thing to do was to take his medicine.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a three-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

The outcome of the hand is apparent after the slightest study. West was able to cash only the King of diamonds, being defeated 7 tricks for a penalty of 2,600 points, plus 100 for honors. The hand is a very vivid illustration of the necessity of having a sound trump suit when considering the advisability of an Overcall when vulnerable.

It would be an interesting question to consider the hand from the standpoint of a pass by West, when North, no doubt, would have reached a Slam in diamonds, which, of course, he could have made, and which West, with five trumps to the King-8 and an outside trick and a half, would probably have been justified in doubling. However, even this would have been much cheaper than the apparently harmless contract of two diamonds, which West so thoughtlessly undertook.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Is a bid of two notrump over a suit bid of one (with no intervening bid) a Forcing bid?

Answer: No. It merely indicates about 2½ to 3 honor-tricks and lack of adequate support for the Opening suit bid, or adequate trump support but a balanced distribution.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

"They" are using brown eye shadows now for dark eyes instead of blue though it won't do if the skin is extremely fair. A good substitute for eye shadow is a brushing over with a deep tinted rouge, not only on the eyelids but on temples and cheek bones. There's a blue-green shadow that the light-headed darlings are crazy about. Makes them look mysterious.

The cold compress is a rejuvenating agent for a neck that has gone fiddle string, acquired up and down hollows, taken on discordant fibers. Dip a small hand towel in ice water, wring out so it won't drip, slap it around the neck, cover with a dry towel. Read your detective story for five minutes, repeat the treatment. And so on for half an hour. Nothing like ice water to make slack tissues take a new lease of life.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Ribbon ties up with the mode this year. A lovely ensemble has a dress trimmed with a collar made of rosettes of black and white ribbon. There is a girdle out of rows of the ribbon gathered and shirred and finished with a huge matching ribbon rosette.

Strange partnerships are a feature of the new frocks. For instance, Lanvin takes a frock of black sheer woolen and trims it with a cape that ends in sleeves. This is of silver sequins centered with turqoise stones, the whole mounted on the sheer woolen. There is worn with this evening frock a necklace of turquoise and rhinestones.

Not at all cross is the woman who buys a coat trimmed with cross fox, for this fur is very popular this season. A coat of brown diagonal woolen has a collar of silver cross fox arranged in horseshoe shape so that the fur stands away from the face, suggesting a cape outline. It has dropped shoulder line with the sleeve fulness at the elbow.

There is a revival of the tunic for both day and evening fashions. In some cases, the tunic is short and seems to be rather a deep peplum. This type of tunic is used in an evening frock of deep wine red lace, with the sections of the motifs in cire. The upper part of the bodice, which has stiffened, upstanding tiny sleeves over the shoulders, is posed over pale pink.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Letter of Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

It has just occurred to me that perhaps I am being very rude or at least neglecting one of the nice little courtesies. My problem is this:

My 20-year-old daughter is visiting her friend at her friend's country home. She has been there all this month. The girls are returning very soon. My daughter and her girl friend have been working together dancing. They room together on the road and in New York.

1—Should I send a small note to the mother? I have met the friend's mother. Or to the young girl asking her to thank her mother? I know the young girl very well.

2—If I should send a note, should I send it direct to the mother or daughter, or put it in with my letter to my daughter?

L.

I'm so happy that you have decided to write this gracious note of appreciation of this great courtesy and hospitality to your daughter. It is very important that you do this: first, because such goodness should be recognized and thanked for; and second, because it is an excellent thing for a mother constantly to show her daughter's friends that that daughter has a background of graciousness and appreciation and mannerliness in her home and in her parents.

1—Write your note to the mother, who has been your daughter's hostess. If you wish, you may also write a note to the girl who is your daughter's friend, but the by-far-more-important note is the one to the mother.

2—Send your letter direct to the mother. Don't send it indirectly to your daughter, or indirectly to your daughter's friend. Make it a definite mother-to-mother letter.

Household Hints

You can clean the steel on your oven door by rubbing the door, while it is still hot, with a soft cloth dipped in vinegar. Rub briskly.

Cabbage used for salad is more tender if shredded fine and put into cold water for 30 minutes, then drained and wrapped in a towel until ready to use.

Windows will not steam if a proper circulation of air is kept stirring in the room.

Stains inside teacups and brown marks on egg-spoons soon disappear if rubbed with a damp cloth dipped in salt.

If you are annoyed with little water bugs hovering around the sink, once a week pour a cupful of kerosene down the drain. Allow about an hour to pass before running any water. The bugs will soon disappear.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Mungas Regular Quarter.
Pitt May Draw 75,000.
Hagerty Well Equipped.
Irish Keep Signals Long.
Rajah Card in Chicago.
Converted Southpaws.

HOGAN TO BE CHANGED INTO CENTER

IT LOOKS AS though Miller Mungas, young sophomore, has definitely won the regular quarterback job on the Pitt football team for 1933. The Bellaire (O.) boy came through in such great style when entrusted with the important assignment of starting the big game against Notre Dame last week that Coach Jock Sutherland has decided he is just about what the doctor ordered. Accordingly, not only will Mungas be in the opening lineup against Penn on Saturday, but, barring unforeseen developments and in spite of his weighing only 160 pounds, he is being counted on for first-string duty during the next two seasons.

Miller Mungas

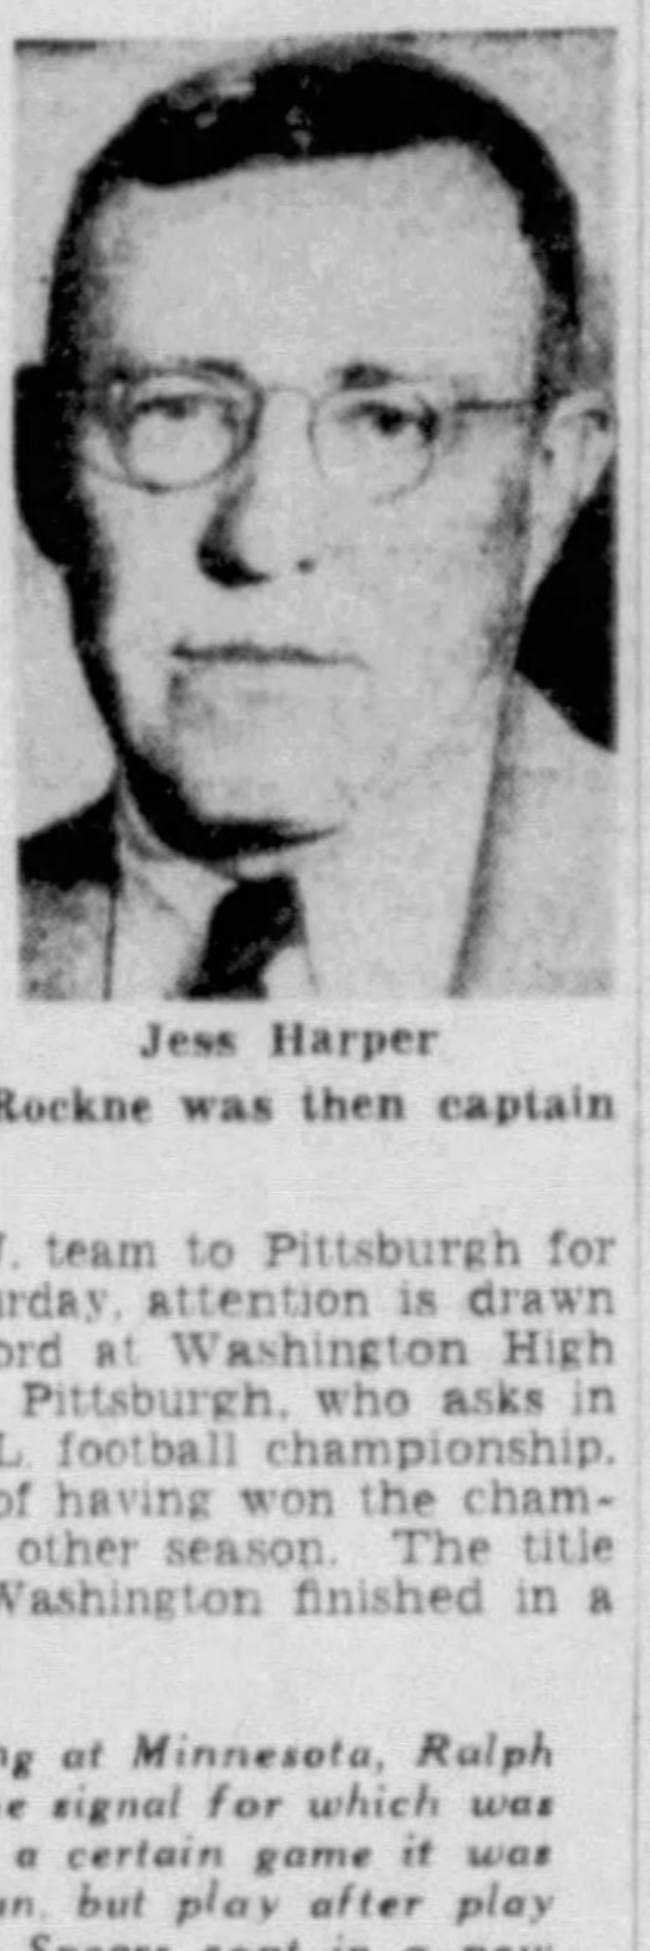
However, that does not mean that Bob Hogan, of Meadville, whom Mungas relieves at quarterback, now while Hogan is injured, and who has another year to go, will be crowded off the team. It is said to be Sutherland's intention to turn Bob into a center for 1933. Joe Tormey is playing his final season, and it is figured that Hogan, with his 186 pounds, and experience in varsity football, will be a better bet for the snapperback post than the lighter George Shotwell or any of the other center candidates now on the squad. With Mungas established at quarterback, Pitt is all set at three of the four backfield positions for next year, as Sebastian and Weinstock will hold over, Weinstock being only a sophomore. Capt. Reider, Heller, Luch, Cutri, Brown and Sekay will be the backs to depart, along with Tormey, Cuba, Dailey, Seigel and Shindehutte from among the forwards.

THERE IS A prospect that when the Panthers meet Penn at Franklin Field in Philadelphia Saturday they will perform before the largest crowd that ever saw a Pitt team in action, with the single exception of the gathering at the Rose Bowl game in Pasadena on January 1, 1930, when Southern California was faced by the Sutherlands.

Philadelphia supports athletics like few cities in the country and an attendance of 57,000 at the Penn-Navy game last Saturday would appear to indicate that 75,000 will turn out to see the conquerors of Notre Dame grapple with a strong Penn eleven. Pitt has not played football in Philadelphia since 1925.

GEORGETOWN'S NEW GRID coach, Jack Hagerty, is pronounced by many football men exceptionally well equipped for the post he is taking over in leaving the professional playing game to succeed Tommy Mills. While he was a member of the Georgetown team, Hagerty was rated by Lou Little as the smartest player he had ever coached.

JUST HOW THE Irish manage to keep their plays concealed when they are facing opponents coached by former South Bend players, Navy, for instance, is not explained, but Jess Harper declares Notre Dame has used the same football signals for 19 years. Harper, now director of athletics at Notre Dame, and then gridiron coach, relates that he tried for some time to evolve a satisfactory set of signals. One night he awoke suddenly and a signal system flashed through his mind.



Jess Harper

JUMPING OUT OF bed, Harper jotted the signals down, noted that it was precisely 2 o'clock in the morning, turned out the light and went back to sleep. On arising he went over his notes and at practice gave the new signals to the Notre Dame squad.

According to Harper, they have been used ever since without change. He does not remember the date when they entered his mind, but says he has a clear recollection that it was 2 o'clock in the morning and that the year was 1913, the first of Harper's four seasons as coach. Knute Rockne was then captain of the team.

AS HE PREPARES to bring his W. & J. team to Pittsburgh for a game with Duquesne at Forbes Field Saturday, attention is drawn to Hank Day's previous great coaching record at Washington High School by a query from M. Godula, of East Pittsburgh, who asks in what years that school won the W. P. I. A. L. football championship.

Washington High has the proud record of having won the championship three times and tied for it in one other season. The title was captured in 1920, 1923 and 1926, and Washington finished in a tie with Johnstown for the honors in 1917.

WHILE TUBBY SPEARS was coaching at Minnesota, Ralph Cannon relates, he had an end-run play, the signal for which was an odd number, like 17, or 21, or 39. In a certain game it was obvious that the set-up was for an end run, but play after play was called without the use of it. Finally Spears sent in a new quarterback to call the end-run play. When the old quarter came off the field the coach demanded why the end-run signal had not been called. "Well, I'll tell you, coach," the quarter replied, "I tried to call it, but I thought and thought, and I couldn't think of an odd number."

THERE MAY BE some doubt as to the drawing powers of Rogers Hornsby in most National League cities, but there will be at least one day next season when he will count heavily in that respect. That will be the occasion when the Cardinals and Cubs meet for the first time in Chicago.

No Cub fan will want to miss the sight of Hornsby playing against the former mates who voted him out of a share of the world series money. It ought to be a sell-out, and the extra money falling to the St. Louis club for a single day will pay a goodly part of what it gives Hornsby for the whole season.

IN A DISCUSSION of the quickest form reversal ever known in baseball, they've dug up one in which the Pittsburgh club figured more than three decades ago, and it's generally voted one of the greatest hitting recoveries on record.

On July 12, 1900, the Phillies were shut out without a hit by Southpaw Noodles Hahn, of the Cincinnati club. On the very next day the Phils encountered the Pirates and pounded the Pittsburgh pitchers for 23 runs and 24 hits.

Charley White

IN HIS DECISION to abandon his southpaw style of fighting and adopt the opposite stance with the hope of getting more matches, Mose Butch, local boxer, can point to the careers of many famous battlers as offering evidence in support of his course. Converted southpaws, meaning boxers who would have fought with the portside stance if they had not been turned around when they were taught the fundamentals, included Stanley Ketchel, Charley White, Kid McPartland, Paul Berlenbach, Ray Miller and Fidel La Barba. An advantage in such a shift is that it sometimes makes the fighter a deadly left-hook artist. All those mentioned, particularly White, became specialists in the use of that blow. An educated left hook generally is considered the best offensive weapon a boxer may own, and it is easy to see that a converted southpaw is bound to have a natural left hook, whereas it takes a lot of time, patience and practice for a natural right-hander to acquire one.

DUKES PLAN AIR ATTACK

JOCK TO KEEP VARSITY IN SECLUSION

Pitt's varsity football squad, the makeup of which will not be known until after the final home workout this afternoon, will leave tonight on the P. R. R. at 11:56 o'clock for Philadelphia, where on Saturday, the Panthers will battle Penn's unbeaten Quaker eleven at Franklin Field.

Coach Sutherland has not decided just what players he'll take along to the Quaker City. The boys are to be given a long drill today and afterward they'll know the best or the worst, as the case may be. No changes are anticipated in the starting lineup, which figures to be the same as squared off against Notre Dame last week.

SECLUSION PLANNED

In Philadelphia the team will be kept in close seclusion at the Manufacturers' Country Club until game-time Saturday, not even coming into town for a workout at Franklin Field Friday.

Three members of the Pitt cast, Ted Dailey, Muggsy Skladany and Izzy Weinstock will be performing in their own section of the country in Saturday's game. Dailey hails from Phillipsburg, N. J., just across the river from Easton, Pa. Weinstock is a native of Wilkes-Barre, and Skladany comes from Larksville, a Wilkes-Barre suburb. Of course, to hear Skladany and Weinstock argue, Wilkes-Barre is the suburb. All three will have hefty delegations of hometown folks on hand to watch them play.

Besides, Harrisburg and Steelton will send their share of fans to cheer Warren Heller, Pitt's all-America hafback hope.

PENN DRILLS SECRET

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania will continue its secret preparations right up to Saturday for the game with Pitt. Breaking its rule of sending the team away from the scene of conflict for a day prior to a big game, Coach Harman will keep his men at work on Franklin Field, perfecting plays that he is expected to spring.

Penn's full strength will start the battle. Capt. Sokolis, around whom there was some doubt as to whether he would be in the lineup at the opening whistle, is reported in fine physical condition and will take his place at tackle.

Penn officials said today that, given good weather, the game is expected to attract the largest crowd that has been seen on Franklin Field this season.

Gov. Pinchot will attend the game as the guest of President Thomas S. Gates, of the University of Pennsylvania.

With Pitt an odds-on favorite to win, the Quakers are not going into the game with any defeatist spirit, Coach Harvey Harman says, and a hard battle is looked for. He is silent on the strategy his team will employ.

Chisox Give Selph, Rothrock Releases

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—John Rothrock, outfielder, and Carey Selp , utility infielder, have been released by the Chicago Whitesox to the Columbus club of the American Association, according to a bulletin yesterday from Commissioner Landis. Officials of the Whitesox were out of the city. Selph was drafted from Houston, Tex., while Rothrock came from the Boston Redsox.

The players were sent to Columbus to complete a deal for Evar Swanson, outfielder, whom the Whitesox obtained from Columbus last September.

Johnson-Townsend Bout 'No Contest'

SPRINGFIELD, O., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—A bout between Larry Johnson, Chicago Negro heavyweight boxer, and Jack Townsend, of Cleveland, was ruled "no contest" last night when the latter took a "dive" to the canvas as the first round started.

Townsend was a last-minute substitute for Rosy Rosales, of Cleveland, injured in an automobile accident en route here Monday.

Stagg Can't See End In Sight For Football

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Amos Alonzo Stagg has had a closeup of American football's Big Parade for a half century, but can't see the end in sight.

"America always will have football without a great change from the game as played today," the 70-year-old University of Chicago coach said reflectively in discussing past and future.

"The game is here to stay.

"A lot of people enjoy football but don't understand its real purpose. Youth is restless and demands what is commonly known as rough house They like to fight or tussle playfully, and football gives them a chance to do it. That's why football is popular and why so many play it, from the smallest sandlot to the largest university."

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A HICCOUGHING RECORD—Mrs. Ed Price, of Russellville, Ark., received the greatest joy of her life on July 12, 1932, when her prolonged case of hiccoughs was brought to a stop by Dr. N. A. Lindquist in Paris, Ark. She had hiccoughed incessantly for 60 weeks, 60 hours 30 minutes. According to Mrs. Price, the malady started as the result of two falls she had suffered more than a year ago. At times the hiccoughing was so severe as to amount to 48 times a minutes, the resultant loss of vitality greatly endangering her life. Her case was a mystery to 12 doctors and specialists attending her for more than a year. A LIQUID MINE—Milk is a veritable mine of minerals. Experiments conducted by Cornell University and by a Scotch dairy research institute disclosed the presence of the following metals, in addition to calcium and phosphorus. In the order of their percentage, they are: magnesium, potassium, iron, copper, zinc, aluminum, manganese, silicon, barium, titanium, vanadium, lithium, strontium and rubidium. The minerals evidently are assimilated in the food of the cow.

TOMORROW: THE MOST FAMOUS NOSE IN HISTORY.

LIONS OPPOSE GRID PIONEER

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 3.—Penn State will play its first football game with a Southern college team since 1925 when it meets the University of the South in the annual Pennsylvania Day game here Saturday.

The University of the South, or Sewanee, as it is better known, is not a familiar name to eastern college football fans, since its football teams have appeared above the Mason-Dixon line on only two other occasions. To the Tennessee university, however, goes the distinction of having taken part in the first North-South intersectional game ever played. In 1909 a Sewanee team lost a 20-0 decision to Princeton University at Princeton, N. J.

Although the southern eleven will come here with a record of only two victories in its first six games, plenty of opposition is expected by Coach Bob Higgins and his Penn State gridmen.

The Tigers, as they are nicknamed in the Southern Conference, held South Carolina to a 7-3 score just a week before South Carolina came north to defeat Villanova, and battled Tennessee Poly to a scoreless tie. Tennessee Teachers and Southwestern were defeated, while Kentucky and Florida each registered three touchdowns against the Tigers to win.

Sewanee is coached by Harry E. (Hec) Clark, a graduate of Sewanee, who succeeded Harvey Harman, former Pitt star, when he took over the duties of head coach at the University of Pennsylvania a few years ago. Clark is assisted by Allen J. Lincoln.

Escaping serious injuries in the Colgate game last Saturday, Penn State should have its strongest lineup of the season on the field against Sewanee. Kane, Cole, Sigel, Wantshouse and Skemp are expected to be in uniform by Saturday, and the Lions injured earlier in the year have all completely recovered and are ready for duty.

Hunk To Stay At Notre Dame —Harper

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Jess Harper, Notre Dame athletic director, today arose in defense of Heartly (Hunk) Anderson and spiked rumors that a new football coach would be hired for next year. He said:

"Rumors can fly where they will, but Anderson will be back at Notre Dame as head football coach. The fact that he lost a game is no reason to fire him. Why, we at Notre Dame feel he has done a fine job. He stepped into a tough job and we like the way he has handled things.

"Any reports to the contrary are mere propoganda and should be treated as such."

Still boiling because of his team's feeble reaction to the Pittsburgh defeat, Hunk worked the regulars overtime last night, even hauling out the ghost ball and turning on the lights to extend the practice session.

Kolls To Umpire In American Loop

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Louis Kolls, veteran baseball player and umpire, will join the American League umpiring staff next year, he was notified yesterday. Kolls officiated for the last two seasons in the International League.

Kolls began his umpiring career in the Mississippi Valley League in 1927 after previous experience as a player in the circuit. In 1927 he went to the Western League and for the next three years he officiated in the Pacific Coast Loop.

PITT TANKERS SWIM STARS

Members of Coach Pat Corr's University of Pittsburgh swimming team dominated the competition in the A. M. A. meet in the Keystone Club tank last night, capturing two titles, setting one record and coming dangerously close to establishing another.

In the 50-yard free style event, a junior A. M. A. championship race, Chuck Chambers, of Pitt, covered the distance in 25.1, breaking the old mark of 26.1 set back in 1925 by Bill Geisinger, of the P. A. A. Lewis, a Pitt teammate, and Fred Miller, of Carnegie Tech pressed him close and finished in the order named.

Russ Lindberg, crack varsity splasher, missed equaling a new mark in the A. M. A. championship 100-yard free-style by two-fifths of a second. His time in winning the final of the event was 0.55.4 against the standing mark of 0.55.2, held by Allan Cross, of the Erie Y. M. C. A. Herman Adlesberg, also of Pitt, finished second. There were 26 in the field for the 50-yard event and a score in the longer race.

The second record of the evening was set by Emma Martin, of the Coyne A. C., who won the girls' 50-yard free style A. M. A. championship in 31.4. The old record was established back in 1928 by Marporie Eller, of the Oliver Club. Her time was 32 seconds flat.

PAUL BEATS SCIOLINO

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Tommy Paul, N. B. A. featherweight champion, decisively defeated Tony Sciolino, local rival, in a fast 12-round bout here last night. Paul gave away weight to make it a non-title affair. He weighed 126½, Sciolino 130.

FLOOR CARD PROTESTED

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Officials of Uniontown High School announced last night that they had notified George W. Cassler, head of the basketball committee of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League, that unless changes were made in the 1932-33 basketball schedule Uniontown would withdraw from the league.

A letter sent to Cassler, they said, pointed out that Uniontown was the state champion in 1925 and won the league title the following year. It said the schedule announced by Cassler last Saturday would bring financial reverses to Uniontown athletic since the opponents listed will not draw crowds as large as teams which were logical opponents and which Uniontown was entitled to meet.

Teams scheduled for league games in Uniontown are Connellsville, Dunbar Township, East Huntingdon Township, Hurst, Mt. Pleasant, Perryopolis and Scottdale.

Talk on Hunting Given by Seals

A talk on the hunting season by Gib Marsh, outdoors writer for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, featured the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE last night. The conditions faced by the hunters was stressed by Marsh.

LOCALS, W.-J. CONCENTRATE ON OFFENSE

By JESS CARVER

Wash-Jeff's football forces may expect an air raid at Forbes Field Saturday afternoon as they trample the turf of the Oakland ball park along with Duquesne's Dukes, so the Prexies' anti-aircraft marksmanship had best be accurate.

Back in 1928, on old College Field in Washington, the Dukes and Presidents were battling for the first time in history. The ball game was all but over, and the score stood at 6-6, much to the chagrin of the Red and Black and to the intense delight of the Dukes. The chagrin of the Presidents was considerably deepened just as the contest ended when Ganzy Benedict, Duquesne's crack left halfback, whipped a long pass over the boal line into the waiting arms of Joe Guerrier for a touchdown and a 12-to-6 triumph. The delight of the Dukes and their followers just about wrecked Washington and carried on over the weekend to Pittsburgh.

THREE FAMOUS PASSES

That touchdown, the one the following year against West Virginia, also hurled by Benedict, and the one in the memorable game with the Haskell Indians, are the three most famous plays in Duquesne football history.

The Dukes are not going to depend entirely on their aerial game for success against Wash-Jeff this time. Coach Layden has rebuilt his backfield again, for about the third time this year, and is pleased with the results obtained so far. Jim McDonald is in at left halfback in the place of Al DeLuca, with Art Strutt at fullback, Ben Pawlina at right half, Frank DeCoster and Sullivan alternating at quarterback. It may be considered a good bet that DeCoster will start Saturday. Yesterday's drill on the Bluff was a secret one, John J. Public being barred like the window of a jail.

But the Dukes will need all the offensive power they can generate. This Wash-Jeff club has been improving steadily, week by week. Despite the fact that my good friend Hank Day, Prexy coach, says his Presidents should be the underdogs, the Red and Black is going to stack up as a right formidable football team here Sat'day, and it will take a brave man to lay any jack on the Dukes at odds.

DEFENSE SATISFACTORY

Coach Day has been spending his time polishing the offense. He was well satisfied with the defensive work of the team against Lafayette last week, but his attacking force wasn't all it might have been.

The Wash-Jeff backfield will have King at fullback, Zagray and likely Tony Ross at the halves and either Port or Shafer at quarter. The line, with the exception of Headley at end, will be the same as started against Lafayette, with Ericus and Bob Fife at the terminals; Armstrong and Rhodes at the tackles; Johnny Fife and Massock at the guards and Gray at center.

The Tipoff

Thar's big doings, big doings indeed, scheduled for Duquesne's homecoming campaign this weekend. The doings will shove off to a good start tomorrow night with a smoker and bonfire rally on the Bluff. At the smoker the principal speaker will be Frank Peter McDermott, who preceded Layden as head coach on the Bluff. Mac, now a district attorney in one of the Eastern counties of the state, was as popular a coach as ever stepped up to the pay-window and was very, very well liked throughout the district.

Saturday, at noon, the University Alumni Association is putting on luncheon at the P. A. A., at which the Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of the university; Alex Reed, president of the Western Pennsylvania Alumni Association of W. and J.; Martin A. Flanagan, president of the Duquesne University group and McDermott will be honor guests. In the evening the Dukes will gather at the Plaza for a party.

Another homecoming game is on tap for the week, Kiski entertaining the old grads by tackling the Pitt freshmen at Salisburg tomorrow afternoon. The Kiski eleven, battered and bruised, will be in the best shape it has attained all season. Young Jim Marks, who suffered a broken leg in the game with the Navy Plebes, will be the only regular missing from the lineup.

Championship fever rapidly is gaining headway out at Pitt and tonight the varsity squad will be tendered a real old-fashioned sendoff before the boys board their special Pullmans in the Pennsy station. The Pitt band is scheduled to be on hand, along with a flock of students. The band will leave tomorrow night for Philadelphia on a special train.

Waynesburg and Geneva expect to clean up right handsomely in their games of Saturday and be right on edge for their battle which will just about decide the tri-state class B football championship in Uniontown Armistice Day. Waynesburg meets Juniata at Huntington and Geneva faces an old rival in Grove City at Grove City.

Carl Snavely is raising the roof with his Bucknell Bisons this week. Only one man who started against Villanova last week is certain to be in there against Western Maryland Saturday. He is Nick Farina, star center, who played a whale of a defensive game against the Mainliners. Snavely is determined to have an aggressive team on the field against Dick Harlow's smooth-working Marylanders. It will take such a team to stop 'em.

"No team is really great until it has been defeated once. If it can come back and win, then it's a real team."

They call Schaldach, California back, "Hard Luck Hank," and his efforts to get into a game against Southern California prove the name very fitting. In 1930, he wrenched a knee a few days before the game. Last year he fractured a bone in his left wrist early in the season and got back into action a week after the Bears met the Trojans. His third and last chance comes Saturday. If he runs true to form, he'll probably develop a case of jitters by Saturday.

DONORA HAS FINE RECORD

STRONG ELEVEN UPSETS GRID LEADERS

By JULIUS LEVIN

Throw out a scoreless tie with Carl Aschman's California High eleven and the Donora Dragons, coached by Jimmy Russell, today would boast a football record that compares favorably with the best owned by a scholastic eleven in Western Pennsylvania.

Heralded at the start of the present football campaign as the juggernaut of the Monongahela Valley, the Dragons are living up to expectations by sweeping aside all opposition in their fight for the Monongahela Valley and class A championships of the W. P. I. A. L.

DEFEAT TOPNOTCHERS

The Dragons, apparently, have no respect for prestige insofar as their opponents are concerned. "The tougher they are the harder they fall," appears to be the slogan of the Donora combine, which, aside from the scoreless deadlock with California, has defeated some of the leading teams in the district. That tie is the only blemish on the Dragons' impressive record.

Included in the list of victims claimed by Donora this season are two members of the class AA Conference, Charleroi and Clairton both bowing before the Dragons. Jimmy Russell's powerful eleven will have an opportunity to add the third Conference victim to their record Saturday afternoon when Monessen is met at Monessen.

DONORA FAVORITE

Monessen's Greyhounds, coached by Preston Ditty, have proved none too impressive this season and unless they have taken a decided brace, Donora should emerge from the contest with colors flying.

Two boys who have stood out prominently for Donora this season are Kalvalcik at fullback and Totedo at end. Both boys have starred in every contest played by the Dragons so far, one of the reasons Russell's eleven is still among the district's undefeated. Totedo has proved himself a brilliant end. He is a deadly tackler, a fine ball carrier and rates second to none on the receiving end of a forward pass. Donora's record to date shows five victories and one tie. The record follows:

*Donora	33—Trinity	12
*Donora	0—California	0
Donora	20—Langley	6
Donora	26—West Newton	0
Donora	6—Charleroi	4
Donora	37—Clairton	0
Donora 122	Opponents	22

*Class A games.

School Notes

The fact that Schenley and South virtually are out of the running for the Section I title of the City League does not detract from the interest fans are showing in their battle at Langley Field this afternoon. Both Schenley and South are represented by powerful grid machines and their duel today should prove an interesting one from start to finish.

The three undefeated leaders in the class AA conference face important contests Saturday with the New Castle-New Kensington fray at New Castle heading the list. Greensburg and Jeannette, also members of the Double A group, stake all hopes for the championship on the outcome of their Saturday games. Greensburg meets Wilkinsburg at Greensburg, while Jeannette encounters Norwin at Jeannette. Greensburg and Jeannette are the favorites.

Scholastic fans attending the Schenley-South duel this afternoon will see one of the best centers in the City League in Charley Miskevics, snapper-back of the South combine. Miskevics has been one of the shining lights for the Tenth street eleven.

Two City League teams play outside games tomorrow afternoon, but the main attraction is the Westinghouse-Mt. Lebanon contest at Mt. Lebanon. Westinghouse appears to be a certain winner in Section I of the City League, while Mt. Lebanon, despite its defeats by Ambridge and Homestead, still shapes up with the best in the district. Two of the best backs in Western Pennsylvania will be seen in action with Mike Dalfonso leading the attack for Westinghouse and Bill Davidson bearing the brunt for the Mt. Lebanon eleven. Allegheny plays at Shady Side.

The Oliver-Langley battle at Langley tomorrow will play an important role in determining the championship of Section II. Carrick entertains a scrappy Perry eleven in the other Section II contest at Carrick. The only game offered Section I fans is the battle between Fifth Avenue and Allderdice at Allderdice.

Pitt-Penn Game Recalls Tom Davies' Greatest Day

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

TOM DAVIES

The eleventh meeting between Pitt and Penn at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Saturday afternoon—their first clash since 1925—recalls to this writer one of the most thrilling games it ever has been his privilege to witness, a wide-open scoring spree by the teams of the same institutions on the same gridiron back in 1920, featured by a great one-man show put on by Tom Davies, stellar Panther halfback.

Pop Warner was the coach of the Pitt team in that year following the end of the World War, and Pitt, which has lost only one tilt and been held to a single tie by the Quakers in 10 battles, was a top-heavy favorite to win, but had to turn on the heat to win by the slender margin of 27 to 21. Probably only one other player ever scintillated in the Davies manner at Franklin Field—the immortal Red Grange, who ran wild for Illinois in 1925.

SCORES 21 POINTS

Davies scored 21 points himself and figured in the making of the other six for his team. Quite an afternoon's work.

Pitt did not look for a particularly hard game for the very good reason that Penn had had its hands full winning over weak foes and had been kicked around by V. M. I. and Penn State on the two Saturdays immediately preceding the clash with the big team from the western end of the state. Harvey Harman, present Penn coach, played at tackle on the Pitt team in that contest and also starred for the Panthers against the Red and Blue in 1919 and 1921.

To the surprise of almost everyone, Penn, coached by John Heisman, scored first, and, but for the heroic work of Davies, would have walked away with the game when it added two more touchdowns in the last quarter. All three of the touchdowns scored by the Quakers came from cleverly-executed forward passes against which the Pitt defense appeared strangely puerile.

HAS FIELD DAY

And here, briefly, is what Davies did before he was through dashing on the rocks of defeat Penn's most inspired stand of the season:

With his team behind, 7-0, starting the second quarter, Tom helped to carry the ball to the eight-yard line, and then, when Penn held fast, he tossed a forward pass to Tommy Holleran, his quarterback, who went over for the touchdown. Davies kicked goal and the score was deadlocked at 7-all.

Penn then kicked off and Davies made the catch on his 10-yard line and raced 90 yards for a second touchdown and again kicked goal to give his team a 14-7 bulge as it left the field at the end of the half.

70 YARDS IN THREE PLAYS

In the middle of the third quarter, Davies caught a punt on his own 30-yard line and raced back 40 yards to the Penn 30 before he was forced out of bounds. On the next play, he cut off tackle for 26 yards to the four-yard line, where he was brought down by a shoestring tackle. On the next play, he hit the line and wriggled through until he had crossed the goal—70 yards in three plays.

This time, Tommy missed the touchdown goal, the ball hitting the cross bar and bounding back into the field of play.

The score now was 20 to 7, but Tommy's day's work was not yet done. As Penn subsequently mounted its total to 21, it was up to the little Welshman with the snaky hips and deceptive stride to fetch still another touchdown, and he came through in royal style.

CLINCHES VICTORY

On the first play of the fourth quarter, Penn got away with a 28-yard forward pass for a touchdown and kicked goal, bringing the score up to 20 to 14. With a chance to win, the Quakers hurriedly inserted the none-too-fit Joe Straus, their fullback star, into the game for the big try. Proving that he was no respector of persons, Davies proceeded to make Joe the victim of his final scoring gesture. With only about five minutes to play, he intercepted a forward pass by Straus on his 35-yard line and raced back unmolested 65 yards to the Penn end zone and then kicked goal to put the game on ice.

Penn caught the next kickoff and ran it back to its 28-yard line, from which point it forward-passed its way to its third futile touchdown before the game ended.

DRAMATIC THRILLER

Was it a thriller, this game? Well, just as a convincer, glimpse this score by quarters:

Penn	7	0	0	14—21
Pitt	0	14	6	7—27

Davies now is coaching at Rochester (N. Y.) University. He is remembered as one of Pitt's greatest gridiron heroes in the days when it played at Forbes Field before the advent of the present beautiful Stadium in Oakland. He entered Pitt during the Students' Army Training Corps days of 1919 and was eligible for the varsity in his freshman year.

Other great days and glorious games adorn the record of Davies. For instance, there was that intersectional battle with Georgia Tech, also coached by Heisman, in 1919 for the benefit of the United War Work Fund. Pitt won by the astounding score of 32-0 over a team which, like its own, had been undefeated over three full seasons.

TWO OTHER GREAT DAYS

The game was played at Forbes Field and, aside from throwing two touchdown forward passes to Katy Easterday, running back two punts for touchdowns and receiving a pass from Easterday that led to another score, he

PETROLLE, CANZONERI ON EDGE FOR TITLE BATTLE

BOUT PROMISES TO ATTRACT BIG 'GATE'

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—An unostentatious young man, who has the idea that the measure of a fighter is how he conducts himself in the ring, and who has won considerable popularity by acting accordingly—Billy Petrolle—makes his bid for the lightweight championship of the world tomorrow night. Billy, who is a real veteran of the ring, although he is only 27 years old, faces Tony Canzoneri in a 15-round title bout at Madison Square Garden.

Petrolle isn't much of a showman until he starts flinging punches. Instead of the fancy trimmings, he wears a ragged old blanket into the ring. He sits quietly in his corner until time to go to work and then he starts about it in a methodical fashion that sometimes brings tremendous results.

BILLY OWN PORTER

In his travels about the country he acts as his own porter and lugs his manager's bag as well.

But after the gong rings it's been a different Billy ever since he started his "comeback" campaign two years ago at the expense of tomorrow's opponent, Canzoneri. In two years he has knocked out such redoubtable opponents as Justo Suarez, Eddie Ran, Billy Townsend and Bat Battalino. He won the hearts of the New York fans with a flashy victory over Jimmy McLarnin, and although he dropped two later decisions to the Vancouver Irishman, he remained a prime favorite.

Canzoneri has been just about as popular since he knocked Al Singer out from under the lightweight crown and the result of their meeting is a box office "natural."

ADVANCE SALE BIG

It has been a long time since any indoor fight brought as big an advance sale and the estimates are the gate, at $10 top price, will be close to $90,000.

Canzoneri has been installed as a big favorite, although Petrolle seems to have overcome the one strong point against him—the possibility that he would have trouble making the weight. He scaled 135½ just a half pound over the limit, when he wound up his training yesterday. Tony, a natural lightweight, scaled 133.

PANKA, PILOT SPLIT UP

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Buddy McArthur vs. Johnny Roberts, 10 rounds, and Jimmy Reilly vs. Battling Murphy, 6 rounds, Fairmont, W. Va.
Freddie Steele vs. Million Milietti, 6 rounds, Tacoma, Wash.

They're through. They threshed out their difficulties yesterday before the local boxing commissioner, who recognized as binding a new contract signed by Panka, but agreed to a settlement whereby Buntach agrees to release Panka in consideration of a promise from the boxer that he will not make a new connection that is not agreeable to Bunny.

Buntach and Panka have been together for three years, during which time George boxed Tom Heeney, Knute Hansen, Emmett Rocco, K. O. Christner, Tony Galento, Pietro Corri, Ace Clark and Charley Belanger, among others, and also served as a sparring partner for Max Schmeling when the latter was heavyweight champion. However, he did not appear able to make much progress here, and the split followed.

Panka may connect up with a manager in New York, and, if he does so, he will depart with the good wishes of the man he leaves behind.

Between Rounds

Frankie Portland, Ambridge lightweight, is seeking bouts. He is managed by Tommy Murray.

Paul Schaeffer, of Winnipeg, Canada, who has been substituted for Paul Delaney as the opponent of Frankie Goosby in the first 10-rounder at the Arena tomorrow night, claims to have scored 14 knockouts in 21 fights, a remarkable average. He has boxed Frankie Battaiglia twice, once to a draw, and also has engaged Phil Ross, Murray Johnson, Harry Wolf, Steve Hess, Andy Woods and others, and is vouched for by George Engle and Andy Neidereiter, of New York.

Johnny Datto knocked off hard work yesterday for his windup battle with Tony Falco in the Arena show. He believes he has a chance to win with a knockout, after having had Lew Massey on the floor twice in their recent bout in the same ring. Falco, by the way, is the boxer who stopped Frankie Bojarski, of Erie, and forced the latter to take a rest.

Bobby Ray, Hill welterweight, is back in town after a campaign in Fort Worth and Tulsa, during which he defeated Red Luther, Red Wills, Gene Knipe, Gus Campbell and Johnny Drew, and lost only to Jimmy Owens. He wants to box Joey Speigal, who defeated him at Motor Square Garden in his last fight here. Matchmakers may communicate with him at 1701 Center avenue.

The Gene Huat-Jimmy Thomas show at Motor Square Garden, scheduled for next Monday night, is out, and there will not be another show in the East End arena until the long-winded marathon dance folds up, which may be almost any day now. Tony Herrera and Eddie (Kid) Wolfe may box a return bout in the next windup.

Marty Gornick returns to action against Moan Baumgartner in a 10-round bout at Dayton, O., Armistice Day night.

Another amateur boxing show will be staged in the Palisades Rink, McKeesport, one week from tonight. Al Conrad will oppose Jack Marifico, Herman Turner will meet Tony Nierhouse and John Burkholder will engage Mel Fink in three of the battles.

STRANGLER VICTOR

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Ed (Strangler) Lewis, recognized in New York as the heavyweight wrestling champion, asserted his supremacy last night by defeating Earl McCready, former Oklahoma footballer, in 12 minutes and 11 seconds.

Iowa Woman Seeks Job As Reds' Pilot

CINCINNATI, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The hands that rock the cradle have put in a bid for a chance to do some ruling in the baseball world.

A woman, a resident of Sioux City, Ia., sent in an application for the job of manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

"I would like to apply for the position of manager," she said. "I am sure I would make a better manager than Joe McCarthy. I am a high school graduate and my greatest sport interest is in baseball.

"I would draw crowds from all over because of being the only woman manager in baseball. I have been tod many a time that I wasn't hard to look at. If you hire me you'll never regret it. I'll be waiting to hear from you."

Nats to Return To Biloxi Camp

BILOXI, Miss., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—For the fourth consecutive year, the Washington club of the American League will train here next spring.

M.-A. LEAGUE MAY EXPAND FOR 1933

EBENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Owners of the Middle Atlantic Baseball League will be called into session this month, President Elmer Daily said last night, to talk over plans of the circuit and possible extension to include eight cities.

Last year Johnstown, Pa., Huntington, Charleston, Beckley, and Clarksburg, W. Va., and Cumberland, Md., made up the six-club league. Wheeling, W. Va., and Zanesville, O., are mentioned as possible homes of franchises for 1933.

Daily said he had been approached on the subject of becoming interested in reviving the Ohio State League and that he might do so. He said:

"If the league is revived it will be a class D circuit and will not conflict with the Middle Atlantic, which is class C."

POTTS TO DUEL WITH ROONEY

By TOM BIRKS

Jimmy Rooney, classed for three seasons as the leading punter in the West Penn Conference, is stacking up against a serious contender for kicking honors on Sunday when the J. P. Rooneys clash with West View at Greenlee Field.

Bill Potts, former Villanova star, will do the kicking for West View. It was this star's booting that kept the Papales on the defensive in last Sunday's game. Whether Potts will be able to equal Rooney when it comes to lifting the pigskin out of trouble remains to be seen, and the fans will await with interest the duel between the two stars.

The McKeesport Olympics are in for a tough battle at Bellaire. The fans there still are claiming the Eagles should have defeated the Rooneys, and Hart Morris and his gang will be on the warpath when the Olympics pull into town.

Etna Sycamores helped their chances in the Lightweight Conference title race by defeating the Oakland Community gridders, 19 to 6, at Etna High School field last night. A large crowd watched the action.

Once again Cannon proved to be the big gun for the Zivic-coached club. Cannon scored two touchdowns for his team. The lone Oakland tally came in the final period when a forward pass paved the way for a score. The lineup:

Sycamores—19.		Oakland—6.
Medoek	L. E.	Bahr
Harding	L. T.	Gardner
Marcoley	L. G.	Sullivan
Metzger	C.	Silverstein
Melder	R. G.	Winnick

Sycamores	0	0	13	6—19
Oakland	0	0	0	6— 6

Substitute — Mehringer. Touchdowns — Cannon 2, Mehringer, Brown. Goal from touchdown—Cannon (placement). Referee—Horne. Umpire—McCartney. Linesman—Monahan.

In a Tri-County League game last night, the Ambridge Cauls defeated the Jenkins eleven, at Homestead, 7 to 6.

178 Players Seek Ice Team Berths

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—It must be a record of some sort when 178 hockey players attempt to join one team.

The Junior Royals last year's Eastern Canada finalists in the Memorial Cup competition, called a practice last night. No less than 178 players overflowed six dressing rooms and crowded the ice at the forum until the workout was a total loss.

DAVIES' GREAT DAY RECALLED

didn't have much to do with the outcome. One of his touchdown runs was from midfield and the other from the 40-yard line.

Then there was the day Pitt played Lehigh in a driving rain at Bethlehem, Pa., and, with darkness settling over the field midway in the final quarter and both teams exhausted from sloshing aimlessly through the mud toward a scoreless tie, he broke away on a 50-yard run for a touchdown and then intercepted a desperate Lehigh forward pass bid for a tie in midfield and was off for a second score.

A PITT IMMORTAL

We've had Gibby Welch and Fats Heller and Paul Reider and Mike Sebastian and other great runners at Pitt since Davies, but the latter's amazing feats, topped by his classic against Penn an even dozen years ago, remain ever mellow in the memories of the loyal sons of the local university.

A. L. Player Lists Show No Decrease

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Washington, Cleveland and Detroit lead the American League in the number of players listed on the 1933 reserve list with 39 each.

The list, announced by President Will Harridge, shows no move on the part of most American League clubs to economize on player hopefuls for the 1933 season. With the maximum set at 40, Chicago and New York listed 38 each, Philadelphia 30, Boston 28 and St. Louis, usually low in the number of recruits, 22.

Chicago filed no claims on the services of Coaches Johnny Butler and Bill Cunningham, giving rise to a report that they would not be rehired for next season.

Vanderpool Beaten In Pimlico Race

BALTIMORE, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Vanderpool, once winner of 15 consecutive races, dropped down to the claiming division yesterday, but finished seventh as Mrs. A. Carfano's General A, a consistent performer among high-class platers, led eight rivals over six muddy furlongs at Pimlico.

BENSWANGER TO SPEAK

William E. Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Attorney Ben H. Giffen, of Pittsburgh, will be the principal speakers at the banquet to be held tonight for the Franklin American Legion junior baseball team in Franklin.

Fight Results

At Detroit—Billy Marrone defeated Young Geno, 10 rounds.

MARKS TRIED AS END

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Bill Marks, sophomore end, former Kiski star, was given a thorough tryout in place of Smithies as the Princeton varsity scrimmaged the freshmen yesterday.

Eastern Briefs

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Army held its final hard workout before the Hravard game yesterday, dividing the time equally between attack and defense. After a long layoff the Cadet varsity showed a lack of co-ordination and fumbles were frequent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Columbia had a long passing drill with Linehan, who took Montgomery's place at quarterback, and Brominski and Tomb doing the heaving.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Fordham held its first scrimmage yesterday since September 28, in preparation for the St. Mary's game. The rebuilt first team scored three touchdowns against the freshmen.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Yale got back to work yesterday after a three-day rest and had some trouble finding its form again. The varsity was tossed back repeatedly by the scrubs in scrimmage.

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Bart Hanus, one of the Holy Cross injured fullbacks, joined the squad yesterday for a defense drill against Brown plays and a rehearsal of new formations. Buzz Harvey, tackle, also returned to action.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Brown held a long defense drill against Holy Cross plays yesterday in its first outdoor practice of the week. Every man on the squad was reported in good condition.

Ketterer May Start In Titan Backfield

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Out of the scrimmages of Westminster College gridmen this week has emerged Cromwell Ketterer, of Rochester, Pa., a substitute, as a probable regular in Titan games to come this season.

MARRONE VICTOR

DETROIT, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Billy Marrone, Detroit, making his first start as a professional fighter, pounded out a 10-round decision over Young Geno, of La Salle, Ill., at Arena Gardens last night. Marrone, former state amateur champion, needed everything he had to defeat Geno. He weighed 135 pounds, Geno 127½.

OSWALD TAKES CUE LEAD

Harry Oswald replaced Billy Greenwood in first place in the sectional qualifying three-cushion billiard tourney, being held in the Crookston rooms, East Liberty, as he captured a pair of victories yesterday, while Greenwood was the victim of the first big upset defeat of the tournament. The event will be concluded tomorrow night, with the winner invading New York next week to meet section winners in the Gotham tourney for the right to compete for the national title.

Oswald won two matches yesterday. He first defeated Mackin, 50 to 43, in 73 innings, and later won over Kish, 50 to 36. His high run of eight in this match was the best of the day.

Greenwood lost a hard-fought match to Seaback, 50 to 43, in 76 innings. It was Greenwood's first defeat and forced him into second place. He has an opportunity to regain the lead today as he plays twice, meeting Seaback and Mackin.

In the other match on yesterday's program, Kish won over Seaback, 50 to 49, in 95 innings.

At 1:30 today, Greenwood takes on Seaback. At 3:30, Seaback plays Mackin. Greenwood meets Mackin at 7:30, and Kish plays Oswald at 9:30.

	W.	L.	Hi Run
Oswald	4	1	9
Greenwood	3	1	6
Mackin	2	3	7
Seaback	2	3	8
Kish	1	4	6

Maxie To Fight Lewis in 'Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Maxie Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion, and John Henry Lewis, Prescott, Ariz., Negro, who holds the California state title, were matched yesterday by Promoter Frank Schuler for a 10-round non-title bout here November 16.

Rosenbloom was slated to meet Lou Scozza, of Buffalo, N. Y., here November 9, and his place will be taken by James J. Braddock, of New Jersey.

SPORT SCRIBES TO SPEAK

Harry Keck and Chester L. Smith, local sports editors, will be speakers at a dinner of the Dormitory Dinner Club at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. at 6:15 o'clock this evening. A football autographed by members of the Pitt, Carnegie Tech and Duquesne University squads will be given as a prize to the winner of a contest, the object of which will be to name an All-America team conforming with one to be agreed upon by the guest speakers. William A. Scheder, resident members' secretary of the "Y," is in charge of the program.

PRO ICE LOOP PLANNED FOR LOCAL FANS

If plans now in a tentative stage are carried out, Pittsburgh will have a four-club professional hockey league all its own this winter.

A group of local business men, according to reports, are planning to organize the new circuit, on the order of the famous Bankers' League which provided this country with its first professional hockey. A number of Canadian hockey stars have been approached and offered berths. The four clubs will operate under separate management and a schedule drawn up to run for about three months and a half.

If the league becomes a fact, play will open next month.

KIPKE PROVES REAL ABILITY

In four seasons as head coach of the Maize and Blue, Kipke has broken through the tough Big Ten field with a superb exhibition of leadership, an exhibition that has resulted in a share of two titles and perhaps the undisputed possession of the 1932 crown.

Kipke was thrown for a damaging loss in 1929, his first year as head coach at Michigan, but his comeback has been remarkable. In 1930, he led Michigan to a tie for the Big Ten title with five straight Conference victories. Last season, a record of six victories and one setback was good enough for a title share with Northwestern and Purdue.

GOPHERS FEARED

Indiana, Chicago and Minnesota remain on Michigan's campaign route this year, but only the up and coming Gophers are conceded a chance to stop the Maize and Blue rush.

Northwestern may give Ohio State a glimpse of a real forward pass tosser when the two teams clash at Dyche Stadium Saturday. Roy Augustson, a reserve back, was sent to the first string last night by Coach Dick Hanley and he showed plenty with long, accurate heaves that rained touchdowns on the freshmen.

ZUPPKE HEARTENED

Heartened by Illinois' victory over Chicago last week, Coach Bob Zuppke worked at a high pitch to stop Wisconsin. Dave Cook and Liden Piatt, both weighing over 200 pounds, were sent to the line to give it more weight. At Wisconsin, Coach Doc Spears ended a flock of experiments by using the same team that held Ohio State to a tie last week.

Gar Wood Expects New Speed Marks

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Gar Wood, world record speedboat holder, yesterday told a luncheon meeting that the only boundary for speed on water is that set by horsepower.

Some improvement in hull design will be necessary with engines of greater power and weight, Wood said, but the main problem is to get the horsepower and the rest will be simple.

Wood believes the day of greater speed is no far distant. His Miss America X, in which he set the world mark at 124.91 miles an hour last September, is capable of greater speed.

GRINS From the GRID

No. 21

The coach of the freshman football team at any college or university has a real job on his hands. He must convert great high school fullbacks into linemen and centers and guards into backs.

In the first year, most of these boys are over-anxious and under the new surroundings often pull some stunt that marks them the rest of their college days.

A tackle on the Florida team, in tackling a runner, was able to grab the ball away from the backfield man and started to run toward Mercer's goal.

This all was perfectly legal and a fine play, if it can be done.

The Florida coach was elated and was cheering his tackle on when suddenly the player stopped, and, turning, handed the sphere back to the opposing backfield man, who was running just behind in hope of stopping the runner.

When the tackle reached the bench the coach demanded his reason for giving the ball back to the opposing team once he had captured it. The freshman exclaimed:

"Well, as soon as I got the ball the referee took out after me. I thought he was going to penalize me, so I hurried and returned the ball."

Rometo Rejoins Wash-Jeff Squad

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 3.—Albert Rometo, Glassmere, Pa., returned to his right halfback post as the Washington and Jefferson College varsity was sent through a grueling scrimmage in preparation for its struggle with Duquesne University at Pittsburgh Saturday.

Rometo, absent in the Lafayette game on account of a brother's death, is likely to receive a starting assignment, but Tony Rosso, Pittsburgher, star of the Easton fray, may get the call.

Despite stories emanating from the Duquesne stronghold, listing them underdogs in Saturday's game which will mark a resumption of grid relations between the schools, Coach Leroy P. (Hank) Day refuses to concede his Presidents an edge.

Lafayette Ratifies Nine-Game Schedule

EASTON, Pa., Nov. 3.—(INS.)—Lafayette's 1933 football schedule, the stiffest and longest in years, had been ratified today by the faculty committee on athletics, but only after emphatic protests. The faculty members declared that it was too long and difficult and ordered that in the future a tentative schedule be submitted before contracts are signed.

Nine games in all will be played by the Leopards. Columbia and New York University will be met in New York City, while Pennsylvania will be played at Philadelphia in outstanding away from home contests.

Other games are listed with Colgate, Bucknell, Rutgers, Muhlenberg, Lehigh and Franklin and Marshall.

LOSING IS FINE EXPERIENCE, STAGG SAYS

STAGG'S SELECTIONS

Michigan over Indiana.
Purdue over Chicago.
Wisconsin over Illinois.
Nebraska over Iowa.
Notre Dame over Kansas.
Detroit over Marquette.
Oklahoma over Missouri.
Michigan State over S. Dakota.
Minnesota over Mississippi.

By AMOS ALONZO STAGG,
Head Coach, University of Chicago.

No one can tell me how it feels to take a licking, for, like Paul, of Tarsus, "I know how to be abased." Happy the coach who at such times visions the feelings of his players and can go to them with words of gratitude and comfort and courage and inspiration. Some of the best experiences of my coaching life have come through these recent lean years when Chicago twice did not win a single Conference game and in others had only one, two or three Big Ten victories. I recall the furious rage of a celebrated coach when I met him after a game which Chicago had won. He was excoriating his players with the most violent language because he felt that his team had laid down on him. I said:

A. A. Stagg

"Oh, ———, your team did not lie down on you. Chicago seemed to me a bit stronger and we got the breaks. Last year Chicago did not win a single Conference game, and I know that the boys fought their hardest to win every contest."

It is seven years since Chicago has won a Big Ten championship and it hasn't cut any figure in the Conference standing since 1927, when it won three games and lost three. Chicago's defeat by Illinois last Saturday has just about put it out of the running for the season. Chicago's chances for winning over Purdue Saturday look distinctly poor. Purdue did to New York University what its friends had been expecting right along, and what was almost within its grasp at Evanston two weeks ago.

PURDUE IN HARD LUCK

Any team which can run up a yardage of over 300 yards and cash in for only one touchdown is playing a bit in hard luck. If Chicago allows Purdue to make that amount of yardage it will not get off so easily. The big question is can the Chicago line stand up before such a barrage of smashes and deceptive thrusts and flanking sweeps as Purdue's running attack delivers, and also can its backs ward off the attack by air. It seems at this moment quite impossible. On form, Purdue should win by two or three touchdowns.

By reason of Michigan being undefeated, the Michigan-Indiana game at Bloomington will catch the eyes of the whole Middle West. The setback sustained by Indiana at Chicago isn't going to hurt its chances in this game, for Coach Hayes in his family talks undoubtedly has used this defeat to bring out and emphasize some very important lessons.

INDIANA FACES TEST

In the first half of the Chicago-Indiana game particularly, it seemed to me that Indiana lacked fire. Without fire, it will not have any chance to compete against the dash and the precision and the excellent judgment which Michigan employs.

Basing my opinion on the superior quality of Indiana's players, a possible tie or victory is within reach, but the soundness and smartness of Michigan's play, plus a very strong defensive system in its excellent kicking, a stubborn line, and a tight defense against forward passes, assures Michigan against more than one score ever being made against it. Michigan's own attack is so effectively directed that, with the superior marksmanship of Sharpshooter Newman, it is to be expected that a couple of scores can be chalked up by it in every game.

The Ohio-Northwestern game looms as an even fight, but Wisconsin should chalk up a victory at the expense of Illinois.

STOCKS FALTER AFTER EDGING HIGHER

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The stock market again spent its time faltering at the crossroads today.

The list showed some signs of taking the downward course again in the early trading, but selling soon subsided, and small losses were reduced or regained. By early afternoon the list was holding close to the levels of the previous close.

The reaction of the previous session had reduced the general price level to the area at which it met support in the reaction of early October, and traders were inclined to keep to the sidelines until it became clear whether those resistance levels would be broken. Brokers said that much of the selling in yesterday's late slump had apparently been for short account, but that discouraged liquidation had also been in evidence.

News developments of a character to influence the list were meager. Estimates were being made in brokerage quarters that the weekly freight car loadings report would show the sharpest drop since the week of the Labor Day holiday, indicating rather clearly that the seasonal peak had been passed. Nevertheless, there were indications that the recent gains in general business were being fairly well maintained. William A. Irvin, president of United States Steel, said during a plant inspection trip that business activity was showing real improvement. Dun's tabulation indicated that the volume of bank clearings was being well maintained.

Firming of the gold mining issues was presumably a reflection of the renewed slump in commodity prices. As other commodities decline, the value of gold increases. Gold mining stocks had quite a flurry while commodity prices were declining earlier in the year, but had been rather neglected during the recent stiffening of the price level.

EATON STOCK RETURN CITED

BALTIMORE, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—An accountant testified in Circuit Court here today that dividends of "more than 300 per cent" a year were paid by Continental Shares, Inc., to Cyrus S. Eaton and his associates on $10,000 of "founders" stock.

Eaton was formerly president of Continental Shares, a Cleveland investment trust, capitalized in Maryland at $112,000,000. George L. Gugle, of Columbus, O., a stockholder, has brought suit to have a receiver appointed.

The accountant, R. E. Warren, said that more than $325,000 dividends were paid on the $10,000 stock. His statement about the "founders" stock came after he had testified that the dividend rates on common and preferred stock ranged between 6 and 8 per cent.

NEW YORK GETS RELIEF LOAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—New York City arranged today with the Chase and the National City banks for a $21,500,000 loan at 5¼ per cent. It was in the form of special corporate stock notes, dated November 4 and due June 14, 1933.

Chase, Harris, Forbes Corporation and National City Company re-offered the issue for sale at a price to yield 4¾ per cent.

The 4¾ per cent interest equals the lowest rate at which the city has borrowed funds in nearly a year.

The money will be used for unemployment relief, payments to contractors and routine payments of the city on account of rapid transit construction, school and hospital construction and similar charges.

Gold Shares Return To Speculative Favor

Mining shares as a group are not especially in favor these days, the copper stocks for example, but there is an increasingly strong drift of speculation in the direction of gold stocks. Back of this tendency is the belief that companies engaged in producing the yellow metal are destined to be garnering real profits for a goodly spell before the representatives of industry are solidly back in position to show substantial recovery of earning capacity. Homestake Mining has been a singularly strong feature for months past, and today was returned to prominence as it pushed ahead to new high levels for the year.

Declaration of the regular dividend of 25 cents a share on its common stock by General Motors after the closing yesterday failed to arouse any quickening of the speculative pulse. In fact, the big motor company stock itself was slow in appearing on the tape this morning. The dividend action was not unexpected, even though Wall street fully realized the poor showing for the first nine months and the lack of promise for the current quarter.

Austria will be dependent upon the importation of foreign wheat to the extent of almost 40 per cent of its total requirements, or approximately 8,083,000 bushels, during 12 months ending August 31, 1933, the Commerce Department is informed. In former years, most of the imports have consisted of Hungarian wheat, which cannot be imported this year.

There has been some selling of Radio Corporation common on the theory that any release of shares by General Electric and Westinghouse shares would more than double the total radio common in the hands of the public, and that such distribution would tend to temporarily depress the shares.

The New York Stock Exchange emphasized that its recent action in striking from the trading list certain matured bonds was "based upon the fact that these securities have lost certain legal attributes of negotiability, and not because of any determination as to their intrinsic value." The exchange made this announcement because of information that "its action had been used as an argument to persuade certain holders to dispose of their holdings for the purpose of acquiring other securities of somewhat doubtful value."

United Aircraft "pools" have not been active in the stock, but are understood to be still in existence. The company is expected to report its third-quarter earnings within the next week, and Wall street looks for the official figures to be in line with early estimates of 25 to 30 cents a share on the common, or about the total of the entire first half net of 28 cents a share. The company's business is reported to be going along satisfactorily, with fair-sized orders or books from both home and abroad.

Penna. Oil Well Activity Restricted

OIL CITY, Pa., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The Derrick says Pennsylvania grade oil completions during October were 136 with daily production totaling 447 barrels. During September completions were 123 with initial daily output of 459 barrels.

Canada to Lower Cigaret Tax By 33 Pct.

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The Globe quoted its Ottawa correspondent today to the effect that a reduction of 33 per cent in the excise or domestic tax on cigarets will be brought about during the present session of Parliament.

The contemplated change, the Globe said, would reduce the tax from $6 a 1,000 yielding $30,000,000 in annual revenue, to $4 a 1,000.

PA. STOCK TAX DRIVE ON

HARRISBURG, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania today had launched a campaign to collect capital stock bonus payments unpaid by corporations.

A "superficial examination covering a period of approximately one year" disclosed that more than 50 corporations, "either through ignorance of the law or by design," have failed to pay the required bonus on the capital stock increases, Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth, said.

He said the campaign for collection of these delinquent payments will be carried on jointly by the state, Revenue and Justice Departments.

Beamish said he expects that "in a reasonable short time" the offenders will be rounded up and will be forced to pay the $5,000 fine provided for violation of this law. This fine is in addition to the payment of the bonus due.

Insurance Firm Cuts Dividend on Policies

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The Guardian Life Insurance Company of America will reduce dividends to policyholders 15 per cent, effective January 1, says Carl Heye, president. Directors approved the cut at their meeting last week. Surplus earnings are expected to be sufficient to allow the present dividend scale for 1932, but the board thought best to reduce the 1933 rate in consideration of prevailing conditions.

Kroger Obtains Tax Injunction

CINCINNATI, Nov. 3.—Kroger Grocery and Baking Company has been granted a temporary restraining order against the City of Maplewood, Mo., preventing it from enforcing an ordinance recently adopted, taxing chain stores.

General Electric Adds 2,500 Workers

STOCKS WEAK ON MARKET HERE

Stocks on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange were listless during the morning trading with transactions taking place in only a few issues. Prices showed no definite trend. In most cases prices represented only fractional changes from previous closing levels.

Independent Brewing opened at 4¼, up a quarter of a point from yesterday's last sale. Columbia Gas showed a fractional loss. Armstrong Cork at 5½ was unchanged on the opening transaction.

The weakness of stocks in New York during the morning was a major contributing factor to the dullness and uncertainty of the local list.

WHEAT, CORN AT NEW LOWS

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Wheat and corn smashed low price records right and left today as soon as trading began. All future deliveries of both grains plunged to new bottoms. A drop of 3 points in British exchange rates was a disturbing factor, together with reports of still cheaper offerings of Argentine wheat to Europe. Opening ¼-¾ down, Chicago wheat futures continued to fall. Corn started ⅛-⅜ off and subsequently weakened further.

About a cent a bushel tumble in wheat prices were registered before the market steadied. Corn and oats sympathized with wheat weakness, but were partly sustained by evidence that corn export business had broadened. Provisions reflected upturns in hog values.

CAMPAIGN END 'GOOD NEWS' FOR TRADE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Good news is ahead for business and finance! The election will be held next Tuesday, when the present lamentable campaign to confuse economic thinking will be dropped.

Surface attempts have been made to scare the public for vote getting purposes. But the big men of Wall street have not in the least been fooled. Their attitude is reflected by the comment of the National City Bank, which concludes that "both parties have taken the conservative side of the major issues."

Mr. Rukeyser

Nowadays, there is a dearth of bulls, perhaps no one should quarrel with President Hoover's attempt to fill such a role in his address at Madison Square Garden, New York. Yet, apart from political considerations, I cannot share his view that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's emphasis on the new social importance of organizing the consumer and improving methods of distributing wealth, instead of concentrating on problems of production, stamps the Governor as a pessimist.

As a matter of fact, I was chatting on this very subject the other day with the president of a great and successful industrial corporation, who accepts Roosevelt's views on his question, and who went so far as to say that, with better distribution of wealth, the new industrial technical efficiency would give the average man greater plums under capitalism than Karl Marx dreamed of.

In stating his conception of the next phase of America's economic destiny, Gov. Roosevelt in his San Francisco address said:

"It (our task) in the soberer, less dramatic business of administering resources and plants already in hand, of seeking to re-establish foreign markets for our surplus production, of meeting the problem of under-consumption, of adjusting production to consumption, of distributing wealth and products more equitably, of adapting existing economic organizations to the service of the people."

Holding that business had not yet reached the zenith, Hoover characterized the Roosevelt viewpoint as that of a defeatist.

Yet really there is no philosophic conflict on the facts. Roosevelt emphasized the well-known fact that our skill in production outran our ingenuity in organizing consumption. Though the need is to bring distribution up to a plane of equal efficiency, it of course does not mean that production, as determined by science and invention, will have no new fields to conquer.

COTTON PRICES FALL AGAIN

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 3 higher on steady Liverpool cables and trade buying which offset southern hedge selling. December, 6.03; January, 6.10; March, 6.20; May, 6.29; July, 6.38; October, 6.53.

There was only a moderate volume of business at the start. December eased to 6.01c and March to 6.15c, or about a point under yesterday's close, and the market was barely steady at the end of the first half hour.

The market was fairly steady later in the morning. Orders were well divided with the trade buying on dips while the southern selling continued and prices held within a very narrow range. At midday December was ruling around 6.01 and March, 6.17, or about 1 point net lower to 1 point higher.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 3.—Cotton, 1,000 bales, including 900 American. Gillette Settles With Segal Lock

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 3.—Two patent infringement suits instituted by Gillette Safety Razor Company have been settled and entered in record of United States District Court here while a third suit against Standard Safety Razor Company, is in progress before Judge Thomas. The suits settled were against Segal Lock and Hardware Company, of Norwalk, and F. H. Crygier Tobacco Company, of Hartford, for the sale or manufacture of razor blades alleged to be infringement on the Gillette patent.

Garment Capitol Receivers Named

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Jesse Woolf and Irving Trust Company have been appointed receivers in equity by Judge Caffey in Federal District Court for the Garment Center Capitol, Inc., Seventh avenue, between Thirty-sixth and Twenty-eighth streets. The petition was filed by a debenture bondholder. The corporation owns real estate and office buildings valued at $17,200,000.

YOUNGSTOWN'S OUTPUT UP

YOUNGSTOWN, Nov. 3.—Youngstown district steel plant operations at mid-week were slightly under 20 per cent capacity as against 19 per cent at the week's start, with both raw steel output and finishing mill production slightly higher than indicated in initial schedules for the week.

Sheet-tin plant and strip production is higher than a week ago and pipe production is holding, indicating that ingot production will be maintained at least at the current level for another week.

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company will give the equivalent of 30 days' work to 275 men in rebuilding and enlarging its conduit plant at the Struthers (O.) works. Cost of the project is $70,000, of which $40,000 will be spent for labor.

Big Bluffing Bout Shortly To Commence

By B. C. FORBES

WALK UP, ladies and gentlemen, the curtain is about to be drawn on the greatest international bluffing contest ever staged.

YOU WILL see all the leading nations of Europe in action. They will put on bouts among themselves; but, ladies and gentlemen, the star act will be Europe versus the United States.

MONTAGU NORMAN, governor of the Bank of England, (you may remember him as the celebrated "Professor Skinner") has already shown you how uniquely important is the forthcoming exhibition by smashing to atoms his life-long silence, a silence theretofore as profound as that of the Sphinx.

Mr. Forbes

He opened his zealously guarded mouth to proclaim to the world—and especially to the United States—that Great Britain is in a dark, dark tunnel and may never emerge from it. Others may profess to see daylight at the end of the tunnel; the "Professor" warns that he doubts whether daylight will ever again be reached by Britain.

LADIES AND gentlemen, be prepared to witness exciting thrilling, alarming acts by John Bull, acts calculated to make Uncle Sam—Uncle Shylock, to Europe—shake in every limb. It will be demonstrated to Uncle Shylock that if he insists upon even a modest portion of his (war debt) pound of flesh, either the central pillars of the British empire will totter and fall—or Uncle Shylock will be made to fare even worse than his classic namesake.

If strategy demands it, expect, ladies and gentlemen, to witness British sterling take the most perilous plunge in all history. All the scenery has already been set for this breathtaking act. It is designed to frighten Uncle Shylock as he has never been frightened before, to conjure up the despoiling of all his foreign markets by that "empire on which the sun never sets."

THE AMERICAN Goliath, gold, is to be mortally wounded by the British Empire's David, sterling — unless the Goliath agrees to make sacrifices sufficient to molify the desperate David.

SUPPORTING THE "empire on which the sun never sets" will be such powerful seconds as France and Germany.

France, as you well know, ladies and gentlemen, has been itching to get the better of Uncle Shylock. She has made it no secret for years that she has no intention of paying even a quarter of a pound of flesh, that she means to coerce Uncle Shylock into surrendering the claim stipulated in the bond.

GERMANY, TOO, has demonstrated to you, ladies and gentlemen, that she is determined, by hook or by crook, to get from under the obligations fastened on her.

YOU ALREADY had a curtain raiser, ladies and gentlemen, at Lausanne. There you saw enacted "a gentlemen's agreement," an agreement by interested European nations to deal very, very gently with one another—but not so gently with Uncle Samuel.

Fair words, blandishments, doubtless will first be essayed. Uncle Samuel will be assured that he never, never was regarded as an Uncle Shylock, but really as an international Santa Claus. That, he will be told, is really his natural role; why not on this momentous of all occasions live up to such a wonderful reputation?

BUT, LADIES and gentlemen, should the flattery fail to induce Santa Claus to make gifts mounting to billions, then will come threatenings of the "third degree," involving the destruction of Uncle Samuel's world markets by the agile David, sterling, buttressed by a network of tariffs and "quotas" calculated to hobble Uncle Sam fatally.

Follansbee Purchases Rights for New Strip Mill

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

ANNOUNCEMENT THAT the Follansbee Brothers Company has awarded contracts for the erection of a cold rolled strip mill plant to cost $500,000 and that the organization has taken licenses to erect a hot strip mill and 10 cold strip mills under the Steckel patents reflects a marked change which is taking place in the steel industry.

A few years ago, outstanding companies were spending millions of dollars for the construction of continuous wide strip mills. These mills made possible the rolling of strips in widths previously limited only to sheet mills. They made the production of sheets on the new types of mills several dollars a ton cheaper than was possible in the past.

The new plants, however, required large investments and could be built only by leading steel producers. The rush to build mills of this type was so great that, even under active general business conditions, the existing continuous wide strip mills will be able to work only a few days a week.

* * *

Cheaper Types Of Mill Equipment Perfected

MORE RECENTLY new types of mills have been perfected which can do nearly as much work as the continuous strip mills, with savings nearly as great, and which cost only fractions of the amounts needed for previously developed types of equipment.

It is now possible for smaller streel producers to secure equipment to roll strip steel in sheet widths without building plants with capacities far beyond probable future needs and with a relatively small capital investment.

* * *

New Mills Solve Sheet Problem

UNTIL A FEW years ago steel sheets were rolled on small stands of mills. The billets were fed into the mills by hand, were caught and returned to the roller by a catcher and were rerolled until they were reduced to a certain thickness. They were then doubled over, reheated and rerolled until the desired gage was secured. After this the pack of doubled over sheets had to be pulled apart and trimmed on all four sides. The amount of labor need for such operations is obvious.

The continuous mills rolled billets into long strips of sheet mill widths without reheating. Series of four-high mills, in which the working rolls were backed up by additional rolls to prevent breaking, made it possible to reduce the metal to the desired thickness. Such plants were costly and required production reaching into large tonnages to pay expenses.

The Steckel mills, which are in use in several plants in this district and which have just been adopted by Follansbee, use a single four-high mill for hot rolling purposes. The rolls are reversed and the steel is passed through the same stand several times to reduce the metal to the desired thickness. In order to manage the great lengths, the strips are handled on rolls at each side of the mill. On the hot mills, the reels are placed inside of furnaces to maintain the temperature.

The final stage of reduction is accomplished by cold rolling in a similar mill except that the power is applied to the reels instead of the rolls. In this way the metal is drawn through the mill instead of being pushed through by the rolls.

Follansbee will purchase hot rolled strips from other producers for finishing in its cold mill until it builds its own Steckel hot mill. The company has been licensed to use the Steckel process by the Cold Metal Process Company and has ordered its 38-inch mill from the Baldwin-Southwark Company, a subsidiary of the Baldwin Locomotive Works. If Follansbee carries out the project to erect the full number of mills under its license, the total cost will be $2,500,000.

RIVER TONNAGE TAKES JUMP

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 3.—Sharp increases in coal and coke shipments handled by the Monongahela Railway Company and commerce tonnage dispatched through Lock No. 5 here in October are recorded in statistics disclosed by river and rail officials.

The railway lines moved 839,300 tons of coal and 23,160 tons of coke, a gross boost of 77,790 tons over the corresponding period in September, which required the placement of 1,596 additional cars. The volume of rail business was nearly on a par with this year's peak month of April, officials indicated.

Commerce shipped by river aggregated 422,125 tons, representing an increase of 69,695 tons over September's figure. River coal tonnage amounted to 65,420 tons, with coke loadings accounting for most of the other pickup in trade.

Central R. F. C. Loan To Give 1,500 Jobs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—A work loan of $2,500,000 for the New York Central Railroad was approved today by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The loan will provide work for 1,500 men for seven or eight months in the shops at Indianapolis and East Buffalo.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—There were few signs of convalescence in the bond market today and price uncertainties continued to make for caution on the part of most investors and traders.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Will Your Wife be the Victim of Doorbell Swindlers?

TWO MILLIONS A DAY

EACH working day of the year more than two million dollars are distributed to widows and children of life insurance policy holders in the United States. Nearly ninety per cent is paid in lump sums. Insurance company figures show that "90 per cent of estates of $5,000 or more are entirely gone in seven years."

Where does it go? How will your life insurance money be handled?

Under our life insurance trust plan we take responsibility for investing this money and paying the income, and any part of the principal, to anyone you name.

Elizabeth Reluctant About Visit to Folks While Fiance Stays Home

CHAPTER XIII.

Lennox and Elizabeth were not consulted as to their plans. They were to be married, Louisa decided, in the late spring, no, in early June, at church, and come home to receive at Washington Square. Then they would go away for a little trip. On their return they would make their home with Louisa. This plan passed without comment. Lennox Sheldon drew a nominal salary from the business, an allowance from his mother. George Sheldon's will, made before Lennox was born, left all of which he was possessed to his wife. It had never occurred to him to change it, after the boy's birth. There was a covering clause in it, in which Sheldon set forth that he was cognizant that children might be born to him, in which event he trusted his wife to provide for them.

Elizabeth had wished, but not audibly, to be married from her own home. Louisa, in her planning, anticipated this. She remarked, merely, that it would be simpler in every way for the wedding to take place in New York, that as Elizabeth had been a member of the Sheldon household for sometime there would be nothing unusual in the arrangement. Ella and the girls would come on, of course. There was plenty of room, and they could be put up for several days quite comfortably. Louisa would give the trousseau.

MISGIVINGS

Elizabeth's mother and sisters had written. It seemed to Elizabeth that they were curiously unastonished that such a miracle should have befallen her. Yet they wrote lovingly to the verge of sentimentality and she read their letters of admonition and affectionate rejoicing with such unconcealed tears that Louisa, watching her, thought her far too emotional. And she knew a moment—not the first—of misgiving.

Louisa knew other moments, marking how nervous and almost spectacularly handsome Lennox grew as the weeks went by, how thin Elizabeth's hand, so thin that the ring must be returned to Tiffany's and made smaller, lest she lose it. Louisa thought—calf-love—and resigned herself to the position of involuntary spectator until late spring—and after.

Once, however, in early winter, she turned on the stair, after bidding them good night, and surprised them there at the foot of the long flight, moveless and embraced. She set her teeth and went on up to her room, having made no sign that she had seen.

Arriving, she closed the door, and sat down in a straight-backed chair and looked unseeingly ahead of her. She was trembling, she did not know it. She said to herself, marshaling her thoughts to order, "I think the child should go home for a time, until perhaps a week or so before the wedding. Ella will want her, she wishes to go."

ELIZABETH PLEASED

Louisa congratulated herself upon this kindly thought and spoke to Elizabeth the next morning.

"I have heard from your mother," she said, truthfully enough, "and she feels that you should be with her for a little time before your marriage. It is eight months since your last brief visit to her and I find it quite fitting that you should return for a while."

Elizabeth nodded, flushed with pleasure. She wanted to go, wanted to be held in her mother's meager, loving arms, wanted to cry and laugh with her sisters, wanted to talk about Lennox. She had tried to talk about Lennox to his own mother, she had asked so many tremulous questions. What kind of a baby had he been? What had he looked like as a small boy? Didn't Cousin Louisa think him the handsomest, cleverest —? But Louisa had not proved responsive nor encouraging. She had answered laconically. A healthy baby, a good little boy, growing she trusted, into a fine upright man who would walk righteously, etc., etc.

When the plan for Elizabeth's departure was told Lennox, he looked blank. Go home? For months? Be absent from this house which he had come to love since she entered it?

STAYS FOR HOLIDAY

"Yes."

"No—but—"

She couldn't say. She couldn't tell him that she did want to leave him, for a little while; that she wanted to be away from the enchantment of his presence which was with her in his house even when he was not, wanted to sort out her emotions, as it were, look her love in the face, grow familiar with those too dazzling features. Here, in these short weeks, her eyes were blinded by an ardent light. Home, perhaps, in the old surroundings, she might see clearer, both herself and him.

She answered weakly.

"I feel that I should be with mother—she'd be hurt."

It was decided that she would go to Boston the day after Christmas, returning in May. The wedding date had been finally set for June.

Christmas was not a particularly gay festivity in the Sheldon household. True, a heavy, elaborate dinner was served, with the eventual plum pudding on a silver platter surrounded by the witch-flame of burning brandy. They had a tall tree, and many gifts, and people came calling. But there was no lightness about the day, no simplicity of rejoicing. Elizabeth wished that Lennox could know the kind of Christmas celebrations she had known, lumpy stockings and a little, happy tree, laughter and carols and kisses.

LENNOX HELD BEHIND

This Christmas, the last before her marriage, began and ended with church. She had a little string of pearls from Louisa, a bracelet from Lennox, dozens of other things, including the embroidered bureau set from Henrietta. The home people would not send her their box, this year, she would so soon be with them. Her mother wrote that she would postpone their little fete until Elizabeth arrived. Perhaps Lennox would come too?

He could not. His mother reminded him that he must not neglect his apprenticeship at the office, must not begin it by taking a holiday.

Louisa was happy, in her dour fashion. The girl would be going. The future settled, there would be a little breathing space for the woman who had planned it. She would once more be alone in the house. She would have, for her solitary worship, the idol of her indomitable passion. She would have days of him, weeks, months, without the irritant of that alien claim and presence. She would glut herself with him, she would store up, hoard, her memories.

There was a late church service Christmas night. Louisa and Lennox attended it. Elizabeth had been excused, she must rise early on the morrow in order to make the tiresome trip to Boston.

BECOMES RESTLESS

The services were at 10 o'clock; they included a tree for the parish protegees; Louisa had supervised the trimming of it. They would be home by half past 11. Elizabeth must not sit up, said Louisa considerately, she would see them all in the morning.

Elizabeth went up to bed. She had kissed Louisa, she had brushed Lennox's cheek with her lips, she had said good night to Henrietta. Her trunk was packed, strapped and ready.

She could not sleep. She began to wonder how soon they would come in. Perhaps they would come early. Why had not she asserted herself, she thought resentfully, gone with them, or waited up, after all? She was not tired, not in the least.

Now that tomorrow drew nearer with every ticking minute, her heart failed her, her imagination fell into fever. To be separated from him so long? What might happen? Anything might happen! One or the other might sicken and die. He might tire of her, meet other girls, prettier, defter, cleverer.

She could not go.

She could not go without seeing him once more, alone. Tomorrow she would be forced to say good-bye to him under the very eyes of Louisa of, perhaps, Henrietta. He could not even take her to the station. She could write, of course, but of what worth were words? She wanted the reassurance of his arms, the broken sentences that were not sentences at all, the agonizing comfort of his lips.

It seemed to her that she was parting from him forever. June was still June—but five long months away.

It was midnight when she heard them come in. First one of the clocks struck, solemnly, definitely. Then there came the sound of a bell, of a heavy door, opening, closing. Then footsteps.

She heard Rogers put the chain on the door for the night and go down to the basement quarters. She heard Lennox's voice and Louisa's. She heard them come upstairs, heard them stop at Louisa's door. Her own room was down the bend of a long corridor, next to a guest room.

She heard Louisa's door shut. Then, next to it, Lennox's.

Synopsis

Mrs. Louisa Lennox Sheldon realized her most important dream seemed to be coming true when her son, Lennox, announces that he wishes to marry Elizabeth Howland, Mrs. Sheldon's companion. The proposal was made when the trio were returning from a tour of Europe. Two years before, Mrs. Sheldon had arranged to bring Elizabeth to her home and set the situation for a romance after the vigilant dowager had discovered signs that Lennox had participated in at least one student revel where gay girls were featured parties. She decided then he must marry young. The engagement is announced formally, Lennox enters his deceased father's office, and the lovers have to exchange written notes because Mrs. Sheldon is such a constant chaperon.

Now Go On

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Take a stage show—eight prizes—a hair raising mystery picture, a Betty Boop cartoon, and a thrilling serial of the "Golden West;" put them in order on the stage and screen and serve. These were the ingredients used to make up an entertaining program for the members of the Belmar Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club last Saturday. From the general noise, including applause, stomping of feet, yells and whistles, the show was successfully consumed and digested.

Manager Harry Feinstein introduced Polly Chamberlin, a cute little girl who did an eccentric dance. Polly literally had the members standing on their feet with the smooth rythm of the steps she performed—a big round of applause was given her—which she richly deserved. The excitement subsiding—Janet Cleeland was introduced and proceeded to amaze the members with a beautiful toe dance.

It was easy to see that Janet was putting her heart and soul into that dance. The members evidently were imbued with the same spirit, for they sat quietly and watched attentively until the conclusion of the dance—a dance which by virtue of its graceful poses, balanced on the toes of the performer—twirls and bows, can only be really appreciated by that kind of silence of rapt absorption which creates a tie or bond between the performer and audience. That spell was broken only when Janet danced into the wings, then pandemonium reigned, but quickly quieted when Manager Feinstein announced that time would not permit encores.

ACROBATIC DANCE

Helen May Connor was next and entertained with an acrobatic dance. Helen has been working real hard on her dancing, and the evidence of this hard work was seen by the members. What with difficult somersaults and hand springs, Helen had the entire club sitting on the edges of the seats wondering just what she'd do next. The burst of applause at the end of the dance was sufficient proof that the members were well aware of, and fully appreciative of the fact that Helen worked hard to entertain them.

This was the first course, that is, the end of the stage show.

Already the waiters—pardon—the ushers were bringing the second course, or rather the prizes to the stage. This was the part of the program in which any or everybody took part. The results were as follows: Johnny Recter received a football; Betty Jorowsky was the recipient of a beautiful baby doll; Robert Hull chose a cap pistol in a leather holster; Johnny Body was given a large rubber ball; Sara Watkins, upon being given a set of dishes, invited the members up for tea, and Rose Gratacelli was given a toy sweeper—well, Rose can't give the old excuse to her mother about the sweeper being too big and clumsy for her to handle, for now she has one to fit her size.

SEE MYSTERY

This ended the second course or rather the prizes. So that now, as the children were already getting themselves set for the third course, that is, the mystery picture, Manager Harry Feinstein gave the signal—"On With the Show."

The Nomination Accepts the Candidate

We wish to thank the admirers who started voting for us yesterday.

On that day we expect America to march three times around the polls and home again without stopping.

Not that we can censure the righteous citizens who took time by the toupee and cast their ballots in advance. We appreciate the beautiful sentiment and we are certainly going to count their votes until exhausted.

On the total ballots cast yesterday we are far ahead of the field and into the ditch on the other side.

We have a big chunk of 30,000,000 votes in simple arithmetic. Running alone we are not forced to divide the result with the Vice President.

From now on you are going to have a one-man government with eggs done on both sides. We never promised you a duet of chickens in every pot. We never promised you two families in every garage.

YOU'LL FIND 11 CARS IN TH' WHITE HOUSE GARAGE — PAINT THEM TO MATCH MY 11 SUITS

We never promised you anything. We made no promises. And we shall keep them.

Starting next Tuesday it's every man for himself and no proxies. This is going to be a government of the average citizens. We will lend a match to the humblest man provided he brings the cigarets.

We have been asked about those 11 magnificent motor cars in the White House garage. Shall we dispose of them? No, that is false economy. We shall use those 11 cars and plenty of gasoline because we have great respect for the traditions of Thoreau, Benjamin Franklin and Daniel Boone.

We will not violate an old American custom of getting something for nothing and demanding a refund.

You are going to get good government. You may not recognize it at first. So in order to make the change gradually we are going to give each citizen a pair of smoked glasses and a police whistle.

Friends, you have chosen wisely. At last, the day of corruption is over and safe hands are in your pockets.

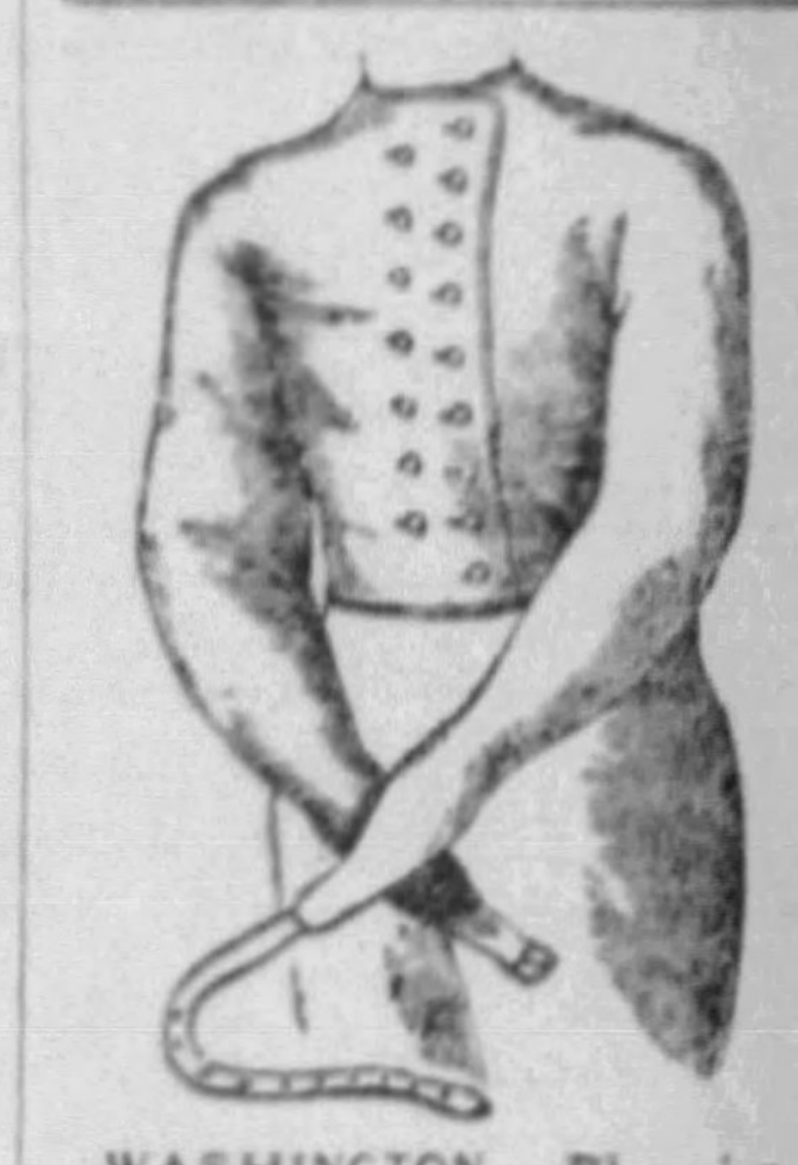
FRISBY FLAYS PLOTTERS



WASHINGTON.—Placing patriotism before partisan politics, Congressman Frisby today announced that he had discovered another deep-laid plot to restrain voters from registering their true choice on next Tuesday. His official statement, illustrated with the above cut, was then handed out to a man named Lewitz:

"What is to prevent unethical capitalists from freely distributing these jackets? Which, when slipped on, buttoned down the front, with the arms folded across the back and buckled, would make it practically impossible for millions of well wishers to write my name on the ballot. It is my belief, gentlemen, which I state with all the power at my command, that our nation cannot exist half slave and half free!

"Yours for a five-cent cigar, Horace Walpole Frisby."

The Water Rate Protest

Mt. Lebanon Township Is Aiding Pittsburgh in Its Complaint to the Public Service Commission.

The complaint that has been filed by Mt. Lebanon Township against the rates of the South Pittsburgh Water Company is of interest, of course, to all customers of the company. The City of Pittsburgh is the largest customer, hence every taxpayer is concerned in the outcome of the suit.

The city has an agreement with the company under which the city pays the company the difference between the city water rate and the South Pittsburgh Water rate, thus insuring a water supply at city rates to the company's 17,095 consumers in the southern sections of Pittsburgh.

The gross payment to the company, $92,553 in 1919, will amount to about $560,000 this year. The city is expected to collect $220,000 from consumers served by the company, leaving $340,000 to be raised by taxation. This amounts to about one-half mill.

There has been a feeling that the taxpayers of Pittsburgh have not been getting a square deal in this matter. The Real Estate Board has suggested that the agreement between the city and the company should be terminated. Moreover, it has placed the subject first in its list of matters submitted to Senator James J. Coyne's committee as suitable for investigation in connection with the committee's work to reduce the cost of government.

Mt. Lebanon Township is rendering the City of Pittsburgh a service in challenging the fairness of the water company's rates.

How to Increase Jobs

Unemployment Will Be Reduced If the Government Will Establish the Five-Day Week.

Government throughout the United States—federal, state, county and municipal—can reduce unemployment immediately by the power of its own example, if it will require all contracts for public works to be let either on the basis of a six-hour day or a five-day week.

All contracts to be let under public works programs yet to be authorized should include some such "share-the-work" clause, and it should be added to all public works programs already begun.

And the power of the government's example in nationalizing this "share-the-work" movement will mobilize public sentiment in support of an irresistible popular demand that private enterprise shall contribute toward the reduction of unemployment by utilizing wherever feasible the five-day week or six-hour day schedule for the period of the emergency.

Representative spokesmen of capital and labor are strong supporters of the "share-the-work" movement as a practical measure for the relief of the unemployed.

Among 28 eminent economists who have recently indorsed the adoption of either the five-day week or the six-hour day as an emergency relief measure are Dr. Thomas S. Adams, of Yale University; Dean Wallace B. Donham, of the Graduate School of Business Administration, Harvard University; Dr. Richard T. Ely, president of the Institute for Economic Research; Prof. E. R. A. Seligman, of Columbia University, and Prof. F. W. Taussig, of Harvard University.

These notable authorities point out that the individual employe, as an offset to his or her sharing, would enjoy greater job security. And the individual employer might expect to get some reduction in taxes as well as some reduction in charitable contributions to needy families of the unemployed.

Millions of men and women now unemployed would benefit greatly by the spread of employment which would inevitably follow from the nationwide adoption by government and private enterprise alike of "share-the-work" schedules.

And William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, spoke for these unemployed millions when he said the other day:

> "If employers of labor will give the 'share-the-work' movement their full and complete support, increasing employment, creating work opportunities for idle people, great improvement will be noticeable within a very short time in the industrial and economic situation.
> "In like manner, laboring people can well afford to co-operate and work with the committees formed for the purpose of furthering the 'share-the-work' movement. Through such co-operation and support, they can extend substantial aid to more than 11,000,000 idle workers and those dependent upon them."

Election of Roosevelt and Garner and a new Congress Democratic in both houses on November 8 is the next step toward reducing unemployment by sharing employment because they are resolved and prepared to fulfill that plank in the Democratic platform of 1932 which pledges all its candidates to "the spread of employment by a substantial reduction in the hours of labor and the encouragement of the shorter week by applying the principle in government service."

Hard on Truck Owners

The Wisdom of a New Law Is Brought Into Question By Neighboring States' Retaliation.

The Legislature passed at the last special session a law requiring motor trucks from other states which are operated as common carriers to bear Pennsylvania licenses when passing through this state.

The law was effective October 15, but vigorous enforcement did not start until Tuesday.

Now comes word that six neighboring states and the District of Columbia are retaliating with a vengeance. They are demanding that not only Pennsylvania trucks operated as common carriers but all commercial vehicles from Pennsylvania shall pay license fees for operating within their boundaries. The states are West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and New York.

It is estimated by truck owners' associations that Pennsylvanians will have to pay $2,000,000 a year for the license plates of other states because of the new law. The law is expected to yield an annual return of $100,000 to the Commonwealth.

Pennsylvania was once a leader in advocating that motorists should not be required to take out a license in every state in which they drive.

The wisdom of abandoning that policy is made questionable by the latest development.

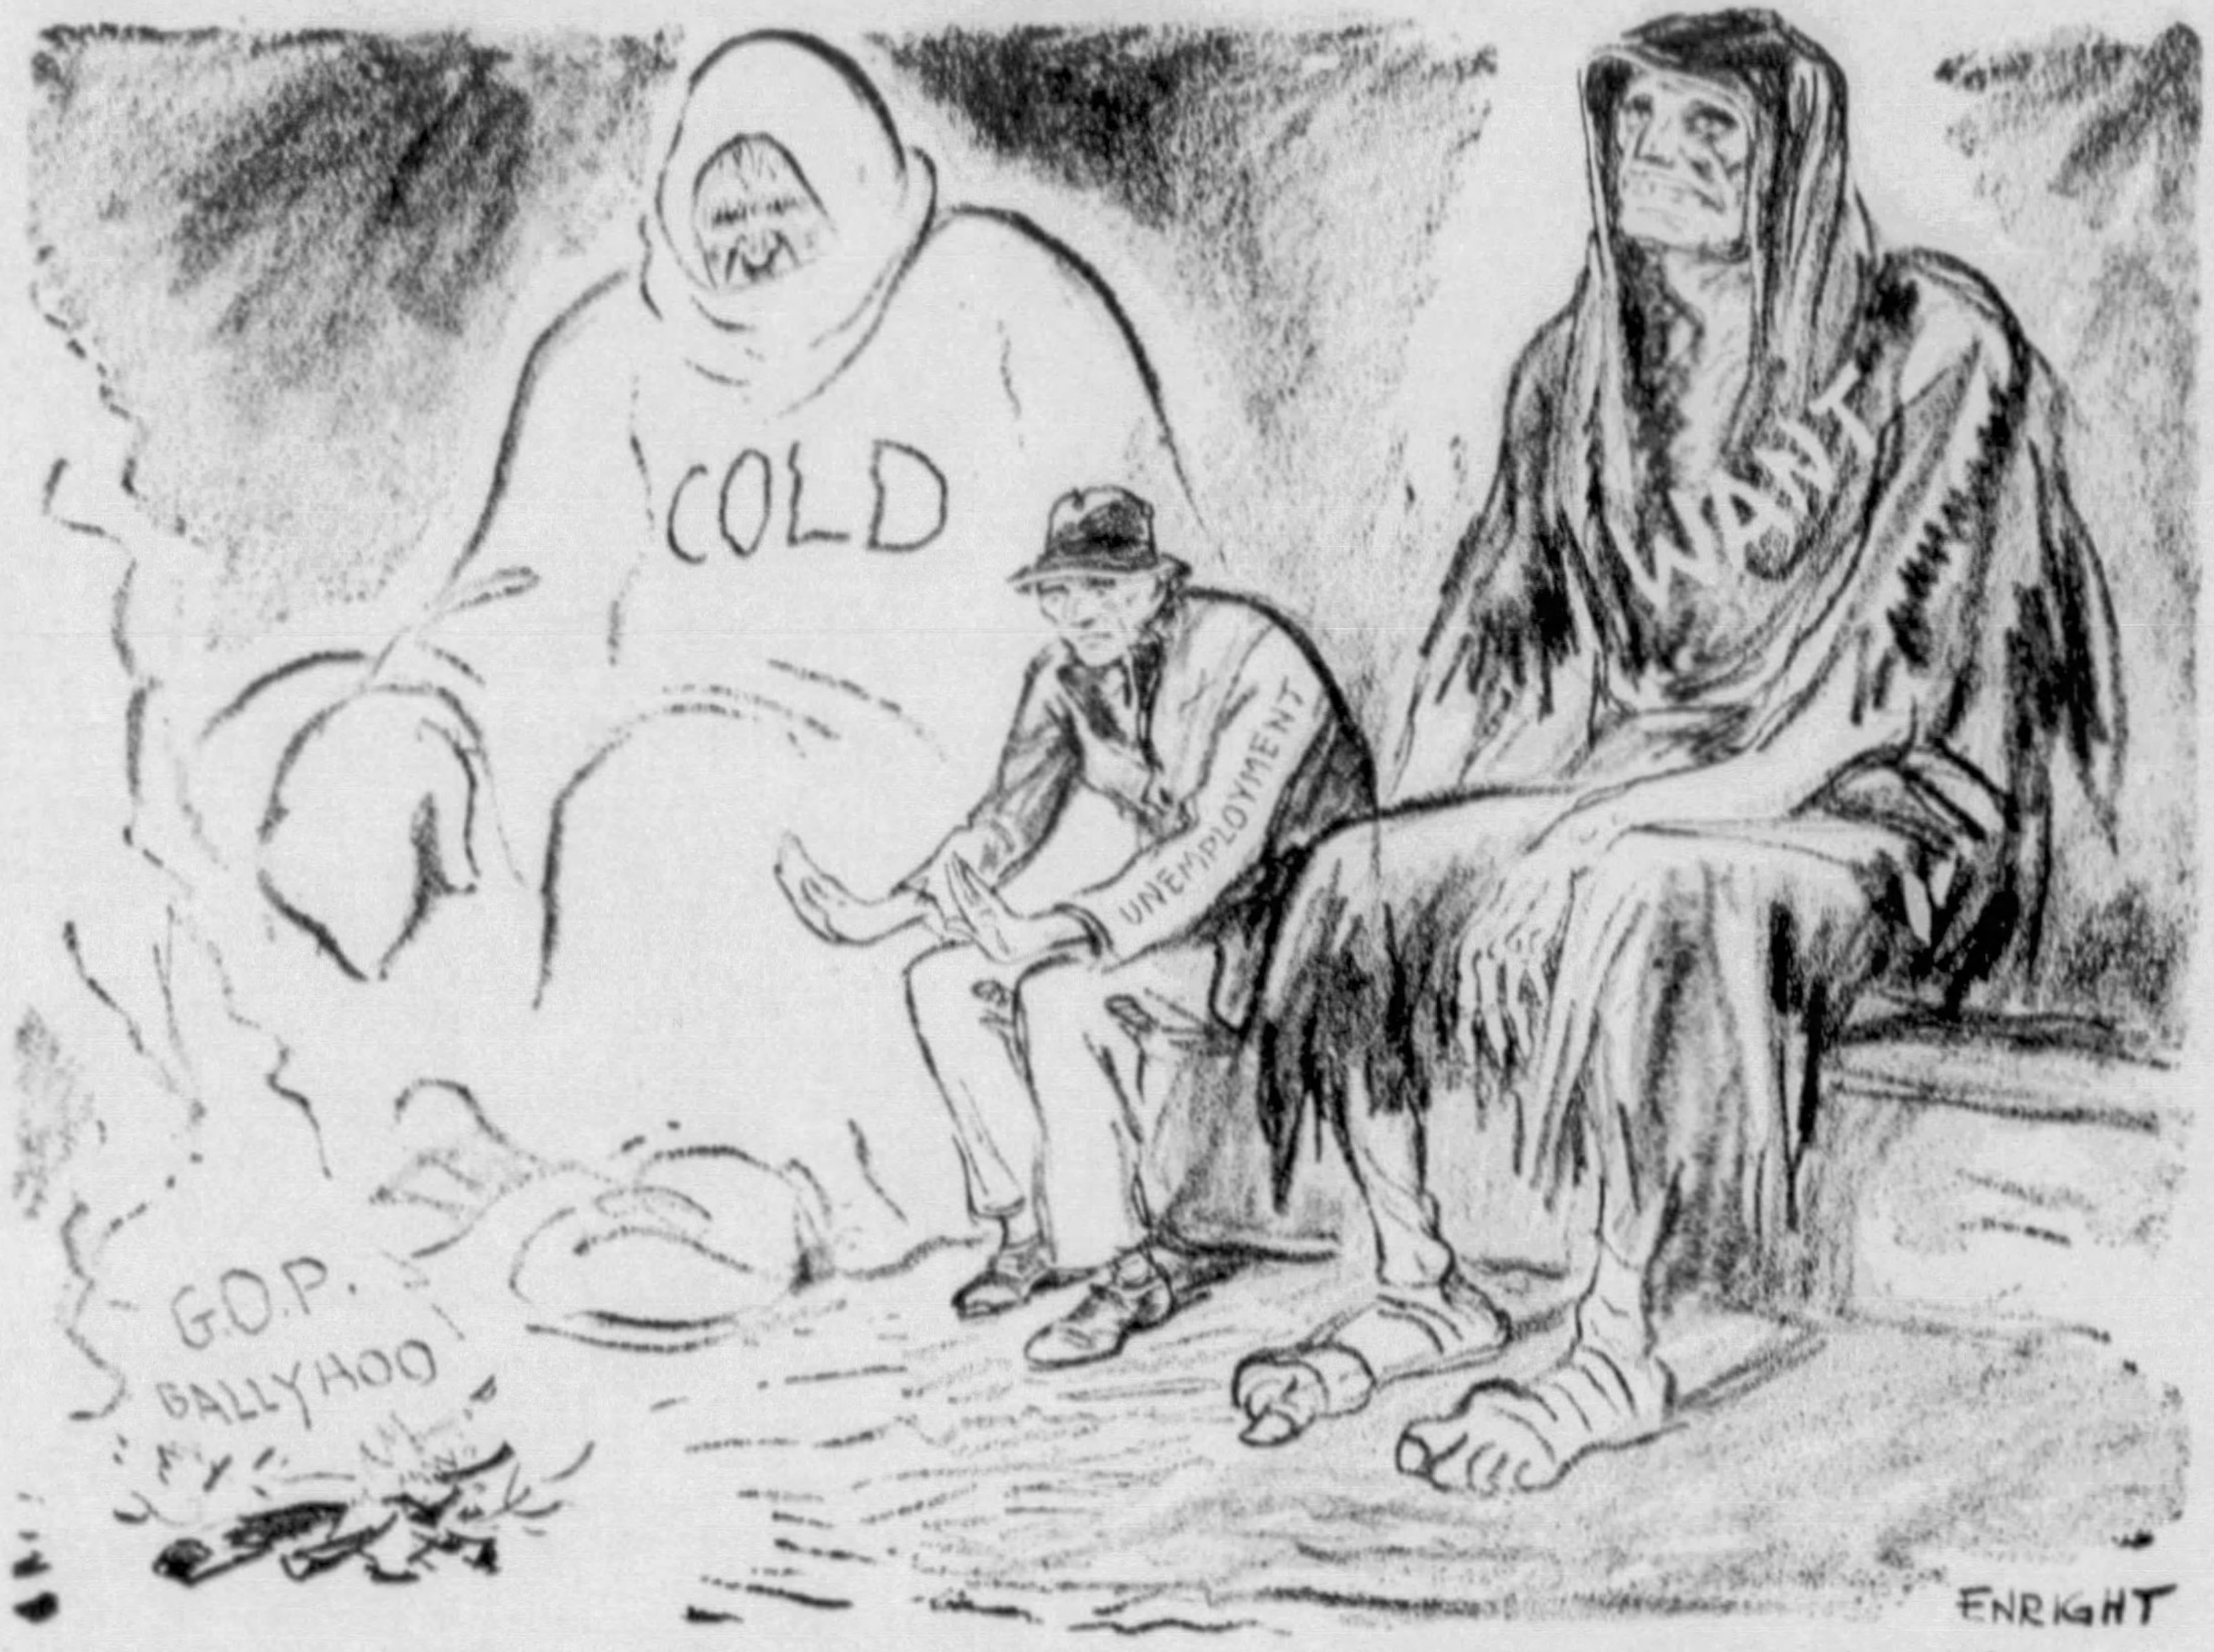
Small Comfort When Winter Comes

(Copyright, 1932.)



Though ballyhoo may warm the heart
When days of Summer glow,
No phrase in all forensic art
Can melt the driving snow.
There is no warmth in ballyhoo
When blasts of Winter throb.
Its flame is cold as ashes to
A man without a job.

Though ballyhoo may feed the mind
With pictures bright and fair
It is no food for humankind
In hunger and despair.
Year after year the same old song,
Grown feeble now and wan—
And Winter coming on.

The Transparent Sex

There are 40 ways of charming a man. The first consists in knowing when to make a fuss over him—and the other 39 in knowing when—and HOW—to let him ALONE.

* * *

When a woman "puts a man out of her life, forever," she usually leaves the door unlatched, hoping that he will sneak back in again, when she isn't looking.

* * *

The average woman can listen so much faster than a man can talk, that by the time he has reached the end of an argument, she has beaten him to it and is starting all over again.

From the way in which the average young man glues his hair down on his head with pomade these days, you'd imagine he was defying any woman to run her fingers through it.

* * *

A man may laugh at your clothes, your politics, your hats and your philosophy, and still think you charming; but when he refers jocularly to your tears as "sniveling," your reign is over.

* * *

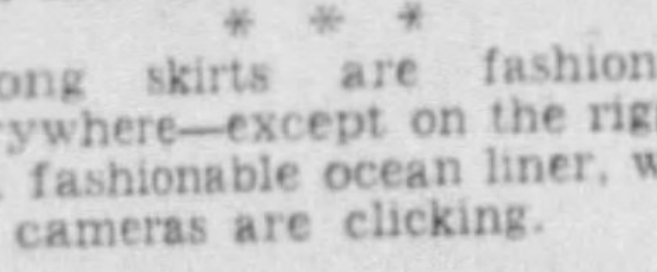
* * *

Long skirts are fashionable everywhere—except on the rigging of a fashionable ocean liner, when the cameras are clicking.



I SENT MY SUIT TO BE CLEANED

The darkest hour of marriage is that just after the honeymoon has gone down—and just before the dawn of a deeper and sweeter understanding and comradeship has begun to peep over the horizon.

* * *

Most men need to be "mothered." But there are some "self-serving" husbands, who seem perfectly capable of taking care of their colds, their clothes, their digestions and even their morals—thus robbing a woman of her greatest thrill in life.

* * *

Thank heaven, not all men prefer the same kind of women—or what would become of the brunettes?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

—By O. O. McIntyre—

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Broadway, in its continued decadence, does not these days appeal to gilded youngsters coquetting with Bohemia. Pampered bloods prefer to break their speed records along the Riviera's Corniche road, away from prying kinsfolk, and where the liquor is not only cheaper but less lethal.

The last speakeasy sacrifice was the shyly bewildered Smith Reynolds. At "No. 21" and other spots they still re-hash how he sat on the edge of chairs in perpetual blink. He did not melt easily into the modern fluidity, but, as mawkish as it sounds, the Broadway of lights and headache finally got him.

In the same way, Broadway "took" Danny Caswell, boyish Cleveland millionaire. He, too, was blinded by the glitter. A schoolboy romanticism catapulted him into a show girl marriage and an amble down the primrose path. At 25, a robust constitution buckled with delirium. And he died.

Young Draper Daugherty, son of an attorney general, looked upon Broadway from his velvet-shod cloister as a spot for an occasional hale evening. In the end he was caught in its frenzy, squeezed dry and tossed aside like a tossed peel from an orange-drink stand.

The White Way's last cycle untrussed many other frolicking fellows, including Jim Donahue and Kip Rhinelander. And the Broadway pace for Russell Ryder, Herbert and John Locke diminuendoed into a prison lock step. All might have been happy today but for that nebulous area—known as Broadway.

A private mansion speak is directed in person by a former maid of Bernhardt. The guardian of the front door peep-hole is also feminine, as are bartenders. An attraction is a buxom chanteuse improvising sudden lyrics about visitors and their calling. Given "John Eppis—broker" she, like a shot, lyricizes not only his business and appearance, but winds up with a blear-eyed sophistry linking his name in pop-eyed ryhme.

* * *

Idiosyncracies: Will Hays wears small, button-sized lapel flowers. . . . Gene Tunney's handwriting is strikingly feminine . . . Helen Morgan goes stockingless and sandaled to parties . . . With toe nails tinted a bright cherry red . . . Bruce Barton is always in the front row at a John Golden opening.

They were discussing Ring Lardner's glum humor. At Miami Beach one season a persistent hostess, in the same hotel with the humorist, kept his phone ringing entreating him to attend a cock-tail soiree. He finally consented. After the crowd gathered he drifted into the room in owl-eyed aloofness, handed the hostess a card and squatted sullenly in a far-away corner. On the card he had parodied:

But I will add to the general gloom
And wish to Heaven I was back in my room.

George D. Buckley invariably visits the paddock at races. At Belmont, some time ago, with Joe Moore, he watched exercise boys lead entries about. One especially sleek, trim-ankled and beautiful 2-year-old caracoled before them.

The mail is flooded with winter resort brochures. One stresses informality of a certain inn. "You are only expected to be social and wear a dinner coat one evening a week," it purrs. With my worries, I should try to sit up and look charming even one ity-bitty night a week!

* * *

Many of us want to hibernate this winter in the manner of the sore-footed bear. As soon as I can find a suitable cave I expect to button myself in and let go in a whole season's pout. Indeed if they don't do something about the world, I may not even come out for my annual spring dance.

LISTEN, WORLD!

—By Elsie Robinson—

I had never seen a gorilla. Facing the big, open air cage, I was filled with the liveliest expectation. Here, I had been told, was the strongest, fiercest thing in captivity. Jungle strength, in its most savage form, that would be a thrilling sight.

But when the huge beast ambled out of his lair, I was a little disappointed. He was horrible enough a hairy nightmare. But so clumsy and badly proportioned—surely that vast bulk of bulging muscle could not get under way fast enough to be a great menace.

Then, with a sudden movement, he left the earth and was clinging to the steel bars roofing the cage.

He did not jump. He did not leap or lunge. He simply rose upward in one, long, silky curve—and began to swing. And, swinging, he was thistledown!

Not a sound—not an abrupt movement—

Yet never a sound! Muscle flowed into muscle . . . rose and fell, locked and relaxed . . . softly as the slipping of shadow across still water.

And then, while I watched incredulously—not believing that this thing could really be happening at all—the enormous, black hand reached silently out—gripped a three-inch steel bar—and twisted it as though it were a spider web. And the keeper's shout of warning was like a blow, crashing through a dream.

So that was strength. Real strength. That soft, silky outpouring of power . . . so perfectly controlled, so exquisitely coordinated that there was no need of sound or haste or conscious effort.

And I had had such a different idea of strength. A childishly crude idea. For, somehow, I had thought strength needed to be noisy. Needed to attract attention. So that people would pay attention . . . would be a little frightened.

But strength—real strength—did none of these things. Real strength had no self-consciousness in it. No secret tinge of fear, whch needed noisy assertion to stimulate itself, or impress others.

That was the test of strength—

ITS ABILITY TO FUNCTION WITHOUT EFFORT—TO DO THE THING REQUIRED WITHOUT FRICTION.

And noise and bluster—they were not signs of strength at all. They were really signs of weakness and fear!

Once Overs

—By J. J. Mundy—

Isn't it true that you make comparatively little effort to control your moods?

If you feel depressed, if you feel like fault-finding, in fact if you are inclined in any disagreeable way, you let that mood hold sway.

When you reach your place of business or place of employment in a cross and irritable condition, don't you at once begin to display that spirit with those with whom you come in contact?

What should please you brings no word of commendation from you.

You feel "out of sorts" and you vent your feelings upon those least able to retaliate.

If you were just and had complete mastery of yourself you would not permit your ill-temper to color your conduct toward those in no way responsible.

It is hard enough for a person to withstand the criticism that his own infractions or mistakes may cause, so don't make life harder for those around you.

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Isn't It So?

Hoover Senatorial Candidates in East

—By Claude G. Bowers—

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

We have heard so much about the "sons of the wild jackasses" in the Senate from the West from administration sources that it may not be amiss to call the roll of Republican senatorial nominees in the East. Who are these superior gentlemen that they should be so wrought up because such men as Walsh, of Montana, are in the Senate?

In Connecticut, the candidate is Senator Bingham, and he is not unknown to fame. Not so long ago he figured conspicuously in one of the most disgraceful incidents in the history of the Senate. The discovery was made that he had slipped into the secret meetings of the Finance Committee, then framing the notorious Grundy act, an employe of the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut to furnish confidential and advance information to his employes on pending legislation. That was wicked enough.

But this man was slipped in and put on the payroll of the government of the United States. The taxpayers paid the cost of this incredible espionage.

When the discovery was made even the Senate was shocked. Even Smoot, of Utah, said it was a reflection on the honor of the Senate.

The Senate unanimously spread on its records a condemnation of the action of Bingham, and Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, said on the floor that if such a condemnation were passed on him he would feel that he had been condemned "in a way that would make him feel the rest of his life that he was living under a cloud."

So much for Bingham—who wants to represent the East again.

* * *

The Case of Senator Barbour

Take the case of Senator Barbour, of New Jersey, who is now seeking re-election, or rather election after an appointment, on the ground that he supported the Democratic Wagner bills: He was one of the outstanding members of the Grundy group that demanded the Grundy act which has ruined our foreign trade because it had "raised a million dollars from among its members for Mr. Hoover's election."

Grundy became so notorious that when he sought re-election in Pennsylvania he was rebuked with a defeat.

And when Grundy went to the Senate on the appointment of a Governor without a sense of shame, it was Senator Barbour, not then senator, who was Grundy's successor as the head of the organization that had raised the million dollars.

* * *

Medalie Wants to Represent the East

In Pennsylvania, Senator Davis is under a federal indictment, charged with a serious offense from which he hopes to escape on a legal point. The evidence in the trial, which ended in a mistrial, however, placed the Senator in a rather pitiful position to pose as an unselfish philanthropist.

It is interesting to note that the indictment against Davis, Republican nominee in Pennsylvania, was the work of Medalie, United States attorney in New York who is now the Republican nominee in that state.

And Medalie, who wants to represent the East, was appointed United States attorney by Attorney General Mitchell after the latter had publicly announced that no one would be appointed to that post who "does not believe in the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act."

The people of New York will determine at the polls whether he represents them on that subject.

* * *

Senator Wagner's Constructive Work

These are the outstanding Hoover senatorial nominees in the East, and the East will decide whether it thinks them representative of their section. And the entire country will judge the East by the decision they make.

There was a time when the eastern states were represented by the outstanding statesmen in the Senate. Only here and there today is there an eastern senator who is conspicuous for statesmanship rather than for such concepts of public service as is represented in these nominees.

There are two strong, able, high-grade senators from Massachusetts—and both are Democrats.

And the statesman outstanding in the Senate as the greatest humanitarian and constructive thinker on economic and social problems is concededly Senator Wagner, another Democrat, from New York. He is beyond all question the hardest working, more conscientious, most effective senator New York has had in many years. He won the admiration, confidence and affection of both sides of the chamber within a year, and the approval of the entire nation within two years.

Everything that has been done to meet the human problems of these dreadful days of human misery has been due to Wagner's persistent and constructive work. His defeat would be a reflection upon the intelligence of the electorate of New York—and, of course, is impossible.

* * *

The Best Thing for The Republican Party

It was Elihu Root who lamented to Nicholas Murray Butler that where there had been a time when the best political brains had been in their party, they were now in the Democratic party.

That does not mean that there are better brains in the heads of the rank and file of one party than of the other. There are among the Republicans, men of great capacity for public service, men of lofty character, and constructive capacity, but under the present regime these have been sent into retirement and men of limited capacity, and worse, have been raised to the seats of the mighty.

This will continue as long as the present party regime remains in power. The best thing that can happen for the Republican party is to have these men swept from the scene to make way for a reorganization of their party under a leadership more intelligent and of higher character.

* * *

'The Only Party Fit to Govern'

This is true throughout the country—it is especially true in the East—and especially so in New York.

"The only party fit to govern" has a sorry ring today. Here, for example, in the Cabinet, close to the head of the government in the capacity of advisors are Mills, Hurley, Wilbur, Doak, Stimson.

Let any business man of ordinary perspicacity or sense decide for himself which group he would prefer to have in charge of his personal business.

And then let him remember that the business of government is his personal business. If he has not learned that as a result of the ruin wrought by governmental policies in the last four years he is in a bad way.

The New Day

When not one gift you truly need

Put every fear aside,
And rise to greet this dawning day

Oh, marvel of all marvels
That this can still be true,
That every heart in every land
With morn finds Earth made new!

New hope, new cheer, new courage
Come with the shining sun,
As into time's pied fabric
An urgent thread is spun.

A day all blue and gold
In which life's lifting flower
